2060. Abstract of deed.]—(1) In a vendor's suit for specific performance the abstract showed a seisin in fee in B. in 1798, & a devolution of the title both legal & equitable from him to pltf., & uninterrupted enjoyment thereunder. In one of the deeds abstracted, dated in 1815, there was, however, a recital of seisin in A. in 1779, & that by mesne conveyances the premises came to B. The deeds recited were missing, but affidavits were produced verifying extracts from the account books of deceased solrs. who had been concerned in framing the recited deeds, in which charges were made for preparing those deeds & for attending to witness their execution:—Held: the recital coupled with the extracts was good secondary evidence of the execution & contents of the missing deeds.

(2) The abstracted deed in 1815 also contained recitals of deeds purporting to be mtges. of the premises in question by B., & subsequent reconveyances to him by the mtgees. These deeds were also missing, but were abstracted in an abstract produced to the purchaser, which had been made out & examined by a conveyancer in 1815, & from which the recitals in the deed of 1815 had been prepared:—Held: the abstract of 1815 was sufficient secondary evidence of the execution & contents of the missing deeds.—*MOULTON v. 2061. Rental book—Lost lease.]—Pltf., in the lifetime of E., his mother, by deed, dated Jan. 9, 1814, mortgaged certain premises in fee to one J., whose interest therein was subsequently vested absolutely in deft. by purchase in the year 1857, under the power of sale in the mtge. E. died in 1848, having been in possession of the premises for a period of thirty years, & in 1861 pltf., who was one of her next of kin, took out administration to her, & brought ejectment to recover the premises from deft., alleging that a term therein, of which E. died possessed, devolved upon him as such administrator. At the trial evidence was given of E.'s possession, & building cottages on the land, in one of which she lived, & the other she let to a tenant, & of her exercising various other acts of ownership over the premises; that a fire had happened in 1836, in which a certain deed was burnt, & due search having been made for it in vain, parol evidence was given of its contents, showing that it was an assignment made in 1819 to E., of the premises in question for the residue of a term of ninety-nine years, determinable on three lives, one of which lives was proved to be in existence at the time of the trial. The original lease from the freeholder in 1798, creating the term, was not forthcoming, although due search had been made for it in the proper quarter, but an old rental was put in, showing that the steward, appointed by the freeholder to be the receiver, had received the conventional rents for the premises in 1801, 1802, 1804, & 1805:—Held: E.'s possession & acts of ownership being evidence of a presumptive title in fee, unless cut down or explained, it was necessary for pltf. to remove such title, & to show a legal interest in her for a term of years surviving the commencement of the action.—METTERS v. BROWN (1863), 1 H. & C. 686; 1 New Rep. 367; 32 L. J. Ex. 138; 7 L. T. 795; 9 Jur. N. S. 416; 11 W. R. 429; 158 E. R. 1060; subsequent proceedings, 2 New Rep. 227.

o. Recitals in renewal of lease—Lost lease.]—Where an ancient lease, upon which a question arose as to the power to cut turf for sale, is lost, the recitals of the terms of the demise in a renewal will be taken as evidence of the terms of the demise, even against an alleged user of the rights.—CHART-

q. Petition for approval of appointment of trustee—Lost will.]—In an action for the recovery of possession of a certain piece of land, deft. denied the title in pltf. Pltf.'s title arose under a will which was lost. There was, however, amongst the records of the ct. a petition which some sixty years previous had been presented to the ct., & signed by one of the exors. to the will, asking the approval of the ct. to the appointment of a trustee in connection with the property under the will. The petition further set out pltf.'s title to the land as remainder-man in fee:—Held: the facts disclosed in the said petition were properly admitted as evidence in proof of the contents of the lost will.—EPISCOPAL R. C. CORPN. v. MURPHY (1898), 8 Nfld. L. R. 96.—NFLD.

2106. — — — — — Within Civil Procedure Act, 1833 (c. 42), s. 5.]—Obligors under a bond dated in 1879 bound themselves jointly & severally for the repayment of a sum of money advanced with interest. One of them, the principal debtor, died in 1905. The deceased co-obligor had been in the habit of sending down to the year in which he died, the half-yearly interest by cheques inclosed in letters. The person who received these letters stated in evidence that the letters had been destroyed, but said that they contained, in addition to the cheques, acknowledgments of the existence of the bond, & it was accepted that they did contain such acknowledgments:—Held: although above sect. required an acknowledgment to be in writing, yet the existence of the writing when it had been lost & proof of the loss was satisfactory to the ct. might be proved, & secondary evidence might be given of the lost document.—READ v. PRICE, [1909] 2 K. B. 724; 78 L. J. K. B. 1137; 101 L. T. 60; 25 T. L. R. 701, C. A.

PART IV. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 5.—
E. (d).

2105 I. Acknowledgment of a debt—Where debt barred by Statute of Limitations.]—In a suit for the recovery of a sum of money due on a balance of accounts, plffs. alleged that defts. had given a written acknowledgment of the debt. The material issue upon the pleadings was whether there was any such acknowledgment. The acknowledgment was alleged to have been lost & the question arose whether secondary evidence of its contents could be received:—Held: Limitation Act, 1877, s. 19 (2), belongs to that branch of the law of evidence which is dealt with by Act I. of 1872, s. 91, & ought not to be read in derogation of the general rules of secondary evidence so as to exclude oral evidence of the contents of an acknowledgment which has been lost or destroyed.—SHAMBHU NATH NATH v. RAM CHANDRA SHABA (1885), 1 L. R. 12 Cal. 267.—IND.

r. Letter.]—A person who has received a letter, part only of which, he stated, related to the subject matter of the suit, may, after the destruction of the letter, testify as to the contents of that part, though he cannot state the words of the remainder of it, except generally, that it had no reference to the question involved in the suit.—McGIBBON v. BURRIS (1883), 25 N. B. R. 81.—CAN.

s. — — —.]—An objection was taken to the production of the deposition of a haver to prove that a letter could not be recovered, & it was proposed to prove the contents by a witness:—Held: the evidence proved that a letter was written at the time, & that it was not to be found. When a principal writing is not to be found, a copy is the next best evidence, & then parol testimony. The party was entitled to parol evidence of its contents.—SCOTT v. MILLER & KERR

t. — — — Containing defamatory matter.]—Where a letter alleged to contain defamatory matter is lost, & secondary evidence of its contents is admitted, the very words of the alleged libel must be proved, & general evidence as to what the witness believes to be the substance or effect of them is insufficient.—SUTHERLAND v. NEILL (1887), 6 N. Z. L. R. 5.—N.Z.

u. Agreement.]—Evidence should not be allowed to prove the terms of a verbal agreement between the parties, when they subsequently entered into a written agreement relating to the same subject matter, although the latter has been lost & it cannot be proved by a copy; & when plff. claiming under the verbal agreement cannot remember the contents of the written agreement, & the evidence on the part of deft. as to such contents is not credited by the trial judge, the result is that no agreement is proved, & plff. must fail.—*WICKS v. Paper authorising distress—Copy given to distraintee—Such copy not accounted for.]—(1) A person who made a distress received a paper from the person by whose authority he distrained, & made a copy of it; which he gave to the person distrained on. The original was lost:—Held: parol evidence might be given of its contents, without producing or accounting for the copy given to the party distrained on.

(2) A mother & son were in possession of a house, for which house a declaration in ejectment was served on the son, who let judgment go by default, & also on the mother who defended:—Held: on the trial of the ejectment against the mother, an examined copy of a judgment, recovered against the son by the lessor of pltf. for use & occupation of the house, was not receivable in evidence.—*DOE d. 2113. Destruction by person bound by document—Admissibility of secondary evidence—Sworn copy.]—If a man destroys a thing that is designed to be evidence against himself a small matter will supply it. Deft. having torn his own note signed by him a copy sworn was admitted to be good evidence to prove it.—ANON. (1698), 1 Ld. Raym. 731; 91 E. R. 1388.

2114. ——— Parol evidence.]—Where a deed is wilfully destroyed, everything is to be presumed against the party, in odium spoliatoris; & therefore, the parol evidence of the person who prepared the draft, though at the distance of several years, is admissible to prove the general contents of it.—DELANY v. TENISON (1758), 3 Bro. Parl. Cas. 659; 1 E. R. 1559, H. L.

2115. ——— Marriage settlement.]—In 1860 a husband, through the intervention of his wife, obtained possession of their marriage settlement from their trustee. The husband, then, in order to raise money upon the property comprised in it, destroyed the settlement, mortgaged part of the settled property, & was proceeding to sell other parts of it. In Apr. 1864, the trustee filed a bill to restrain the intended sale, & prayed a declaration that the cancelled settlement should be established, & the trusts of it carried into effect. The husband did not deny the fact of his having destroyed the settlement: but pltf. & the wife denied many of his allegations, especially those with respect both to the circumstances under which the settlement was obtained by her from the trustee, & the precise contents of it. No draft or other copy of the settlement was produced to the ct.; but there was the evidence of the trustee, & the wife on the one side, & that of the husband & other persons who were not parties to the settlement, but who had subsequently read it, on the other. There was also the evidence of the solr. who had prepared the settlement, & who had acted as solr. to the husband, in the mtge. transaction, & in the proposed sale of part of the settled property:—Held: upon a full consideration of all the evidence in the case, pltf. was now entitled to the relief he sought.—BRANDON v. BARLOW (1865), 13 L. T. 6.

2116. ——— Libellous letter.]—Deft., after the publication of a libel, & before the action was brought, destroyed the letter containing the libellous words:—Held: as the defamatory writing was not in existence, secondary evidence of the contents of the letter by witnesses who heard it read was admissible.—RAINY v. BRAVO (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 287; 9 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 35; 27 L. T. 249; 36 J. P. 788; 20 W. R. 873; 17 E. R. 427, P. C.

c. Document showing composition of company.—By witness who read document.]—Pltf. sued defts. for work done for B. Co., & together with other evidence produced a witness who said he had been one of a deputation that had called upon the manager of the co. to ascertain of whom it was composed, & that said manager had produced a document & read it, stating that T. & J., the parties sued, with others whom he named, were the parties concerned in the co.; that the document was then handed to witness who read part of it to the company present who were quite satisfied that there was such a co.:—Held: this statement was admissible as secondary evidence of the document.—LOCKHART v. WATSON (1879), 3 L. & C. 543.—CAN.

d. Contents of deed—Partially destroyed by insects.]—Parol evidence admitted to supply words in an old deed, lost in consequence of the parts on which they were written having been eaten by insects.—BENODIEE LALL ROY v. DULLOO SIRCAR (1863), Marsh. 620.—IND.

2114 i. Destruction by person bound by document—Admissibility of secondary evidence—Parol evidence.]—A young man under twenty-one made an offer of marriage by letter to a young woman, & in the letter promised that if she would marry him he would, after the marriage, give her all the property he had, meaning real property, describing it as "my farm in O.," & "my property in E." She accepted the offer unconditionally, also by letter; the marriage took place; & he afterwards conveyed the two properties to her. After the conveyances the parties, voluntarily & without any evil intent, destroyed the letters, believing that they had no longer any use for them:—Held: the letters formed a pre-nuptial contract, enforceable in spite of their destruction, upon satisfactory evidence of their contents being given.—STUART v. THOMSON (1893), 23 O. R. 503.—CAN.

2114 ii. ———.]—In a suit to redeem a mtge. it was proved that the mtgees. & their assignee had fraudulently destroyed the deed by which the property was mortgaged:—Held: the mtgees. could not be permitted to prove the contents of the deed of the amount of mortgage debt by secondary evidence.—SIEK ABDULLA v. SIEK MUHAMMAD (1864), 1 Bom. 177.—IND.

Deft. then offered to produce parol evidence of the contents of the deed, without stating what evidence. No notice to produce had been given:—Held: parol evidence was rightly rejected.—*Bate v. The contents of a writing on any document or portable article cannot be proved without its production, or without showing it to be in the possession or power of prisoner or opposite party, & no notice to him to produce it (CHANNEL, B.).—R. v. FARR (1864), 4 F. & F. 336.

Before secondary evidence considered.]—Deft. had written a letter to H., pltf.'s attorney, who stated in evidence that he had written a letter in answer to it, which he gave to deft. at his, H.'s, office on Apr. 4. This letter of Apr. 4 being called for under a notice to produce, deft.'s counsel stated that there was no such letter, & proposed to show by evidence that H. had not given his letter to deft. on Apr. 4, at his office, as stated, because deft. was at another place, & also because H.'s letter was dated on Apr. 6, & was sent by post on that day. The judge received the evidence thus proposed to be given for deft. before allowing pltf. to go into secondary evidence of H.'s letter of Apr. 4:—Held: such evidence was not evidence to the jury, but to himself only, & any part of it which was written evidence should not be read by the officer of the ct., but should be handed to the judge & then shown to the opposite counsel.—SMITH v. 2137. ———.]—ELMES v. OGLE, No. 2186, post.

2138. ———.]—The issue in an action on a policy being the execution of the policy pltf's., having given defts. notice to produce the policy, tendered in evidence a document which he had received from defts. purporting to be a copy of the policy. Deft.'s counsel then tendered evidence to show that no such policy had ever been executed, & asked the judge to decide whether that were so or not, as a necessary preliminary to the admissibility of the copy. The judge refused to do so, & admitted the copy, leaving the question whether the policy had ever been executed ultimately to the jury:—Held: he was right in so doing.—STOWE v. QUERNER (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 155; 39 L. J. Ex. 60; 22 L. T. 29; 18 W. R. 466; 3 Mar. L. C. 341.

ii. What amounts to Possession.

Annotation:—Mentd. De Mautort v. Saunders (1830), 1 B. & Ad. 398.

2140. Of agent of adversary.]—If a paper be traced to the hands of the agent of a party in a suit, & notice has been given to such party to produce it, he is bound to do so, & the other side are not bound to call the agent; & if he has delivered it to the stamp office to get certain duties allowed, & does not tell the party serving the notice to produce, of that circumstance, parol evidence of the contents may be given.—SINCLAIR v. STEVENSON (1824), 1 C. & P. 582, N. P.

Annotations:—Consd. Elmes v. Ogle (1851), 15 Jur. 180. Mentd. Burgess v. Bennett (1872), 20 W. R. 720.

2141. Of banker — Adversary's cheque.]—Notice to a deft. to produce a cheque drawn by him & paid by his banker, is sufficient to entitle pltf. to give secondary evidence of its contents, although the cheque remains in the banker's hands.—PARTRIDGE v. COATES (1824), 1 C. & P. 534; Ry. & M. 153, N. P.

Pltf. was entitled to prove the contents of the notes without showing the originals lost or destroyed, or laying any foundation for the admission of secondary evidence.—TILLY v. FISHER (1852), 10 U. C. R. 32.—CAN.

2142. ———.]—If a cheque, drawn by one of the parties in a cause, be proved to be in the hands of the banker of such party, having been paid, the opposite party need not, if he wishes to have it put in evidence, call the banker's clerk to produce it, but may call for it under a notice to produce.—BURTON v. PAYNE (1827), 2 C. & P. 520, N. P.

2145. Of member of committee—Not joined as party.—Pltf. was employed as secretary to the committee of a charitable society, pursuant to a resolution entered in the book of the committee, of which during his service he had the care. The society being afterwards dissolved, pltf. sued some of the members of the committee for his salary:—Held: he ought to produce the book containing the resolution under which he was engaged; & that book appearing to be in the possession of a member of the committee who had not been joined in the action, notice to depts. to produce it was not sufficient to entitle pltf. to give secondary evidence of its contents.—WHITFORD v. TUTIN (1834), 10 Bing. 395; 4 Moo. & S. 166; 3 L. J. C. P. 106; 131 E. R. 957.

2146. ———.]—Action against chairman.—Where several persons, among whom was deft., had attended meetings for the purpose of forming a co., & deft. had acted as chairman & signed the minutes, which were afterwards entered in a book, which book was given into the possession of another member of the committee in deft.'s absence:—Held: a notice to produce the book & minutes given to deft. was sufficient to let in secondary evidence of its contents.—WIEBB v. HARRIES (1848), 12 L. T. O. S. 275.

2150. ———.]—Notice of non-possession.—To party serving notice.—After a notice to produce a lease & a nonsuit on the trial of the cause, deft. assigned the lease without the privity of his attorney on record. A second action was afterwards brought, & another notice to produce the lease was served upon the attorney, who informed the person serving the notice that the lease had been assigned, & that the assignment was made without his privity. Pltf. being acquainted with the place of deft.'s residence:—Held: it was incumbent upon him to have inquired of deft., in whose possession the lease was, in order to render secondary evidence of its contents admissible.

In a case circumstanced as this is, notice to the attorney cannot be sufficient, since the lease not only was not in his possession but had been assigned after the last trial, & the person who served the notice was informed that the attorney for deft. was not privy to the assignment (DALLAS, C.J.).—KNIGHT v. MARTIN (1819), Gow, 103, N. P.

2151. ———.]—Action against sheriff.—Where a sheriff's warrant to levy execution had, after the levy, been returned by the bailiff to the undersheriff while the sheriff was yet in office, & the bailiff, upon being called as a witness, did not produce it:—Held: proof of notice to the sheriff's attorney to produce it was sufficient to entitle the party to give parol evidence of its contents.—TAPLIN v. ATTY (1825), 3 Bing. 164; 10 Moore, C. P. 564; 3 L. J. O. S. C. P. 218; 130 E. R. 476.

2152. ———.]—In an action against a sheriff for not arresting under a ca. sa., in order to connect the sheriff with the transaction the bailiff, who had not been served with a subpoena duces tecum, proved, that when deft. went out of office the warrant was sent to the persons who while deft. was sheriff acted as the London agents, & who were also his attorneys on the record:—Held: notice to them to produce the warrant, after deft. had gone out of office, was sufficient to entitle pltf. to give secondary evidence of its contents.—SUTER v. BURRELL (1858), 2 H. & N. 867; 27 L. J. Ex. 193.

2154. ———.]—In an action on the case for the obstruction of pltf.'s lights by the erection of a club house, the builder was called to prove that he contracted with depts., who were sued as the trustees of the club. It appearing that there was but one contract, which the witness gave to the attorney of the club, after executing it, & that there was notice to produce, which was not complied with:—Held: the attorney, having been served with a subpoena duces tecum, pltf. might go into secondary evidence of the contents of the contract so delivered to the attorney of the club, as his possession must be taken to be that of his clients, & they were bound to ask him to deliver it to them on the instant.—BATEY v. WATSON (1849), 14 L. T. O. S. 257.

2155. ———.]—Where a document was proved to have been in the actual possession of a party to the action, or to be now in the possession of his attorney in another action:—Held: secondary evidence was admissible notice having been given to that attorney to produce it. Semble: it would have been so even without such notice to the attorney.

The possession of pltf.'s attorney is the possession of pltf. Generally, documents of any value are in the actual custody of bankers, or attorneys or agents of some kind; & though they might perhaps be subpoenaed, it is not necessary to subpoena them; when the principal is a party to the suit, it is sufficient to give the party notice to produce the document, & if he does not do so, then secondary evidence is sufficient (POLLOCK, C.B.).—IRWIN v. LEVER (1860), 2 F. & F. 296.

iii. Proof of Possession.

2156. Questioning attorney of adversary—As to his possession of document.]—Where notice to produce a letter has been served, the attorney for the opposite party may be asked, whether he has that letter, in order to let in secondary evidence of it, if not produced.—BEVAN v. WATERS (1828), 3 C. & P. 520; Mood. & M. 235, N. P. Annotations:—Refd. Coates v. Birch (1811), 2 Q. B. 252; Dwyer v. Collins (1852), 7 Exch. 639; Troupell v. Cummins (1839), 5 M. & W. 342.

2158. ———.]—A solr. to one of the parties to a suit may be called by the opposite party & asked respecting the possession of documents connected with an estate, which he had received in professional confidence; &, for the purpose of identifying such documents, the date & names of the parties to them may be given so as to give secondary evidence of it if it should not be produced in obedience to the notice given to the party for that purpose.—DOE d. MARRYAT v. MAIDMERIT (1845), 5 L. T. O. S. 333.

2160. ———.]—(1) The object of a notice to produce a document is merely to give the opposite party sufficient opportunity to produce it if he pleases, & not that he may be enabled to prepare evidence to explain, nullify, or confirm it; &, therefore, where the document is in ct. at the time of the trial, a notice to produce it immediately is sufficient to render secondary evidence of its contents admissible if it be not produced.

means to procure the testimony of the overseer himself, who must be presumed to have the custody of the original appointment, were not entitled to give secondary evidence of its contents.—R. v. STOKE GOLDING (INHABITANTS) (1817), 1 B. & Ald. 173; 106 E. R. 64.

2166. ———.]—Tenant for life, under a devise with a leasing power, let to deft. by a lease not noticing the power. After the death of lessor, a succeeding tenant for life, under the same devise, brought ejectment against deft. on the ground that the lease was not a valid execution of the power. To prove the term, deft. called for the production of the deed creating it. The witness called upon stated that he held the deed as attorney for a mtgee. of the land, & that his client refused to produce it; & the witness himself declined to produce it, or to give oral evidence of the contents. Deft. then called as a witness the attorney of a party who had made a contract with the lessor of pltf. for exchange of lands: & he stated that on making the contract the attorney for the lessor of pltf. had furnished him with an abstract referring to the deed in question, which abstract he had compared with the original; that he held the abstract as evidence of the contract; that he had no instructions from his client, but would produce the abstract if the judge thought he ought to do so. The judge said, that he thought there was no sufficient reason why the witness should not; & it was produced as secondary evidence of the deed creating the term:—Held: the evidence was properly produced.—DOE d. EGREMONT (EARL) v. LANGDON (1848), 12 Q. B. 711; 18 L. J. Q. B. 17; 12 L. T. O. S. 84; 13 Jur. 96; 116 E. R. 1037.

(2) If, as secondary evidence of the contents of the deed, the draft be given in evidence, & in the draft words be abbreviated, which, in the setting out of the deed in the indictment, are put in words at length, it will be for the jury to say whether they think that the words abbreviated in the draft were inserted at length in the deed itself.—R. v. HUNTER (1829), 4 C. & P. 128.

ment—Admitted in evidence on commission—Admissible at trial.—A commission to take evidence in Western Australia was issued in an action in the Supreme Ct. of New Zealand between parties resident in New Zealand. Defts. desired to give evidence before the commission in Western Australia of the service of a document upon pltf. in Western Australia. Before the taking of evidence before the commission they gave notice to pltf.'s agents in Western Australia to produce the original document, but they had not then given notice to produce to pltf. or his solrs. in New Zealand. They proved a copy of the document & service of the original by evidence before the commission. Afterwards, 2249. ——— Second notice for further documents—First notice complied with.]—A notice to produce deeds was served on deft.'s attorney in Essex on Saturday, the commission day of the assizes being Monday; the attorney went to London & fetched them. A notice was served on the Monday evening to produce another deed. The attorney stated he had been to town to fetch the deeds, & if pltf. would pay the expense of sending for this from town where it was, it should be had. No offer to pay was made & the trial was on Thursday:—Held: pltf. was not entitled to give secondary evidence of the last mentioned deed.—DOE d. CURTIS v. SPITTY (1832), 3 B. & Ad. 182; 1 L. J. When secondary evidence admissible—Party a foreigner—Held to bail for the trial—On arrival seven months previously.]—A notice to produce letters written by pltf. to deft., who was a foreigner, & had been held to bail upon coming to this country seven months previous to the trial, was served on Apr. 10, the trial taking place on Apr. 14:—Held: sufficient to let in secondary evidence of the contents, although the letters were written eighteen years back, & addressed to deft. at his residence abroad.—DRABBLE v. DONNER (1824), 1 C. & P. 188; Ry. & M. 47, N. P.

Annotation:—Reid. Vice v. Anson (1827), Mood. & M. 96.

2257. ——— Service on day of trial—Admission that document not in existence—On notice to produce.]—Where none of the parties lived in the assize town pltf.'s attorney served deft.'s attorney in the assize town, on the commission day, with notice to produce a paper, & offered the expenses of going to fetch it. Deft.'s attorney said that that was of no use as the paper was not in existence:—Held: pltf. on the trial might give secondary evidence of the contents of the paper, as the statement of deft.'s attorney, that the paper was not in existence, got rid of any objection as to the lateness of the service of the notice to produce.—FOSTER v. POINTER (1841), 9 C. & P. 718, N. P.

2258. ——— Service day before trial—Document in court—In hands of third party.]—An action on a bond of indemnity stood for trial at the Flintshire assizes: the commission day was on July 27; the cause was tried on July 29. At 10 a.m. on July 28, a notice to produce the bond was served on deft.'s attorney in the action (who resided in London) in the deft.'s presence in the assize town. The bond was in the possession of W. who held it as the representative of a former attorney of the obligors, & was himself deft.'s general attorney, who had undertaken to produce it at the trial, if the judge should think he was bound to do so. Before the assizes the bond had been sent by W. to deft.'s attorney in the action, in London, for the purposes of inspection & admission under a judge's order: & pltf.'s attorney had there taken a correct copy of it. At the trial W. had the bond in ct. but objected to produce it on the ground of privilege, & the objection was allowed:—Held: (1) the notice to produce the deed was sufficient to let in secondary evidence of it; (2) the copy so taken by pltf.'s attorney was admissible as such evidence.

(3) Notice to produce must be given within reasonable time before the trial comes on, the judge at the trial being the proper person to consider whether that reasonable time has been given or not (PARKE, B.).—LLOYD v. MOSTYN (1842), 10 M. & W. 478; 2 Dowl. N. S. 476; 12 L. J. Ex. 1; 6 Jur. 974; 152 E. R. 558.

2259. ——— Notice that document was at

place of trial—In hands of third party.]—A., a plff. in a cause in the county ct., was indicted for perjury there, in respect of a paper which was produced on the trial there. A. & C. his attorney, both lived at a distance from H. the assize town. At noon, on the commission day, C. was served at H. with notice to produce this paper. The trial came on the next morning; but in the notice to produce, further notice was given, as the fact was, that the paper was then in H., in the possession of M. who was then at the G. Hotel in H.:—Held: sufficient notice to produce had been given, & secondary evidence of the paper should be received.—R. v. HANKINS (1849), 2 Car. & Kir. 823; 3 Cox, C. C. 434.

2260. — Service five days before trial.]—(1) Notice to produce a receipt was served on prisoner on Monday, the first day of the Jan. sessions, at the Central Criminal Ct. Prisoner lived in Ireland, & the trial commenced on Friday:—Held: the notice was sufficient.

(2) Prisoner brought an action on the bill alleged to be forged, & on the settlement of it gave up the bill, & received a receipt for it from deft. Prisoner afterwards became bkpt.:—Semble: notice to prisoner to produce such receipt is not sufficient to let in secondary evidence. It would pass to the assignees under the bkpey.—R. v. JOEL (1850), 14 J. P. 227.

2261. — Service two days before trial—Opportunity of obtaining document.]—Notice to produce policies of insurance served on prisoner's attorney on Tuesday evening, prisoner then being in M., the policies being twenty miles off & the trial taking place on Thursday:—Held: sufficient.

No general rule can be laid down; every case must be governed by particular circumstances, & as in this case there had been an opportunity of obtaining the policies, the notice is sufficient (BRAMWELL, B.).—R. v. BARKER (1858), 1 F. & F. 326.

iii. When Parties or Documents at Place of Trial.

2262. When secondary evidence admissible—Service on day before trial—On party's attorney—Having charge of cause.]—In a town cause, a notice to produce a paper that would be in the hands of opposite attorney, was served at 8 p.m. on the evening before the trial, at his office on one of his clerks, who had the management of the cause:—Held: the service was not too late, & the paper not being produced, secondary evidence could be given of its contents.—GIBBONS v. POWELL (1840), 9 C. & P. 634, N. P.

Annotation:—Refd. Lawrence v. Clark (1845), 14 M. & W. 250.

2263. — — — — & on party.]—In a town cause for an assault in which deft. & his attorney both lived in town, a notice to produce a letter from plff.'s attorney to deft., asking compensation, was served at deft.'s house & at the office of deft.'s attorney, at about 6.30 p.m., on the evening of the day before that on which the cause was tried:—Held: it was not too late, & the letter not being produced, secondary evidence could be given of its contents.—MEYRICK v. WOODS (1812), Car. & M. 452, N. P.

2264. — — — —.]—In a town cause for goods sold, in which deft. & his attorney both lived in town, a notice to produce a letter from plff. to deft., asking payment, was served at the office of deft.'s attorney, at 7 p.m., on the evening of the day before that on which the cause was tried:—Held: it was not too late, & the letter not being produced, secondary evidence could be given of its contents.—LEAF v. BUTT (1812), Car. & M. 451, N. P.

2265. — — — —.]—A cause at the sittings at nisi prius was called on upon Thursday, Feb. 4, & plff.'s case was closed on that day at 4 p.m.; the case was then adjourned to Friday, Feb. 5 at 10 a.m. All the parties lived in town, & in the evening of Feb. 4, before 9 p.m., a notice to produce a letter of deft. to plff. was served on plff.'s attorney:—Held: (1) this notice to produce was served in time; (2) if a party was served with notice to produce sufficiently early for him to be enabled to produce a document, if he thought proper to do so, it made no difference that, at the time of the service of the notice, the case was part heard.—STURM v. JEFFREE (1847), 2 Car. & Kir. 442; 8 L. T. O. S. 415, N. P.

Deft., in cross-examination, stated that he had been in the habit of consulting A., an engineer (one of his witnesses), as to his patents, & had received from him a written report. Pltf. had not required from deft. an affidavit of documents, & on the twelfth day of the trial notice was given by leave to defts. to produce the report next day. The report not being produced next day pltf.'s counsel, after the evidence for deft. was closed, asked leave to recall deft. or A. to be examined as to the contents of the report, or that A. might produce a copy of it:—Held: parol evidence should not be given at that stage of the trial, with respect to a document as to which no proper notice to produce had been given.—SUGG v. 2304. — — — Notice by local authority.—The general principle that no notice to produce a notice is usually required does not apply to a case in which the notice required to be produced has been served on a third person.

A local authority had power, under bye-laws made under the Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55), if any work should be "begun or done" in contravention of the bye-laws, to pull down the work after notice to the person by whom the work had been begun or done. A building was constructed in contravention of the bye-laws by W., & after being set upon wheels, was sold to pltf. The local authority gave notice to pltf. to show cause why it should not be pulled down, & his reply being unsatisfactory, pulled it down. Pltf., sued for damages. At the trial the local authority sought to prove notice to W. by secondary evidence, viz. a duplicate notice only :—Held : the duplicate notice was inadmissible.—*ANDREWS v. The son of the seller, who was proved to have been present when the bargain was made, & to have acted at other times in his father's business, but never to have sold a horse by himself, got the receipt back from the servant by a fraudulent representation. In an action on the warranty against the father:—Held: parol evidence of the contents could not be given, but the son must be called as a witness.

The son being called, proved that he went for the receipt by desire of a person named T., the owner of the horse, for whom his father sold on commission, & did not mention the subject to his father till he had obtained it; his father then had possession of the receipt for a very short time, after which it was sent to T.:—Held: this fact did not vary the case, so as to let in the parol testimony.—*BEST v. 2401. ——— In criminal proceedings—Copy containing abbreviations.]—An office copy of a bill in Chancery, which a witness examined with the original, but which office copy contained abbreviations, such as "pnl. este." for the words "personal estate," in the original bill, is not such an examined copy as will be evidence to support an allegation of a bill in Chancery on an indictment for perjury committed in an affidavit in that suit in Chancery.—R. v. CHRISTIAN (1842), Car. & M. 388, N. P.

2402. ——— Copy of proceedings at law—In proceedings in Chancery.]—Deft. in equity had brought an action against pltf. in equity on a promissory note, & delivered declaration thereon prior to the filing of the bill. Subsequently to the filing of the bill, which put in issue the declaration, the action proceeded to trial, & a verdict was found for deft., pltf. in equity, who proved in this cause an examined copy of the judgment roll:—Held: the judgment was admissible in evidence; but as it was obtained after the bill was filed, deft. in equity was entitled to have an inquiry before the master, whether it was fairly & under what circumstances obtained.—PEARCE v. GRAY (1843), 2 Y. & C. Ch. Cas. 322; 7 Jur. 250; 63 E. R. 142.

2407. ———— Of superior court.]—A judgment in the superior cts. cannot be proved by a judgment paper from the office of the master, but only by an examined or office copy of the record.—JEFFS v. DAY (1865), 12 L. T. 852, N. P.

2408. ———— Copy of conviction by magistrate—

To prove an information.]—If a plea, justifying a libel, state that an information was laid before a magistrate, an examined copy of the magistrate's conviction, reciting the information, is sufficient proof of the information.—SCARTH v. GARDENER (1831), 5 C. & P. 38, N. P.

Annotation:—Mentd. Cox v. Reid (1849), 18 L. J. Q. B. 216.

2409. ———— To prove commission of the offence.]—Metropolitan Police Act, 1839 (c. 47), s. 54, imposes a penalty not exceeding 40s. for "furious driving" in a thoroughfare; & sect. 63 empowers any constable of the metropolitan police district to take into custody, without warrant, any person who, within view of such constable, shall offend in any manner against the act. In an action in a county ct. against constables for a tort in taking pltf. into custody on a false & unfounded charge of furiously driving a horse & gig, to the danger of the passengers in a public highway, pltf., in stating his case, admitted that he had been taken before two justices, convicted, & fined 20s. & that he had paid the penalty, & had not taken any steps to impeach the validity of the conviction. The judge thereupon asked defts. if they could prove the conviction; & they accordingly put in an examined copy, which stated the offence, but did not allege that it was committed "within view of the constables." The judge, being of opinion, that, "under the circumstances, the conviction was an answer to pltf.'s claim for damages," directed the jury to find for defts.:—Held: a misdirection.—*JUSTICE v. 2468. — — — — —.]—In assumpsit for goods sold, & on account stated, to recover the value of growing poles purchased from pltf. by defts., & afterwards carried away by them, it appeared, in evidence, that at the time of the bargain some memorandums in writing had been made, but which were neither stamped nor signed by the parties. It was also proved, that defts., after the poles were carried away, admitted that a balance was due to pltf. Under these circumstances pltf. was nonsuited.—Held: such nonsuit was proper as it was not proved that deft. had admitted a precise & definite sum to be due to pltf. & therefore he could not recover on the account stated without reference to the memorandums, which were not admissible in evidence.—*TEAL v. Its admissibility under such circumstances is restricted to this extent, so far as it relates simply to proving the statement of account, & is not produced for the purpose of proving the receipt of money. An unstamped receipt is admissible to prove matter collateral to the proof of payment of the specified sum; as where the unstamped receipt showed the relation of landlord & tenant between the parties. It cannot be used for the purpose of proving the receipt of money in any way.

2511. Unstamped letter—To prove notice of allotment of shares.—S. applied for fifty shares in a co., which were allotted, & notice of allotment sent to him by letter on Oct. 15, 1874. This allotment letter was unstamped. On Oct. 19, & Nov. 14, S. wrote to the co., declining to pay calls till certain information as to the position of the co. was afforded him. On Dec. 2 a duplicate letter of allotment duly stamped was sent by the co. to S. On Dec. 15, S. wrote to the co. that it was his intention to withdraw his application for shares, & he returned the allotment letters, with a request for the return of his deposit. On Dec. 22, S. was informed by the secretary that his name was entered on the register for fifty shares. From that date till Oct. 1875, several letters were sent by S. to the co., by which he repeated his refusal to take up the shares, & asked for a cancellation of the allotment, & a return of the deposit. The co., however, did not cancel the allotment, nor return the deposit, & S.'s name remained on the register at the date of the winding-up order in Oct. 1875. Upon an application by S. that his name might be removed from the list of contributors:—Held: the first allotment letter, though unstamped, was receivable as evidence that S. had received notice of the allotment, & at any rate, the defect, if any, was cured by the second stamped letter.—Re WHITLEY, LTD., STEEL'S CASE (1879), 49 L. 2512 iv. —.]—D. & G., entered into a contract with a council for the construction of water-works. The contract was joint. The instalments of the contract price were paid by the council to G., who granted stamped receipts therefor, & paid over to D. his share of each instalment. Neither D. nor G. kept any account of the division of the instalments, but on the back of a copy of the specification for the contract there were writings in the following form: "Received to account the sum of" an amount specified & always over £2 with a date & signature "D." or "G." as the case may be. 2517. To prove acknowledgment.]—A stamp is only necessary where a paper is used as evidence of an agreement directly, & not where it is used incidentally; so the paper is evidence of an acknowledgment contained in it, though not stamped.—WHELDON v. MATTHEWS (1815), 2 Chit. 399.

2518. To determine admissibility of parol evidence.]—Where a pauper hired a house under an unstamped written agreement:—Held: the sessions might look at it to see whether it related to the premises in question, in order to determine upon the admissibility of parol evidence on the same subject, with a view to raise the presumption of a contract which would confer a settlement.—R. v. BATHWICK (INHABITANTS) (1824), 4 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 335; 2 Dow. & Ry. M. C. 331.

2519. To determine variation—In former stamped agreement.]—Where a party declared upon two written agreements, by the second of which variations were made in the first, & there were also counts upon each separately; & it appeared, when the instruments were produced in evidence by pltf. that the first only was stamped:—Held: the second could not be read in evidence to support pltf.'s case, but might be looked at in order to ascertain whether the first was altered by it.—*REED v. 2521. To prove illegal purpose.]—A petition having been presented to the House of Commons against the return of a member, on the ground of bribery, petitioner entered into an agreement, in consideration of a sum of money, & upon other terms, to proceed no further with the petition:—Held: the written agreement was admissible in evidence, for the purpose of insisting on the illegality of the transaction, in answer to an action for the sum so agreed to be paid, without its being stamped.—CROCK v. BOWER (1838), 4 M. & W. 361; 1 Horn & H. 310; 8 L. J. Ex. 9; 2 J. P. 695; 2 Jur. 923; 150 E. R. 1468.

2522. To explain former stamped agreement.]—

indorsements were not stamped. In an action by D. against G. for payment of a balance alleged to be due to D. & in the hands of G.:—Held: the indorsements above described were not receipts within Stamp Act, 1891, s. 101, & therefore the indorsements signed "D." & although not stamped were admissible as evidence to instruct the receipt by D. of sums which the council had paid on his account to G.—*DAY v. Sect. 10.—Stamps: Sub-sect. 4, E. (c), F., G & H.]

Deft. hired certain apartments of pltf. upon the terms contained in the following memorandum: "I hereby agree, according to our conversation of last evening, to pay you for the occupation of your first floor, furnished, from Monday, Mar. 4, 1830, to Sept. 4, 1830, the sum of £52 10s.: I also agree either to occupy the said rooms from Sept. 4, to Dec. 4, furnished, on the same terms, viz., £26 5s. for the three months, or take them unfurnished at the rate of £84 per annum."

The above letter was produced by pltf., stamped with a 30s. stamp. In order to explain, as he contended, that letter, deft. put in a second, which was not stamped.—Held: inadmissible; for, if treated as a separate & independent agreement, it should have had a 30s. stamp; &, if the terms of the agreement were to be collected from the two letters, a 35s. stamp would be requisite on one of them.—ATHERSTONE v. BOSTOCK (1841), 2 Man. & G. 511; Drinkwater, 96; 2 Scott, N. R. 637; 10 L. J. C. P. 113; 5 J. P. 259; 133 E. R. 850.

2523. To prove tenancy—Agreement as to distress.]—A memorandum, by which, in consideration that A. will withdraw a distress for a sum exceeding £20, which B. admits to be due from him as tenant to A., until a future day, B. declares, that in case of default it shall be lawful for A. to enter & distrain, & to pursue all remedies for the recovery of the rent, as if no distress had been taken, is admissible in evidence to prove the tenancy without an agreement stamp.—HILL v. RAMM (1843), 5 Man. & G. 789; 6 Scott, N. R. 571; 1 L. T. O. S. 109; 134 E. R. 779.

2524. To prove admission contained in recital.]—In an action by the payee against the maker of a promissory note for £485, in which deft. had pleaded that he did not make the note, it was proposed, in addition to proof of deft.'s handwriting of the signature of the note, to put in an unstamped agreement between the same parties, of the same date as the note, in which it was recited, that the one had bought of the other the lease of a public house for £485, & had given a note for that sum as a security for the purchase-money, & by which it was agreed, that the vendor should hold the lease of the house till the purchase-money was paid:—Held: as the agreement was one that ought to have borne a stamp, it was not receivable in evidence, even for the purpose of proving the admission contained in the recital.—KEANE v. JAMES (1848), 2 Car. & Kir. 725, N. P.

2525. To show fraud.]—An agreement not stamped cannot be received as evidence for any purpose whatever, not even to show that the party meant to commit a fraud by that agreement.—WHITWELL v. DIMSDALE (1702), Peake, 224, N. P.

2526. —.]—A document, which purports to be an agreement, & is valid upon the face of it, but which is tendered in evidence to show the transaction with which it is connected to be a fraud, is admissible, although unstamped.—HOLMES v. SIXSMITH (1852), 7 Exch. 802; 21 L. J. Ex. 312; 19 L. T. O. S. 159; 16 Jur. 618.

2527. —.]—A memorandum stamped as a receipt having been rejected, because requiring a stamp as an agreement, an agreement for the hire of goods of which the value was mentioned only by reference to the receipt:—Held: not to require a stamp, the value of the hire not appearing to exceed the amount of £20, & the rejected receipt allowed to be looked at, with reference to the real

date of the transaction, & in order to show fraud.—CHITTENDEN v. DAY (1860), 2 F. & F. 77, N. P.

2528. Matters relating to valuation—Tenancy agreement.]—An agreement which might amount to a lease, not stamped as such, is admissible as an admission by deft. on a matter collateral to the lease, & relating to a valuation, the subject of the suit.—WALKER v. ATKINSON (1859), 1 F. & F. 465, N. P.

2529. Matters relating to contract—Purchase of goods.]—A. brings an action against B. for the price of a gun ordered by the latter. He may read in evidence, for a collateral purpose, part of a letter written by B. to him, although the remainder of the letter contains directions for making the gun, & is not stamped as an agreement.—FORSYTH v. JERVIS (1816), 1 Stark, 437, N. P.

Annotation:—Folld. Marson v. Short (1835), 2 Bing. N. C. 118.

2530. — Terms of sale—Of company.]—An agreement in writing for the sale of its undertaking was entered into between a co. & a trustee for a new co., but was not stamped. On an application to restrain the agreement being carried out, the ct. looked at a copy of the document, not as an agreement, but as a document, evidencing the terms upon which the co. proposed to sell if not restrained from so doing.—MASON v. MOTOR TRACTION CO., LTD., [1905] 1 Ch. 419; 74 L. J. Ch. 273; 92 L. T. 234; 21 T. L. R. 238; 12 Mans. 31.

F. To Prove Act of Bankruptcy.

2531. Unstamped deed of assignment—Whether admissible.]—In an action by assignees of a bkpt., for the proceeds of goods alleged to have been on the order & disposition of the bkpt., it appearing that the goods were assigned to deft., it was doubted whether the deed of assignment, not being stamped, was admissible in evidence for pltf. as proving the act of bkcy., & the point being doubtful, a copy was admitted.—REYNOLDS v. HALL (1858), 1 F. & F. 18.

2532. —.]—An unstamped deed of arrangement, although admissible in evidence to prove an act of bkpy., cannot, after it has ceased to be available as an act of bkpy., be put in evidence without a stamp where the fact that the deed is void for want of registration is relied upon by the trustee in a subsequent bkpy. of the debtor to establish a title to the property comprised in the deed.—Re SHAW, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER (1920), 90 L. J. K. B. 204; [1920] B. & C. R. 156.

G. Documents amounting only to Proposal.

2533. General rule.]—This brings one to the second question, whether the advertisement, which is the only written or printed document affecting the contract, requires to be stamped as an agreement before it can be admitted in evidence. This depends upon the language of the Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), which requires an agreement, or any memorandum of an agreement under hand only, whether the same be only evidence of a contract, or obligatory upon the parties from its being a written instrument, to be duly stamped. Whether a written or printed document falls within this requirement depends upon its character at the time it was committed to writing, or print, & issued. No document requires an agreement stamp unless it amounts to an agreement, or a memorandum of an agreement. A mere proposals or offer until accepted amounts to nothing (HAWKINS, J.).—CARLILL v. CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL CO., [1892] 2 Q. B. 484; 61 L. J. Q. B. 696; 56 J. P. 865; 8 T. L. R. 680; 36 Sol. Jo. 628; affd., [1893] 1 Q. B. 256, C. A.

2534. Admissible—Order for goods.—In an action for delivering goods made by deft. for pltf. in pursuance of an order a memorandum in writing ordering the goods, but not proving the contract between the parties may be read in evidence without a stamp.—INGRAM v. LEA (1810), 2 Camp. 521, N. P.

2535. — Estimate for work.—In an action for work & labour, a proposal on the part of deft., which was not finally acceded to, containing an estimate for the amount of the work, may be read in evidence by deft., although it be not stamped.—PENNIFORD v. HAMILTON (1819), 2 Stark, 475.

Annotation:—Apld. Parker v. Dubois (1836), Tyr. & Gr. 243.

2536. — Proposal as to a tenancy.—Where a witness deposed that the settled draft of a lease was the final agreement between the parties, for one of whom he acted as agent:—Held: an unstamped memorandum, written afterwards by himself but not signed by anybody, was admissible in evidence as a mere proposal, to show that the settled draft was not the final agreement between the parties.—HAWKINS v. WARRE (1825), 3 B. & C. 690; 5 Dow & Ry. K. B. 512; 107 E. R. 889.

Annotation:—Consd. Matheson v. Ross (1849), 2 H. L. Cas. 286.

2537. — — — — ——In order to establish a derivative settlement by renting a tenement, an unstamped document was tendered in evidence. It was in form a proposal by A. to become tenant of B. on certain terms. A. occupied as tenant from the time of the proposal; & B. afterwards wrote to his agent a formal acceptance of the terms proposed by A.: but that acceptance was never communicated to A.:—Held: the document was admissible without a stamp.—R. v. ST. JAMES', WESTMINSTER (1852), 18 L. T. O. S. 222; 16 J. P. 745.

2538. — Engagement of actor.—A., the manager of a theatre, by letter, proposes to B., an actor, an engagement at £2 per week, determinable by a month's notice. B. performs under this proposal. Notice is given by letter to B. to determine the employment, unless B. will consent to a reduction of salary. In a third letter, A. writes, "I have received your letter, & upon reconsideration, will give you the same terms, £2 for the summer season":—Held: the first & third letters contained merely proposals, & as no agreement was constituted between the parties until those proposals had been expressly accepted, or tacitly acquiesced in, by B., the correspondence was admissible in evidence without an agreement stamp.—HUDSPETH v. YARNOLD (1850), 9 C. B. 625; 19 L. J. C. P. 321; 15 L. T. O. S. 227; 14 Jur. 578; 137 E. R. 1036.

H. Documents fulfilling Two Objects.

2539. Stamp not required for one object—Document only provable as a whole—Inadmissible.—

—An unstamped draft drawn on "A. B. brick-layer" is not within the exception of 23 Geo. 3, c. 49, s. 4, in favour of drafts drawn on persons acting as bankers within ten miles of the place where the draft is drawn. If at the bottom of such a draft there be an acknowledgment of the drawee that a third person paid for him, that acknowledgment cannot be received in evidence.—CASTLEMAN v. RAY (1801), 2 Bos. & P. 383; 126 E. R. 1340.

2540. — Stamp requisite but not affixed for other object—Admissible to prove non-dubitable object only—Receipt & agreed statement of accounts.—MATHESON v. ROSS, No. 2477, ante.

2541. — — — — — Assent of creditor & power of attorney.—The assent of creditors to a deed under Bkpcy. Act, 1861 (c. 134), s. 192, may be given before the deed is executed or even prepared; all that is necessary is that the deed when drawn up should substantially correspond with the terms of the deed specified in the assent.

The assent is not rendered invalid by the mere fact that the document containing it also professes to empower a third person to execute the deed for the creditor, & is not stamped as a power of attorney.—RUTTY v. BENTHALL (1867), L. R. 2 C. P. 488; 36 L. J. C. P. 194; 16 L. T. 287; 15 W. R. 744.

(2) It is for the objector to a copy, even if a charterparty, on the ground that the original was not stamped, to make out that fact; at all events, very slight evidence to the contrary will be sufficient to rebut the objection, & a memorandum on the charter "the brokers hold the original stamped," is sufficient.—SMITH v. In an action against an attorney for negligence respecting a reference of an action for breach of promise of marriage, brought by S. against the present pltf., in which he was attorney for the present pltf., it appeared that there were two parts of the agreement to refer, one signed by S.'s attorney, unstamped, which was in the possession of the present deft., the other signed by the present deft. as attorney for the present pltf., & in the hands of S.'s attorney. The latter had been stamped within twenty one days after its execution, & the expense of the stamping, & part of the expense of the making of it, had been paid by the present pltf., the rest being taxed off. The part in the hands of the present deft. being called for & produced under a notice to produce, being unstamped, could not be read in evidence:—Held: (1) the present pltf. was entitled to have the stamped part of the agreement produced by S.'s attorney, although S. had desired her attorney not to produce it; (2) S.'s attorney was not bound to produce letters written to him by present deft., as attorney for present pltf., he having stated that he was desired by S. not to produce them; (3) if letters written by S.'s attorney to present deft. were not produced when called for under a notice to produce, S.'s attorney was bound to give secondary evidence of their contents, although desired by S. not to do so.—HIGGS v. TAYLOR (1843), 1 Car. & Kir. 85, N. P.

The letters of administration were not stamped until Mar. 1863:—Held: deft. could not object to the admissibility of the letters of administration in evidence, on the ground that they had not been stamped within six months after discovery of the mistake in omitting to get them stamped, & the penalty had not been paid, in pursuance of Stamp Act, 1815 (c. 184), s. 43.—*LACEY v. Sect. 10.—Stamps: Sub-sect. 6, A. & B.; sub-sect. 7, A. & B.]

SUB-SECT. 6. —PRESUMPTION AS TO STAMPING

A. Lost or Destroyed Documents.

2571. Presumed properly stamped—Presumption rebuttable.]—The burden of proving an instrument to be unstamped lies, in the first instance, on the party who objects to its production on the ground that it is unstamped. Where there is no evidence on either side it will be presumed to have been stamped. But when once satisfactory evidence has been given that at a particular time the instrument was unstamped, there is an end of any presumption of law in favour of its having been stamped, the onus of proof is shifted, & the party who relies on the instrument must prove it to have been duly stamped.—MARINE INVESTMENT CO. v. HAVIDSIDE (1872), L. R. 5 H. L. 624; 42 L. J. Ch. 173, H. L.

2572. — Though no record in stamp office—Indenture of apprenticeship.]—The ct. presumed that an indenture of apprenticeship executed thirty years before, & under which the apprentice had regularly served his time for seven years, when the indenture was given up to him, & proved to be lost, & when the parish in which he was settled under such indenture had relieved him for the last twelve years, was properly stamped in proportion to the apprentice fee of £12 received by the master; although the Deputy Register & Comptroller of the Stamp Duties proved that it did not appear in the office that any such indenture had been stamped or enrolled during that period.—R. v. LONG BUCKBY (INHABITANTS) (1805), 7 East, 45; 3 Smith, K. B. 92; 103 E. R. 18.

2573. — Order for payment of money.]—Deft., being indebted to plff. in £150, & being employed by T. to perform works for which he was receiving a percentage, wrote an order to T. to pay plff. £150 out of the first moneys due to deft. Afterwards, being indebted to B. in £997, he executed a deed reciting the above facts, assigning & transferring to B. such sums as then were or should become due to him, deft., from T., in trust, first to pay plff. in £150, & secondly, to retain the residue towards payment of the £997; with covenants that he would not receive the money, nor revoke, etc., that he had right to assign, had not incumbered, & for further assurance. Deft. afterwards received £150 from T.; & plff. sued him for money had & received, & on an account stated:—Held: (1) plff. was entitled to give secondary evidence of the order, upon proof of a bond fide search for the original among plff.'s papers only.

(2) Such secondary evidence was furnished by a paper, admitted by deft.'s attorney to be a true copy of an affidavit sworn, but not filed, by deft. in proceedings against another party, such paper stating the order to have been written by deft., & setting it out, though no evidence was given that the attorney had compared the paper with the original affidavit or order. (3) On such secondary evidence it must be presumed that the order was properly stamped.—POOLEY v. GOODWIN (1835), 4 Ad. & El. 94; 1 Har. & W. 567; 5 Nev. & M. K. B. 466; 111 E. R. 722.

2574. —.]—HART v. HART, No. 2020, ante.

2575. Document proved at one time unstamped—Presumed to continue unstamped.]—Where proof is given of a loss of a written instrument by a document which itself shows that such instrument was originally insufficiently stamped the ct. will not presume that the instrument was ever properly stamped, nor admit ordinary secondary evidence of its contents. But the ct. received as secondary evidence a draft of such written instrument produced at the hearing, with such a stamp as the instrument itself required, although the instrument appeared to have been duly lost by the party sought to be charged, & was not proved to have been fraudulently destroyed by him.—BLAIR v. ORMOND (1847), 1 De G. & Sm. 428; 9 L. T. O. S. 431; 11 Jur. 665; 63 E. R. 1134; subsequent proceedings (1850), 14 Q. B. 732, Ex. Ch.

*Annotation:—Refd. Arbor v. Fussell (1862), 11 W. R. 26.

2576. — — — — — Presumption rebuttable.]—It lies upon the party objecting to secondary evidence of the contents of a lost document on the ground of the want of a stamp, to show that it was not stamped. If it be shown that at one time it was unstamped, that fact by itself will raise the presumption that it continued without a stamp. But where it appeared that a charterparty, at the time of its execution, was unstamped, & within the fourteen days allowed by the 5 & 6 Vict. (c. 79), s. 21, for stamping such instrument it was taken to the district stamp office at C., & the duty & postage paid, in order that it might be sent to London to be stamped, & the clerk to whom it was delivered proved that he sent to London all documents left with him for that purpose; the clerks in London said they were unable to say whether such a document was or was not returned, but if it was, it would be returned, in the usual course, to the district office in the country; & the clerk there could not say whether it was returned or not, but, on search being made for it, no trace of it could be discovered:—Held: the evidence left it altogether uncertain whether the document was stamped or not; the presumption of its being unstamped was done away with; & the secondary evidence was admissible.—CLOSMADUEC v. CARREL (1856), 18 C. B. 36; 25 L. J. C. P. 216; 27 L. T. O. S. 135; 2 Jur. N. S. 474; 4 W. R. 547; 139 E. R. 1276.

B. Documents not produced after Notice

2578. Presumed properly stamped—Against party refusing to produce—Presumption rebuttable.]—Against a party who refuses, after notice, to produce an agreement it is to be presumed that it is stamped. But the party refusing is at liberty to prove the contrary.—CRISP v. ANDERSON (1815), 1 Stark. 35, N. P.

2579. — — — — — Evidence that original unstamped.]—Upon deft.'s refusal, after notice, to produce at the trial the original of an agreement on which plff. relied, a witness for plff. produced an unstamped copy; but, on his cross-examination, he stated that the original agreement was not stamped at the time it was executed & acted upon; & it appeared that pltf.'s attorney had had inspection of the original shortly before the action:—Held: the presumption of the document's being regularly stamped, which would have arisen from deft.'s refusal to produce it, being thus rebutted, the copy was properly rejected.—CROWTHER v. SOLOMONS (1848), 6 C. B. 758; 18 L. J. C. P. 92; 13 J. P. 218; 136 E. R. 1446.

SUB-SECT. 7.—STAMP OBJECTIONS.

A. In General.

2581. Objection to counterpart—By party executing it—Insufficient stamp on original.]—A lessee, who executes the counterpart of a lease, cannot dispute its admissibility in evidence, or impeach its validity, upon the ground of the original not being properly stamped.—PAUL v. MEEK (1828), 2 Y. & J. 116.

Annotation:—Consd. Rankin v. Hamilton (1850), 15 Q. B. 187.

2584. Substantiating objection—All necessary facts to be proved.]—On a stamp objection, the party who makes it is bound to prove all the facts necessary to constitute the objection a good one (ERLE, J.).—R. v. WILLIAMS (1845), 5 L. T. O. S. 433; 1 Cox, C. C. 234.

2585. Objection not raised by party—Whether all objection thereby precluded.]—Where the attorneys on both sides enter into an agreement to admit a copy of a document, without any objections thereto:—Held: such admission obviated the necessity of proving the execution of the original document by the attesting witness, & it was not confined to the answer of objections to the stamp.—HARTLEY v. BOSSOM (1849), 14 L. T. O. S. 209, N. P.

2586. ————]—Function of court to object.]—An admission of a document by a party does not shut out a stamp objection.

It was formerly the practice for a judge at Nisi Prius not to inquire into matters which were admitted on both sides, but Lord Campbell has decided such a course to be wrong. I must therefore have the fact of the sale proved in the regular way before pltf. can be entitled to claim his commission from deft. & I am bound, sitting here, to see that the Queen's revenue is not defrauded (MARTIN, B.).—HUMPHREYS v. DUDDING (1861), 2 F. & F. 546, N. P.

2587. ————.]—A case was stated for the opinion of the ct. in which the question was whether pltf. were entitled to recover from defts. a sum due on an alleged contract of insurance. It appeared that no stamped policy had been issued, & that the covering note or memorandum of insurance was also unstamped. For the purposes of the case, however, the parties agreed that a valid policy should be deemed to have been executed in defts.' ordinary form, in accordance with the covering note. The ct. ordered the case to be struck out, on the ground that they could not hear it without sanctioning what amounted to an evasion of the stamp laws.—NIXON v. ALBION MARINE INSURANCE CO. (1867), L. R. 2 Exch. 338; 36 L. J. Ex. 180; 16 L. T. 568; 15 W. R. 964.

2590. ————.]—The objection to the admissibility of a document in evidence for want of a stamp ought to be taken at the earliest possible moment. Where, therefore, pltf., who were suing as exors., had put in evidence probate of the will of their testator, & the same had been read without objection:—Held: deft. could not afterwards, by giving extrinsic evidence of the value of the estate, object to the admissibility of the probate for want of a sufficient stamp.—ROBINSON v. VERNON (LORD) (1860), 7 C. B. N. S. 231; 29 L. J. C. P. 310; 7 Jur. N. S. 146; 141 E. R. 804.

2592. ————]—Though other party has not seen it.—A written paper being offered in evidence by pltf., on a trial, deft.'s counsel desired to see it. Before it was handed to him, it was laid before the judge, & afterwards, while counsel's attention was accidentally diverted, & before the paper was handed to him, it was read in evidence. The judge at Nisi Prius held that the counsel could not afterwards object to the want of a stamp, & pltf. having obtained a verdict, this ct. refused to grant a rule nisi for a new trial, on counsel's statement of the above facts.—FOSS v. WAGNER (1834), 7 Ad. & El. 116, n.; 112 E. R. 414.

2593. ————]—Agreement relied on as a lease.]—A memorandum of agreement had only an agreement stamp. On the trial of an ejectment, it was given in evidence as an agreement. Counsel producing it were afterwards obliged, during the trial, to rely upon it as a lease. No objection was then or previously taken to the stamp. On argument in banc, as to the operation of the document, the want of a proper stamp was urged:

SUB-SECT. 3.—BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS.

2640. Proceedings in bankruptcy—Admissibility —To prove party a bankrupt.—Where debt. pleads bkpcy., & pltf. relies on debt. having been bkpt. before, it is sufficient proof of the first bkpcy., to produce the proceedings, & to show that debt. submitted to that commission.—GREGORY v. MERTON (1800), 3 Esp. 195, N. P.

2641. — In Irish courts—Although proceedings superseded.—(1) The proceedings under a commission of bkpcy., superseded, ordered to be produced at the hearing of a cause in the Ct. of Ch. in Ireland, with a view to evidence from bkpt.'s examination. But not of course.

(2) Papers of record in another ct. of justice may be used at the hearing of a cause in the Ct. of Ch., saving just exceptions.—Ex p. BERNAL (1805), 11 Ves. 557; 32 E. R. 1204, L. C.

2642. — Evidence of facts stated therein.—Notwithstanding there has been no notice to dispute the commission, act of bkpcy., etc., under 46 Geo. 3, 1806 (c. 135), s. 10, the proceedings are not conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated; but the ct. is still to form a judgment upon them, whether they prove an act of bkpcy. or not.—BROWN v. FORRESTALL (1816), Holt, N. P. 190, N. P.

— See, further, BANKRUPTCY, Vol. V., pp. 988, 989, Nos. 8084–8086.

2643. Receiving order—Registrar's decision—Admissibility—In action for malicious presentation of petition.—The "full written judgment" of a registrar whose order refused resp.'s petition of sequestration against the appellant was rightly held to be inadmissible in evidence in an action against resp. for having maliciously presented his petition. Resp. was bound by the registrar's discretion as to making or refusing the order, not by his opinion upon points which he had no jurisdiction to determine.—KING v. HENDERSON, [1898] A. C. 720; 67 L. J. P. C. 134; 79 L. T. 37;

2644. Adjudication—Admissibility—To prove bankruptcy.—Where bkpcy. is pleaded, the date of the commission, if it is subsequent to the date of the debt sued for, shall be sufficient for defendant to rely on, at least sufficient to entitle debt. to call on pltf. to prove an antecedent act of bkpcy. But when the proceedings are produced, the act of bkpcy. found under the proceedings shall be sufficient for pltf., without proof of an actual act of bkpcy.—PEARSON v. FLETCHER (1803), 5 Esp. 90, N. P.

2645. — To prove complicity—In fraudulent proceedings.—On a bill of exceptions, it appeared that pltf. had tendered in evidence an adjudication of the Insolvent Ct., discharging F., after he had been in custody for one year, & had proved that immediately afterwards he was allowed to go free by debt., who was his only detaining creditor. Debt.'s counsel offered to admit that such an order was made, but objected to its being read. The judge ruled that it might be read; to which debt. excepted. It was read; & it stated the detainer for a year to be on the ground that the warrant of attorney was a fraudulent preference:—Held: the adjudication was admissible, not as evidence of the truth of the ground on which it purported to be made, but because that adjudication, followed by the immediate discharge of F., was evidence of debt.'s complicity with F., & pltf. was not bound to take debt.'s admission of its effect.—BILLITER v. 2646. Petition & schedule—Admissibility of copy—To prove admission of debt.—(1) Where debt. had applied for relief to a comr. of bkpcy. under Judgments Act, 1835 (c. 110), s. 105, & filed a schedule & petition, including a debt due to pltf., but the proceedings were abandoned on its appearing that the debts exceeded £300:—Held: on an action brought to recover a debt for goods sold & delivered included in the schedule that a copy thereof was evidence to prove an admission of that debt by debt.

(2) Semble: the schedule & petition were admissible though the rest of the proceedings were not produced.—GREEN v. BALLS (1848), 11 L. T. O. S. 48.

2647. — Evidence of act of bankruptcy.—On an indictment against a bkpt. under 12 & 13 Vict. c. 108, s. 263, it is necessary for the prosecution to prove, not only the petition to & adjudication by the Ct. of Bkpcy., but also the Order.—An award was not made within the time specified in the original order, but it recited a further order extending the time:—Held: the original of this further order being in possession of defts., the award was sufficient secondary evidence of it.—WRIGHT v. WINNIPEG CITY (1886), 3 Man. L. R. 349; on appeal, 4 Man. L. R. 46.—CAN.

PART IV. SECT. 11, SUB-SECT. 3.
c. Examination—Admissibility.—An examination of a judgment debtor cannot be given in evidence against a third party, even an alleged preliminary matters, viz. petitioning creditor's debt, the trading & the act of bankruptcy. The act of bkpcy. relied upon being the filing of a petition in the Ct. for Relief of Insolvent Debtors, a copy of the petition, certified as required by sect. 239 of the above statute, was put in evidence, but there was no proof of the date of the filing except the indorsement at the back of the petition:—Held: such indorsement was no evidence of the date of the filing of the petition, & therefore no evidence of the act of bkpcy.—R. v. LANDS (alias WHITE) (1855), Dears. C. C. 567; 25 L. J. M. C. 14; 19 J. P. 758; 1 Jur. N. S. 1176; 4 W. R. 88; 7 Cox, C. C. 89, C. C. R.

2648. Accounts of bankrupt—Delivered by commissioners—Evidence of solvency at particular time.—(1) Where the question is as to the solvency of a party at a particular time, the general result as collected from sufficient sources may be given in evidence; & semble: the accounts rendered by bkpt. of his affairs to the comrs. are competent sources.

(2) Semble: a letter written by an attorney to his client, & produced with the client's signature indorsed upon it, is evidence against the client.—MEYER v. SEFTON (1817), 2 Stark. 274, N. P.

2649. Examination—Admissibility—Must first be proved.—(1) An order had been obtained to read (inter alia) the examinations of M. L., taken before the comrs. under T. L.'s bkpcy.:—Held: they could not be read, unless proved in the cause, that there were such examinations taken before the comrs.; for the proceedings in a commission of bkpcy. against T. were, as to M., res inter alios acta.

(2) Where one debt. is charged with a fraud, his deposition cannot be read for another debt., as it may tend to excuse him with regard to his own costs.—EADE v. LINGOOD (1747), 1 Atk. 203; 26 E. R. 132, L. C.

2650. ——— Although improperly obtained.—Although a person has been improperly examined before comrs. of bkpt. upon a subject unconnected with the interests of the bkpt. estate, with a view to procure evidence in an action depending against him, the examination may be used as evidence by plff. at the trial of the action, & the judge at Nisi Prius cannot inquire into the abuse of the authority of the Great Seal by which the examination was obtained.—*STOCKFLETH v. 2651. ——— To show knowledge of bankrupt's insolvency.—A. takes B.'s goods in execution after an act of bkpcy. committed by B., & assigns them to C. A.'s examination taken under the commission subsequently to the assignment cannot be read in an action by the assignees against C. in order to show A.'s knowledge of B.'s insolvency at the time of the execution. Semble: an examination taken previously to the assignment would have been admissible.—DEADY v. HARRISON (1815), 1 Stark. 60, N. P.

2652. ——— Where extracts of accounts used in evidence.—If a person who has numerous dealings with a bkpt., on being examined before the comrs., does not bring his books with him, but, while under examination, consents that the accountant to the commission shall make extracts from them; these extracts cannot be used as evidence against him, without also reading his examination.—YATES v. CARNSEW (1828), 3 C. & P. 99, N. P.

2653. ——— Action by assignees against examinees—Compulsory examination.—Examinations of parties before comrs. of bkpt., are evidence in actions against them by the assignees, unless such examinations were obtained by imposition, or under duress.—ROBSON v. ALEXANDER (1828), 1 Moo. & P. 448; 6 L. J. O. S. C. P. 111.

2654. ————Where a party, examined before comrs. of bkpt., admitted that he had received a sum of money on account of the bkpt. after an Act of bkpcy., but not that it was a subsisting debt:—Held: this was not evidence sufficient to support a count on an account stated with the assignees. Qu.: whether an admission obtained by such compulsory examination can be used as evidence in such an action.—TUCKER v. BARROW (1828), 7 B. & C. 623; 3 C. & P. 85; 1 Man. & Ry. K. B. 518; 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 121; 108 E. R. 855; previous proceedings (1827), Mood. & M. 137, N. P.

2655. Depositions — Admissibility — In action against petitioning creditor.—Depositions made by a witness sent by petitioning creditor to prove an act of bkpcy. before the comrs., are admissible in evidence against petitioning creditor in any subsequent action against him, although the witness is still living.—GARDNER v. MOULT (1839), 10 Ad. & El. 404; 2 Per. & Dav. 403; 8 L. J. Q. B. 270; 3 Jur. 1190; 113 E. R. 178.

On this last occasion, A. swore that he had always given the same account of the transaction:—Held: the record of B.'s conviction on the information, in which A.'s evidence before the magistrates was set out, was not legal evidence to contradict A. by showing that he had given a different account of the transaction when first examined.—*R. v. Pltf. put in evidence the warrant under which he was arrested, reciting that he had been convicted before deft. of maliciously destroying trees as stated in the plea, & was adjudged to be imprisoned for twenty days, & he proved his imprisonment under the warrant, & that he had been discharged on habeas corpus; but the reason for the discharge was not shown. Deft. called no evidence:—Held: the recital being evidence for deft. of a conviction, pltf. was bound to prove either that there was no such conviction, or that it was a matter beyond the justice's jurisdiction.—WARD v. outhouse (1882), 22 N. 2684. ———.]—Upon the trial of an indictment against parish A. for the non-repair of a highway, it appeared that A. had always repaired the road in question, which passed over waste ground in the parish of B., & connected together two separate portions of A. In 1785, the inhabitants of A. submitted to an indictment for non-repair of the same road, & paid a fine. In 1788, inclosure comrs. acting under the authority of a statute for inclosing the commons, moors, & waste grounds within the parish of B., made an award, whereby they set out the road in question as situate in B. and to be repaired by B. After the award, as before, the inhabitants of A. continued to repair:—Held: the former conviction was conclusive evidence against A. that the road was situate in that parish.—R. v. NETHER HALLAM (INHABITANTS) (1854), 3 C. L. R. 94; 24 L. T. O. S. 109; 19 J. P. 165; 6 Cox, C. C. 435.

But the condemnation of the yarn, unless the parties had a search warrant, will not justify the entering of a house.

If yarn of a description liable to be condemned were found in the house of pltf., magistrates have jurisdiction to condemn it under the statute, & to convict pltf., although the yarn was not found on the execution of a search warrant previously granted; &, in an action by pltf. for taking it, the conviction is evidence for the defence, although it is founded on the evidence of one of defts.—DAVIS v. There was evidence that pltf. & those under whom he claimed, had been constantly in the habit of drawing off the water to irrigate his close, & that the owners of the watercourse resisted it. On one occasion, when pltf.'s servant drew off the water, he was summoned before a justice for so doing; pltf.'s son by his direction attended & defended the servant, & paid a fine of 1s. The conviction was under a local Act, from which there was a power of appeal. Pltf. did not appeal. The conviction was tendered in evidence & rejected:—Held: the evidence was improperly rejected, as the conviction, unappealed against, was, in the circumstances, evidence of an acknowledgment by pltf. that the usage, to draw off the water for irrigation, was not as of right.—EATON v. 2718. Right to tithes—Decree for payment of tithes.]—An old decree for the payment of tithes is evidence of a vicar's right, though no endowment can be shown, nor any proof of payment in pursuance of that decree.—BERKLEY v. FOX (1735), 3 Bro. Parl. Cas. 619; 1 E. R. 1535, H. L.

2719. Revocation of probate—Decree of Prerogative court—Contained in assignment book.]—R. v. RAMSBOTTOM (1787), 1 Leach, 25, n.

2720. Existence of decree.]—BLOWER v. HOLLIS, No. 2696, ante.

2721. Identity of parties—If decree recites bill & answer.]—A decretal order in chancery, reciting the substance of the bill & answer, is admissible, on proof of pedigree, to establish the identity of parties to the suit. But an answer alone, though sworn but not filed, is not admissible.—WHARTON PEERAGE CASE (1845), 12 Cl. & Fin. 295; 8 E. R. 1419, H. L.

2722. Adultery—Divorce decree.]—On a petition by a wife for dissolution of her marriage on the ground of adultery coupled with desertion, the decree in a previous suit in which her husband had been co-respondent was produced. This decree stated that the jury found that resp. had been guilty of adultery with the co-respondent, & that decreed:—Held: the original entry in the book kept by the registrar at the sessions, was not primary evidence of the decree.—DONAGH v. BERGIN (1842), Arn. M. & O. 284.—IR.

2716 ii. ———.]—The only evidence that a preclusion decree had been passed was a reference to a copy of the decree contained in a judgment passed in another suit, & a statement by C., who was dead, that the mtge. had been foreclosed. The lower cts. held that the reference in the above-mentioned judgment to the copy of the foreclosure-decree was sufficient evidence of the original decree:—Held: there was no legal evidence that the mtge. had been foreclosed.—KANAYALAL v. PYARABAI (1882), 1 L. R. 7 Bom. 139.—IND.*

p. Quarter sessions decree.]—The primary evidence of a quarter sessions' decree is the decree itself, signed by the assistant barrister; the clerk of the peace's book is good secondary evidence of the decree.—ALCOCK v. LARKIN (1842), Long, & T. 666.—IR.*

q. Examination of assessor.]—In a complaint for setting up a public show without the permission of the magistrates:—Held: the assessor of the ct., who was also deputy town-clerk, could be competently examined as a witness to prove the refusal of the magistrates to sanction the setting up of the show.—PATRICK v. WOOD (1905), 8 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 4; 43 Sc. L. R. 46; 13 S. L. T. 520.—SCOT.*

PART IV. SECT. 11, SUB-SECT. 5.—C.

r. Adultery—Decree in suit for alimony.]—Upon an application alleging that the wife had been living apart from her husband, petitioner, for two years in consequence of her adulterous conduct, resp. denied the adultery charged. The petitioner produced as evidence the decree in a suit for alimony, in which he had set up her adultery as a defence. The decree dismissed the bill, & did not state the ground of dismissal:—Held: such decree was not sufficient, & the application was refused.—Mc CAMPBELL (1878), 25 Gr. 480.—CAN.*

s. Settlement of estate—Probate decree.]—The real estate of the intestate was partitioned by comrs. appointed under Probate Act, who, by their report, left a certain portion of the land undivided. This partition was confirmed by order of the ct., the estate having been previously settled by decree of the Judge of Probate, which was in evidence. Afterwards, H., husband of one of the heirs of intestate, petitioned the Judge of Probate for a partition of the undivided portion: & a large body of evidence of possession was put in on both sides, the whole of which this ct. held to be futile & unnecessary, as there was no ground for sustaining any possession in either party that could influence the decision. The Judge of Probate dismissed the petition on the ground that he had no power to settle disputed questions of title. On appeal to the Judge in Equity this decision was overruled, & the Judge of Probate directed to proceed with the cause, which he did, & dismissed the petition on the merits. Both parties having appealed:—Held: the final decree above referred to was evidence of the final settlement of the estate by the Judge of Probate.—Re SIMPSON'S ESTATE (1878), 12 N. S. R. (3 R. & C.) 357.—CAN.

u. Ejectment—Partition decree.]—A decree of partition is evidence in an action of ejectment to show that the land in dispute, formerly part of an undivided estate, had been assigned as the separate property of plff. —DOE v. ESTEY (1857), 3 All. 489.—CAN.*

a. Suit for rent arrears—Decree in previous suit.]—In a suit for arrears of rent decrees in summary suits against deft. for rent for years subsequent to those in respect of which the rent is claimed are no evidence for such rent being due; but such decree is prima facie evidence in support of a claim for rent for the next ensuing year.—AFSUROODDEEN v. SHOROOMHEE BULA DABEE (1863), Marsh. 558; 2 Hay, 664.—IND.*

b. ———.]—A decree for rent in a suit under Act X. of 1859 against deft., an intervenor which has remained unexecuted for more than three years, is not, in a subsequent suit, admissible in evidence to show that deft. had not, during a period subsequent to the decree, been in bona fide receipt of the rent.—RAM SUNDER TEWARI v. SRIMUNT DEWASI (1868), 14 B. L. R. 371, n.; 10 W. R. 215.—IND.*

c. ———.]—A decree for rent is admissible in evidence against deft. to prove the rate of rent he was liable to pay, although the decree has not been executed for three years, & has therefore become barred under the law of limitation.—BEECHUNDER MANICK BAHADOOR (MAHARAJAH) v. RAMKISHEN SHAW (1874), 14 B. L. R. 370; 23 W. R. 128.—IND.

d. ———.]—Where plff. sued deft. for a year's rent at same rate which had been decreed to him for the previous year in a suit which he had brought against same deft. for rent of same property, & relied upon the former decree, which had been obtained ex p. as evidence of the rent due to him from deft.:—Held: the decree in the first suit determined the amount of rent due from deft. to plff.—BIRCHUNDER MANICKYA v. HURRISH CHUNDER DASS (1878), 1 L. R. 3 Cal. 383.—IND.*

e. ———.]—In a suit for arrears of rent of a half share of land, plffs. relied upon an ex p. decree for rent at a certain rate, which they had obtained against the tenants of this share. Defts. relied upon a subsequent decree in a contested suit by plffs., against the tenants of the other half share, in which a lower rate of rent had been given. No other evidence than the decrees was produced on either side. It did not appear whether the ex p. decree had ever been executed:—Held: it was open to defts. to dispute the rate of rent claimed.—BHUGRATHI PATONI v. RAM LOCHUN DEB (1882), 1 L. R. 8 Cal. 275.—IND.*

f. ———.]—Decisions as to rates of rent in previous suits are admissible in a subsequent suit as evidence of local usage, though the parties in the subsequent suit were not parties to the previous suits.—EASWARA DASS v. PUNQAVANACHARI (1890), 1 L. R. 13 Mad. 361.—IND.*

g. Adoption.]—In a suit by C. against D., the widow of R., to set aside alienations by D. & to establish his title as reversionary heir to the property left by R. on the ground that R. had been adopted by J., deceased, & that, on the death of R. without issue, the right accrued to C. as an agnate of J., it was found that R. had been adopted by J., & that C. was reversionary heir. In a subsequent suit by K. against C. for a declaration of his right as heir to R. & for possession of the property on the ground that R. had not been adopted by, but took the property by gift from J.:—Held: the

he had been condemned in costs, but contained no finding by the jury that the co-respondent had been guilty of adultery with resp. :—Held: the decree was not by itself sufficient evidence of adultery against the husband.—RUCK v. RUCK, [1896] P. 152; 65 L. J. P. 87.

Annotation:—Distd. Eskell v. Eskell (1919), 63 Sol. Jo. 777.

2723. ———.]—A decree in a previous suit, finding as a fact the adultery of a party to that suit, will, on identity being established, be admissible as evidence of adultery against the same person as a party to a subsequent suit.—ESKELL v. ESKELL (1919), 88 L. J. P. 128; 63 Sol. Jo. 777.

2724. Marriage—Decree of restitution of conjugal rights.—Petitioner obtained a decree of restitution of conjugal rights. In that suit she gave formal proof of her marriage to resp. in Scotland:—Held: in a suit for divorce following on the suit for restitution of conjugal rights, it was unnecessary for petitioner to prove again the marriage in Scotland.—FREER v. FREER (1910), 27 T. L. R. 13; 51 Sol. Jo. 874.

SUB-SECT. 6.—DEPOSITIONS AND EXAMINATIONS.

A. Admissibility.

See Jud. Act, 1873 (c. 66), s. 100, R. S. C., Ord. 37, rr. 18, 24.

2725. Court where originally taken not competent—Court of Council.—Depositions taken in the Ct. of the Council at York in case of freehold refused in Ch.—R. & HUNSDON (LORD) v. ARUNDEL (COUNTESS) & HOWARD (LORD) (1616), Hob. 109; Moore, K. B. 823; 80 E. R. 258.

h. ———.]—In a suit for partition of family property, an adoption of the father of deft. by D. was put in issue, & to prove it, deft. tendered in evidence decrees in which the alleged adopted son was so described:—Held: the evidence of the adoption was admissible.—KRISHNANAMI AYYANGAR v. RAJAGOPALA AYYANGAR (1893), 1 L. R. 18 Mad. 73.—IND.

k. Identity of land—Decree in previous suit.—Pltf. sued for arrears of rent & for ejectment by reason of non-payment of rent. Deft. denied that the relation of landlord & tenant existed, & further said that the land now sued for was not the land then in dispute. In the first ct. the deputy collector, taking into consideration that deft. had admitted that he was partly in possession of the land, compared the proceedings in the former case with those in the present suit, & on this ground held that the lands in dispute were identical in both cases. When the case went up in appeal the judicial comr. decided that the previous decree was of very little weight, & as there was no independent evidence to show that the lands in dispute were the same in both cases, he dismissed the suit:—Held: the judicial comr. was wrong; if on comparison of the papers it was clear that the lands in dispute were the same, no independent evidence was necessary, & as to the former decree, so long as it remained undisputed it was binding between the

l. Evidence of dispossession—In suit for mesne profits.—A decree for possession made by a ct. under Specific Relief Act, 1877, in a suit beyond the pecuniary limit of that ct.'s jurisdiction, is some evidence of dispossession by defts. in a subsequent suit against same defts. to recover mesne profits.—JIAULLAH SHEIKH v. INU KHAN (1896), 1 L. R. 23 Cal. 693.—IND.

m. Where judgment debtor sues for contribution.—Where the amount of a decree has been recovered from one of two judgment debtors against whom it was jointly passed, & he sues the other judgment debtor for contribution, a prima facie case is made by the production of the judgment & the certificate of satisfaction. That judgment is conclusive as between the judgment debtors, in the sense that it will not be open to either of them to contend that the former suit should have been dismissed, or that one of the parties should not have been held liable to the decree holder therein, or that the amount decreed was excessive or based on principles erroneous on the face of the judgment.—SIVA PANDA v. JUUSTI PANDA (1901), 1 L. R. 25 Mad. 599.—IND.

n. Evidence of reputation—Matter of public interest.—Pltf. tendered in evidence certain proceedings in two possessory suits between pltf.'s ancestor & V., who each claimed to be entitled to a several fishery in that portion of the river in half of which the several fishery was claimed by pltf. in the present cause, including the minutes

(2) Depositions taken in Chancery may be read in evidence if the bill & answer be proved to be lost.—HAINES BARLEY'S CASE (1696), 5 Mod. Rep. 210; 87 E. R. 614.

2729. ———.]—Depositions in an old cause admitted, although neither bill, answer or decree could be found.—BYAM v. BOOTH (1816), 2 Price, 231; 3 Eag. & Y. 716; 146 E. R. 79.

2730. Where cause abated.—JOHNS v. STAFFORD (1719), Bunb. 50; 145 E. R. 592.

2731. Depositions in cross cause—Not relating to matter in original cause.—Evidence in the cross cause concerning the matters in issue in the original cause, not allowed to be read after a decree in that cause; otherwise as to depositions in the cross cause not relating to the matters put in issue in the original.

Where neither party examines witnesses in the original cause, the depositions of witnesses examined to the same matters put in issue by that of the decree, the original not having been found, whereby the ct. granted an injunction to quiet pltf.'s ancestor & V. in such possession as they had at the time of the filing of their respective bills:—Held: (1) the decree was evidence by way of reputation of the possession in fact of the several fishery at the time of the bills being filed; (2) the decree was admissible as evidence against the public, inasmuch as the possession in fact of a fishery in a tidal river, was a matter of public interest, although the particular matter in controversy was in which of two private individuals the possession was.—DEVONSHIRE (DUKE) v. NEILL (1877), 2 L. R. Ir. 132.—IR.

o. Right to estate.—In a reduction of a decree in foro relative to the right to an estate & the titles thereof:—Held: defender may produce the decree, & thereupon found on it as res judicata, & refuse to produce the titles till the decree is set aside.—MAULE v. MAULE (1827), 5 Sh. (Ct. of Sess.) 238.—SCOT.

cause may be read at the hearing of the cross-cause.—WILFORD v. BEASELEY (1747), 3 Atk. 501; 28 E. R. 1088.

2741 i. In action for malicious prosecution—Right of defendant to use own depositions.]—On the trial of an action for malicious prosecution, deft. tendered a deposition taken by a Justice of the peace in another matter for the purpose of showing that deft. was actuated by an indirect motive in instituting the proceedings:—Held: (1) the deposition was admissible to prove pltf. had, in deft.'s presence, stated something on oath which was calculated, & which by other evidence, was shown to have actuated deft. to take a particular course, & also which would be calculated to displace, in his mind, a belief in pltf.'s guilt; (2) as to what was said before the Justice the deposition was the best evidence.—MILLNER v. SANFORD (1893), 25 N. S. R. 227.—CAN.

s. Depositions on rehearing — Not used at original hearing.]—A party is entitled to have an order upon præcipe to prove via voce at the rehearing of a cause depositions which had not been used at the original hearing.—CORTON v. CORBY (circa, 1857), 1 Ch. Ch. 10.—CAN.

2740. Notes of magistrates' clerk—Regular deposition subsequently drawn up.]—In an action to recover back money paid by a banker on a cheque, & afterwards allowed to his customer, on a suggestion that the cheque had been forged; the question in such action being, whether the cheque in fact was a genuine instrument or not, the notes of the magistrate's clerk, of statements made by the customer on a charge against the person supposed to have forged the cheque, are receivable in evidence, though his deposition was afterwards regularly signed pursuant to the statute.—WILLIAMS v. WOODWARD (1830), 4 C. & P. 346, N. P.

2741. In action for malicious prosecution—Right of defendant to use own depositions.]—Where, in case for a malicious charge of felony, pltf. puts in, to prove a formal part of his case, deft.'s & another person's depositions before the magistrates, deft. has a right to use his own deposition as evidence in the cause, but not that of the other deponent.—JACKSON v. BULL & ALISON (1838), 2 Mood. & R. 170, N. P.; subsequent proceedings, 2 J. P. 695.

2742. Examination of witnesses in second cause not concluded.]—Deft. in one suit instituted another himself as pltf.; publication passed in the first cause, & was enlarged in the second, with the consent of pltf., without prejudice, however, to the writing before it was tendered.—BLOIS v. MIDLAND RY. CO. (1905), 39 N. S. R. 242.—CAN.

c. Taken at preliminary hearing.]—Where a deposition has been regularly taken down in writing by a magistrate at a preliminary hearing, & such deposition is available, that deposition is the best evidence of what the witness stated on that occasion.—R. v. PRASLOSKI (1910), 15 B. C. R. 29.—CAN.

d. — Statements not challenged.]—In the course of a preliminary inquiry, held under Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1863, to investigate into a collision, deft. co. being represented by their attorney, certain officers of deft. co. made certain statements on oath:—Held: the failure of the attorney of deft. co. to challenge the accuracy of these statements afforded a strong presumption that the imputations against deft. co. therein contained were correct, & the statements were admissible in evidence.—*ASIATIC STEAM NAVIGATION CO. v. q. ——The trial judge had made an order that, if a new trial should be granted by the Ct. of Appeal, then, in the event of either of plff.'s witnesses being out of the country, he should have the right to read the evidence such witnesses had given at the trial on the case coming up for trial again, & the ct. ordered this provision to be embodied in the judgment.—SCOTT v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. CO. (1909), 19 Man. L. Jt. 29.—CAN.

r. — Proof of absence.—Upon a prosecution for wounding with intent to murder, the deposition of C., taken before the police magistrate on the preliminary investigation, was read, upon the following proof that C. was absent from Canada: "C. is, to the best of my belief, in the United States. He was employed, about ten days ago as one of the crew on a steamer running between V. & an American port. He said when he left me he was going on board the steamer. The steamer has not been on that route since. She is running between two American ports".—Held: there was sufficient proof of absence from Canada.—R. v. PESCARO & JIM (1881), 1 B. C. R. pt. 2, 144.—CAN.

s. ——Evidence that the schooner, the deposition of whose captain is sought to be used, cleared from a Canadian port a week before the trial, & put to sea, is insufficient proof of the captain being out of Canada so as to admit his deposition taken on the preliminary examination.—R. v. MORGAN (1893), 2 B. C. R. 329.—CAN.

t. Witness living at a distance.—Where one of plff.'s witnesses lived at a distance, it was imposed as a condition that his evidence, given at the last trial, should be read from the judge's notes.—CONLEY v. LEE (1855), 12 U. C. R. 456.—CAN.

2815 i. Copies.—A copy of a deposition of a witness taken before a notary public in a foreign state, & certified by a justice of the peace in another state, the demanding state, to be a true copy of the deposition on file in his office.—Held: improperly admitted in evidence by the extradition judge, not being certified in the manner prescribed by Extradition Act, s. 17. The certificate must be given by some one who is in a position to certify that not only the copy but the original contains a true record of the testimony of the witness.—Re STAGGS (1912) 23 W. L. a. In reply to affidavits in answer —Inadmissible where no notice to defendant.—Held: on motion for an injunction against one deft., the cross-examination of another deft. on his answer was inadmissible in reply to the affidavits filed in answer to the motion, where deft. against whom plff. moved had no notice of the cross-examination, or of plff.'s intention to read the depositions on the motion.—CURTIS v. DALES (1866), 12 Gr. 244.—CAN.

b. Admissions as against defendant.—Held: the oral answers of deft. before a comr. under an order of the ct. were properly received against him as admissions.—COCHRAN v. CHIPMAN (1877), 2 R. & C. 254.—CAN.

c. To enable judge to decide case—Where evidence was taken before his predecessor.—A subordinate judge, having taken all the evidence in a suit before him, & having completed the hearing of the suit except for the arguments of counsel on both sides, was removed, & the case came on for hearing before his successor. The new subordinate judge took up the case from the point at which it had been left by his predecessor, & proceeded to judgment & decree.—Held: the subordinate judge might, in accordance with Civil Procedure Code, s. 191, have allowed the depositions which had been taken before his predecessor to be put in; & in neglecting to take this course, & in deciding the case upon materials which were never before him, his action was illegal, & the judgment & decree were nullities.—*JAGRAM DAS v. 2833. Conclusive—In all proceedings—Civil as well as criminal.—The rule, that a written deposition taken before a magistrate is the best evidence of the statement of the witness, is not confined to the proceeding in which the deposition is taken, but extends to all proceedings, civil as well as was already in evidence.—Held: where a deposition is regularly taken down in writing, & is available, the writing is the best evidence of the whole evidence of the witness of that occasion.—R. v. PRASHLOSKI (1910), 13 W. L. R. 298; 15 B. C. L. R. 29; 11 Can. Crim. Cas. 139.—CAN.

2831 ii. ——[—]—When a confession is made to a magistrate by an accused person during an inquiry held previously to the case being taken up by the committing officer, & by an officer acting merely as a recording officer, it must be recorded in strict accordance with Code of Criminal Procedure, ss. 122, 346. If the provisions of these sections have not been fully complied with by the recording officer, the ct. of session cannot take evidence that the accused person duly made the statement recorded; & in cases where evidence can be taken, a ct. of session is not at liberty to treat a deposition, sent up with the record & made by the recording officer before the committing officer, to the effect that the accused did in fact duly make before him the statement recorded, as evidence of that fact. In such case the recording officer must himself be called & examined by the ct. of sessions, except in cases in which the presence of the recording officer cannot be obtained without delay or expense which the ct. of session considers unreasonable.—NORSHAI MIRFI & RAM CHUNDER HALDAR v. 2843. Production of record.—In debt on a judgment, the declaration alleged that pltf. recovered a judgment against deft., “in the ct. of our lady the Queen, of her Bench here at Westminster, in the county of Middlesex.” Deft. pleaded “that there was not any record of the supposed recovery remaining in the said ct. of our lady the Queen, before the Queen herself at Westminster (named in the declaration the ct. of our lady the Queen of her Bench at Westminster), in manner & form as in the declaration alleged.” Pltf. replied, “that there was such a record of the recovery remaining in the said ct. of our lady the Queen of her Bench here, in manner & form as pltf. had in the declaration above alleged.”—Held: pltf. proved the affirmative of the issue, by the production of a record of a judgment recovered in this ct.—BRADLEY v. GRAY (1846), 3 C. B. 726; 16 L. J. C. P. 26; 8 L. T. O. S. 141; 136 E. R. 291.

minutes of the Supreme Ct., stating the reversal of the judgment of a justice of the peace on certiorari, is not evidence of such reversal, it being of itself a judgment which should be made up of record & proved accordingly.—

2847. — Memorandum of steward—Manorial court.—Trespass for breaking & entering pltf.'s dwelling-house. Deft. justified under a judgment recovered in a ct. baron, & a precept issued thereon. Replication, that there was not any memorandum of the proceedings, or of the supposed judgment, remaining in the ct. baron :—Held : the replication was bad, inasmuch as it put in issue an immaterial fact.

It is the duty of the steward to make up a statement of the proceedings as may give the necessary information to the superior ct. If he has no written memorandum of the proceedings he may supply the defect from his memory (HOLROYD, J.).—DYSON v. WOOD (1824), 3 B. & C. 419; 5 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 295; 2 Dow. & Ry. M. C. 500; 3 L. l. Parol evidence—Whether admissible.—In an action of damages for malicious arrest & imprisonment of pltf., under a capias, issued by a stipendiary magistrate in Nova Scotia, whose judgment, it was alleged, was reversed in appeal, oral evidence "that the decision of the magistrate was reversed" was held to be inadmissible to prove a final judgment.—*GUNN v. m. Certificate—From prothonotary of court.—In an action on a Nova Scotia judgment signed on Mar. 7, 1855, in pursuance of a judge's order setting aside deft.'s plea as frivolous, deft. produced a certificate from the prothonotary of the ct. entitled in the same cause, stating that judgment of non pros. for want of a replication was marked on Dec. 11, 1854 :—Held : in the absence of any record of such judgment, or of any evidence to show that "marking" was equivalent to "signing," there was not sufficient evidence of a judgment of non pros. to affect the validity of pltf.'s judgment.—DENSMON v. TAYLOR (1856), 3 All. 313.—CAN.

n. Original roll—Or exemplification.—Judgments may be proved at visi prius by producing the original roll, as well as by exemplification, but the clerk should not produce such roll without proper authority.—PATEISON v. TODD (1865), 24 U. C. R. 296.—CAN.

SUB-SECT. 8.—ORDERS.

A. Admissibility and Proof.

2859. Admissibility—Not if subject-matter different.—An order of sessions upon an appeal between two parishes respecting the settlement of pauper A. is not admissible upon the trial of an appeal touching the settlement of pauper B. his sister, on a suggestion that the point at issue was precisely the same in both appeals.—R. v. KNAPTOFT (INHABITANTS) (1824), 2 B. & C. 883; 4 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 469; 2 Dow. & Ry. M. C. 347; 2 Bott. 791; 107 E. R. 610.

Sect. 11.—Judicial proceedings: Sub-sect. 8, A.

For bill of costs—Order referring bill for taxation.]—Where an attorney, who is suing his client for his bill, obtains an order to refer the bill for taxation, that order is no evidence against debt.

If I had known that the order had been obtained by pltf., I should not have granted the rule nisi. The only ground on which I thought it was evidence was, that debt. by obtaining the order admitted his liability, but that was not the case. The whole question turns on whose the summons was to refer the bill for taxation. It was admitted here that it was pltf.'s; & I think that it was gross fraud to attempt to make the order thereon evidence against debt. (PATTESON, J.).—KING v. KYPE (1838), 1 Will. Woll. & H. 87.

2861. Proof—Copy—Order of justices—Original not produced after notice.]—R. v. KIRKBY STEPHEN (1770), Burr. S. C. 664; 2 Bott. 6th ed. 712.

2862. ——— Of entry in minute book—County court.]—The copy of the note of a county ct. judge's order entered by the clerk of the ct. in the book kept for that purpose under 9 & 10 Vict., c. 95, s. 111, is conclusive evidence of the order, & may not be contradicted by the entry made by the judge in his own minute book.—DEWS v. RILEY (1851), 11 C. B. 434; 2 L. M. & P. 544; Cox, M. & H. 523; 20 L. J. C. P. 264; 18 L. T. O. S. 155; 16 J. P. 39; 15 Jur. 1159; 138 E. R. 542.

—[Sec. further, Sect. 9, ante.]

2863. ——— Minute book of court.]—On appeal against an order of removal, in 1837, the appls., to prove an order of the sessions for the same county in 1824, discharging a former order of removal, produced the original sessions book, which was in paper, containing the orders & other proceedings of the ct., among which was the order of sessions now in question, made up & recorded after each session by the clerk of the peace from minutes taken by him in ct., which book he considered, & stated to be, the record itself. No other record was kept. The minutes of each session were headed with an entry containing the style & date of the sessions & the names of the justices in the usual form of a caption. The minute in question stated the subject of the appeal then brought, & the order made on hearing. The book was signed at the end of the proceedings of the session, "By the ct. John Charge, clerk of the peace":—Held: proper evidence of the order of sessions.—R. v. YEOVELEY (INHABITANTS) (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 806; 1 Per. & Dav. 60; 1 Will. Woll. & H. 614; 8 L. J. M. 2864. ———.]—An order of sessions was made for dismissing an appeal against a rate, & that appls., "upon service of the order or a true copy thereof, should pay resps. the sum of £91 9s. 10d. for their costs & charges by reason of the appeal." An indictment for disobeying this order stated, that a true copy of the order was, on, etc., served on defts., & that they then & there had notice of the order. On motion in arrest of judgment:—Held: (1) such statement was sufficient; (2) such allegation was sufficiently proved by proof of service of a copy of a formal document, containing the terms of the order drawn up from the minutes of the sessions, such document being shown to defts. at the time of service.—R. v. MORTLOCK (1845), 7 Q. B. 459; 1 New Mag. Cas. 329; 2 New Sess. Cas. 108; 14 L. J. M. C. 153; 5 L. T. O. S. 149; 9 J. P. 454; 9 Jur. 621; 115 E. R.

2866. ———.]—An order of the ct. of summary jurisdiction under Elementary Education Act, 1876 (c. 79), imposing a penalty on the parent of a child for non-compliance with a previous order for the attendance of the child at school, may be proved in subsequent proceedings by the minute books of the ct. containing an entry of the order, & it is unnecessary to produce a copy of the order signed by the clerk of the peace or other officer of the sessions.—LONDON SCHOOL BOARD v. HARVEY (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 451; 48 L. J. M. C. 130; 43 J. P. 731; 27 W. R. 783, D. C.

2867. ——— Admission & act of party.]—Pltf. was knocked off his cab by the furious driving of an omnibus of defts., for which one of the defts., drivers was summarily convicted under London Hackney Carriages Act, 1813 (c. 86), s. 28. Pltf. gave evidence upon the hearing but was not complainant. The magistrate asked him if £10 would compensate him for his injuries, & he said certainly not. The magistrate adjudged the payment of half this amount by the driver under the latter part of the sect., & pltf. accepted the money which was actually paid by defts. Pltf. brought this action for damages for the negligence of defts.' driver, & defts. pleaded as a bar thereto this award of the magistrate & pltf.'s acceptance of the amount. The action was tried in a county ct., & pltf. admitted the magistrate's adjudication & his own acceptance of the money, but no record of the conviction was produced. The county ct. judge considered this no sufficient evidence of the order; & that if it were, the order was no answer to the action. The jury found a verdict of £100:—Held: pltf.'s admission was sufficient evidence of the order, & by his acceptance of the money his claim for compensation had become res judicata, & could not be maintained.—WRIGHT v. LONDON OMNIBUS CO. (1877), 2869. Bastardy—Justices' order.]—Children born in wedlock are bastards if the husband had no access to his wife. The wife is not competent to prove that, but the order of the justices reciting that it so appeared on the examination of her & on other proof, this is sufficient. The ct. will presume that the other evidence was legal.—R. v. BEDELL (INHABITANTS) (1737), Andr. 8 ; Lee temp. Hard. 379 ; 2 Stra. 1076 ; Bull. N. P. 112 a ; 95 E. R. 273.

2870. ——— How far evidence.]—In ejectment by a person claiming as heir-at-law, the question in dispute was his legitimacy, & his mother being called on his behalf to prove her marriage with his father before his birth, she on cross-examination denied that she had previously applied to affiliate the child, or had ever been before the magistrates at all :—Held : a bastardy order against the father, made on the complaint of a female whose name answered to that of the witness, & in regard to a child of the same name as plff., was admissible in evidence, there being some circumstances to show the identity of the parties, if not as bearing directly on the question of legitimacy, or as evidence of all the facts set forth on the order, at all events for the purpose of contradiction, & to show the fact that she had been before the magistrates to affiliate the child.—WATSON v. LITTLE (1860), 5 H. & N. 472 ; 29 L. J. Ex. 267 ; 2 L. T. 223 ; 8 W. R. 420 ; 157 E. R. 1266.

2871. Circumstances attending receipt of dividends—Order in Chancery.]—In dower, the tenant pleaded, in May, 1833, that demandant had elected to receive an annuity in satisfaction of dower :—Held : (1) the plea was not supported by showing demandant's receipt of dividends in Sept. 1833 ; (2) an order made in a suit in Chancery between demandant, the tenant, & others, was admissible in evidence for demandant in dower, to show the circumstances under which the dividends were received.—SLATTER v. SLATTER (1834), 1 Bing. N. C. 259 ; 1 Scott, 82 ; 4 L. J. C. P. 25 ; 131 E. R. 1116.

2872. Death—Order of Lord Chancellor—Discharging committee of lunatic.]—An order by the Lord Chancellor, on the death of a lunatic tenant for life of a fund in ct., discharging her committee, to whom the dividends had been ordered to be paid, is no evidence in the Rolls Ct. of such death.

—BERRY v. USHER (1830), 4 Jur. 5.

2873. ——— Order under 6 Ann. c. 72.]—An order of ct. made under the above statute & declaring that a certain person ought to be deemed & taken to be dead according to the statute, is not conclusive proof of that person's death. Accordingly, where the life of A. was insured, & such an order was made by the ct. upon an affidavit by B., who was entitled to the immediate reversion in certain property expectant on A.'s death, & the assignees of the policy sought payment from the directors of the assurance co. on the ground that A.'s death was proved to the reasonable satisfaction of the directors by the above-mentioned order & affidavit :—Held : the directors were not unreasonable in requiring further evidence of A.'s death before paying the policy moneys to the assignees.—DOYLE v. CITY OF GLASGOW LIFE ASSURANCE CO. (1881), 53 L. J. Ch. 527 ; 50 L. T. 323 ; 48 J. P. 374 ; 32 W. R. 476.

2874. ——— Order by county court—Presuming death.]—In 1915 an action had been commenced in the county ct. for the administration to an estate which J. would have been entitled to administer if living, & after inquiries & advertisements, the judge made an order that J. must be presumed to have died on a specified date. On a motion in the Probate Div. of the High Ct. for leave to assume the death without further evidence, with the object of enabling appet. to obtain administration to the estate of J. :—Held : the order of the county ct. made after inquiry in a matter within its jurisdiction was sufficient evidence without further affidavits.—In the Goods of RISHTON (1921), 90 L. J. P. 374 ; 125 L. T. 863 ; 37 T. L. R. 798.

2875. Evidence of debt—Order in previous suit—Giving leave to prove for amount.]—An order made in one suit giving liberty to prove in another suit for an amount to be certified by the chief clerk, & a certificate made in pursuance of such order, are not alone sufficient to establish the debt in the other suit.—MICKLETHWAIT v. WINSTANLEY (1861), 5 New Rep. 201 ; 31 L. J. Ch. 281 ; 11 L. T. 582 ; 13 W. R. 210, L. J.

2876. Enrolment of rules of friendly society—Order of justices—Reciting fact of enrolment.]—An order of justices requiring the stewards of a benefit society to readmit A., who had been expelled, recited that it had appeared to the justices that the rules of the society had been enrolled at the quarter sessions. On the trial of an indictment against the stewards for disobeying such order :—Held : the recital was not evidence of the enrolment of the rules.—R. v. GILKES (1828), 8 B. & C.

relating to " disputes as to immovable property," are merely police orders made to prevent breaches of the peace, & decide no question of title. Such orders are admissible in evidence, on general principles as well as under Evidence Act, 1872, s. 13, to show the fact that such orders were made. This necessarily makes them evidence of the following facts appearing on the orders themselves, viz., who the parties to the dispute were ; what the land in dispute was ; & who was declared entitled to retain possession. DINOMONI CHOWDHURI v. BROJO MOHINI CHOWDHURI (1901), 1 L. R. 29 Calc. 187 ; 6 C. W. N. 386 ; L. R. 29 Ind. App. 21.—IND.

c. To prove quashing of conviction.]—To prove the quashing of a conviction on appeal to the quarter penalties under Customs (War) Powers Act, 1915, s. 5 (1) :—Held : it was not necessary for pursuers, in the absence of challenge, to produce or prove an order issued by them under statutory powers & founded on in the action.—LORD ADVOCATE v. VAN WEEL. [1917] S. C. 227 ; 54 Sc. L. R. 258.—SCOT.

2869 i. Bastardy—Justices' order—How far evidence.]—In a complaint before justices against the putative father for maintenance of an illegitimate child former orders made against the father for maintenance are evidence of his paternity in a subsequent proceeding, even though such orders are bad, & might have been quashed, & these former orders are an estoppel against the alleged father denying that he was the father.—HANLEY v. MCMASTERS (1889), 15 V. L. R. 322.—AUS.

2877. Whether conclusive of facts stated therein—Statement of failure to make award.]—On a dispute between the members of a friendly society, called "The Leeds Philanthropic Society," & A., whom they had expelled, the arbitrators appointed by the rules of the society made an award that A. should be expelled the society. A. thereupon made complaint to a justice of the peace under 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 40, s. 7, that he had been wrongfully expelled, & that arbitrators had been appointed who had neglected & refused to make any award; & two justices by their order, after reciting the above complaint, adjudged that "all & singular the allegations were true," & ordered that A. should be reinstated in the society:—Held: (1) the statement in the order that the arbitrators had neglected to make an award was not conclusive; but on motion to quash the order of justices, the circumstances under which the award was made might be gone into on affidavit.

There were contradictory affidavits as to whether the arbitrators wrongfully refused to hear evidence on the part of A.:—Held: (2) there being sufficient evidence to warrant the conclusion to which the justices had arrived, it was to be presumed that they were right as to the fact.—R. v. GRANT (1849), 14 Q. B. 43; 3 New Mag. Cas. 183; 4 New Sess. Cas. 13; 19 L. J. M. C. 59; 13 L. T. O. S. 301; 13 J. P. 408; 13 Jur. 1026; 117 E. R. 17. Annotations: As to (2) Expi. Bache v. SUB-SECT. 9.—PLEADINGS.

A. Admissibility.

2881. General rule.]—(1) Although, in general, pleadings in one suit cannot be used in another, as evidence of the truth of the allegations contained in them, yet, where a pleading is signed by the party, it will be regarded in the light of an admission, & as such it will be evidence against him not only with reference to a different subject matter, but in a suit maintained against a different opponent.

(2) An issue was sent to trial, whether A., pltf., was, at the respective dates of twenty documents, of weak mind; & whether B., deft., taking advantage of such weakness, procured A.'s signature to these documents, or any of them, by fraud or intimidation. At the trial of the issue, certain account-books kept by A. were tendered by his counsel, the purpose not being stated, but they seemed to have been used for an improper purpose. B.'s counsel objected that they were inadmissible generally; but the judge admitted them:—Held: the books were admissible, if properly used, under the issue, & as no objection had been taken to the summing up, it was to be presumed the judge directed the jury to make the proper use of them.—MARIANSKI v. (2) It is well settled that a bill in Chancery is no evidence of the facts stated in it, it is the mere statement of counsel. The answers are the declarations of strangers, which would not be admissible on a question of pedigree, which this was not; for the only question in the cause was one of identity. I hardly understand the ground of misdirection. It might be a prudent course on the part of the counsel not to put in the original register; but it was certainly a course open to observation, considering the extraordinary nature of the entry (PATFESON, J.).—*DOE d. 2944 i. Proceedings in one court—Admissibility in another.]—If the record of the acquittal of pltf. is produced at nisi prius, the ct. cannot inquire into the circumstances under which it has been brought forward; but it must be received in evidence, although no order was ever granted for the delivery of a copy of the indictment to pltf.—LUSTY v. MAGRATH (1842), 6 O. S. 340.—CAN.

2944 ii. —. —. —.]—To a plea of Stat. Limitations in an action on the case for slander, pltf. replied, under one of the exceptions in the Statute, that another action was brought in the ct. within due time for the said identical grievances, in which a verdict was given for pltf., but the judgment afterwards arrested propter defectum recordum, & that the present action was commenced within one year; deft. rejoined non tunc record.—Held: the replication was sufficiently proved by the production of a record in which the declaration contained substantially the same actionable words, although the venue was different, & material omissions in the innuendoes were supplied in the new action.—JEARDSLEY v. DIBBLEE (1843), 2 Kerr, 254.—CAN.

2944 iii. —. —. —.]—A notice of defence given under 13 Vict. c. 32, is not part of the nisi prius record, which may therefore be put in evidence without proving the notice, or accounting for its absence.—LAWTON v. ADAMS (1862), 5 All. 463.—CAN.

2944 iv. —. —. —.]—Pltf. brought an action for use & occupation. A record signed by the attorney & not authenticated by an officer of the ct., was tendered, which recited an ejectment suit, & was rejected.—Held: the record should have been received.—*JOSEPH v. 2944 v. —. —. —.]—On the trial of prisoner on an indictment charging him with receiving property which one M. had feloniously stolen, etc.:—Held: the record of the previous acquittal of M. formed no defence on the trial of this indictment, & was improperly received in evidence.—R. v. FERGUSON (1880), 20 N. B. R. 259.—CAN.

2944 vi. —. —. —.]—O. being agent of pltf. co., & having a quantity of stone consigned to him, sold it to deft. ostensibly as his own. Subsequently, the price of the stone, remaining unpaid, was garnished by a creditor of O., who, although he had notice of the garnishee proceedings, took no steps to have the money released from the attaching order, or to show before the judge that the money was due to the co. & not to him, & judgment was given against deft. as garnishee:—Held: evidence of the garnishee proceedings was admissible under the general issue.—WALLACE HUESTIS GREY STONE CO. v. FOXWELL (1880), 20 N. B. R. 68.—CAN.

2944 viii. —. —. —.]—In an action for malicious prosecution, pltf. sought but was not permitted to prove his acquittal before the county judge's criminal ct. of a charge of misdemeanour, by means of the production of the original record, signed by the county judge, under Speedy Trials Act, c. 175, & produced & verified by the clerk of the peace in whose custody it was, or else by being allowed to put in a copy thereof, certified by that officer.—Held: the evidence should have been admitted in either of the above two forms.—*O'HARA v. 2945. —. —. —.]—A., B. & C., partners in trade, together with D. as their surety, entered into a joint & several bond to their bankers, preparatory to the latter making further advances to the partnership firm. The bond was conditioned for the payment of £10,000 on demand, with interest from its date. At the date of the bond, there was a balance of £2,375 due to the bankers, which was discharged by subsequent payments; but, at the time of the bkpey. of A., B. & C., a much larger balance was due from them to the bankers than the sum secured by the bond. D., the surety, died; & in a creditor's suit brought by the bankers against his representatives, to which suit the assignees of A., B. & C. were also parties, it was found that bkpts. intended that the bond should be held by the bankers as a security for any general balance that should become due to them, but that the surety intended the bond to be a security only for the particular balance due to them at the date of the bond:—Seemle: the proceedings in the Chancery suit were admissible in evidence on this petition, the

P., a tenant of adjoining lands, for trespassing on the foreshore & taking seaweed therefrom. In that action, proof was given of exclusive acts of ownership over the foreshore by M. & his predecessors in title for above sixty years, but there was no positive evidence of a grant of it from the Crown. In 1873 T. & others, who were also adjacent tenants, proceeded to carry off the seaweed in assertion of an alleged public right, whereupon M.'s successors in title having filed a bill against them praying that pltf. might be declared entitled to the foreshore & seaweed, & be quieted in the exclusive possession & enjoyment thereof, & for the usual injunction:—Held: the record & judgment in the action of 1865 were properly receivable in evidence in the present suit.—*MULHOLLAND v. malicious prosecution on a charge of felony: a mere certificate of the facts, under the hand of the clerk of the peace for the county at the sessions for which pltf. was tried & acquitted, is insufficient.

I am of opinion that this is not receivable in evidence in support of the allegations set forth, namely, of pltf.'s trial & acquittal at the general quarter sessions, both of which it is absolutely necessary for him to make out in order to sustain that count. The question is whether this instrument is or is not a record of the proceedings at the trial. I do not think it is. It only amounts to a memorandum or certificate of the facts which would have been found on a record, but it is only a statement of the officer of the ct. & is not, as such, any legal proof or record of the trial, such as pltf. ought to produce, or an examined copy (BOSANQUET, J.).—JENNINGS v. 2993. Customary payment of tithes.]—An account of tithes in kind was decreed, notwithstanding evidence of payment of certain customary payments for upwards of a century, & evidence that numerous tiths had been filed by vicars, but had been subsequently abandoned; it appearing from the depositions & proceedings in an old cause, rather more than a century back, that the customary payments did not then exist, but that the then vicar had endeavoured to set them up.—JACKSON v. MORRIS (1827), 1 Y. & J. 275; 148 E. R. 675, Ex. Ch.

2994. Admission of liability.]—A landlord was sued for repairs done upon his estate; pltf. failed in endeavouring to prove that deft. had given orders for the repairs. He then offered evidence of an agreement, made after the action was brought, between pltf., deft., & the landlord's tenant, by which the tenant was to pay to pltf. £100 out of the rent which he would have to pay deft., & that deft. should pay two-thirds of pltf.'s costs. The tenant paid pltf. the £100, but deft. did not pay the two-thirds of the costs. Pltf. then carried down the record of trial, & now contended that he was entitled upon this evidence to a verdict, with nominal damages:—Held: (1) (LITTLEDALE & HOLROYD, JJ.) even if the evidence were admissible in an action upon the agreement, it was not evidence in the present action to charge deft. with a nominal verdict; (2) (BAILEY, J.) it was evidence to go to the jury in this action, upon the question whether deft. had admitted a general liability.—LOFTS v. HUDSON (1828), 2 Man. & Ry. K. B. 481; 7 L. J. O. S. K. B. 242.

(2) The jury, after finding a verdict of acquittal, also found that the bridge had been recently built, & that no one was liable to repair it. Señble: such finding by a jury in ancient times is admissible as reputation, on a question as to the liability to repair ratione tenuræ.—R. v. SUTTON (LADY) (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 516; 3 Nev.

2996. Liability for repair—Highway.]—On the trial of an indictment against a parish for non-repair of a road, evidence of an indictment against an adjoining parish for non-repair of a continuation of the same road, & a conviction thereupon, is admissible to prove that the road is a highway, & that the parish is liable to repair it.—R. v. 2998. Conclusion of action—Not unsealed issue roll—Nolle prosequi indorsed thereon.]—An unsealed issue roll is not a record of the ct.; & therefore the entry of a nolle prosequi thereon against one of two defts., is not the proper evidence of such nolle prosequi, to show that as against such deft. the action is at an end.—FAGAN v. DAWSON (1842), 4 Man. & G. 711; 11 L. J. C. P. 319; 134 E. R. 293.

3001. — Right to fisheries.]—W. sued M. for an injury to her reversionary interest in a several fishery in an arm of the sea, alleging her right to the soil between high & low water mark, & that the soil & fishery were in the possession of F., as her tenant under a lease granted in 1845. M. held a neighbouring property under G. & W., in order to prove her title, gave in evidence the proceedings in an action brought by F. against G. in 1851 for a similar injury to his possessory right, which was referred to arbitration & an award was made in favour of G.:—Held: the proceedings & award in the former action were not admissible as proof of so much of the allegations of ownership of W. as were in question in both actions, because W. would not have been bound by the finding of the arbitrator, or by any admissions by F. in that action, it not having been brought by her direction & authority.—WENMAN (LADY) v. MACKENZIE (1855), 5 E. & B. 417; 3 C. L. R. 1307; 25 L. J. Q. B. 41; 25 L. T. O. S. 267; 1 Jur. N. S. 1015; 3 W. R. 626; 119 E. R. 517.

3000 i. Evidence of title—Action of ejectment.]—Held: in ejectment, a record in ejectment in a former trial substantially between the same parties, was properly admitted as evidence, & all that could be inferred against pltf.'s right to recover at that time, & deft.'s right to possession, were proper inferences from the production of the record.—OSBER v. VERNON (1864), 14 C. P. 573.—CAN.

s. —.]—A judgment had been entered up on verdict, but there was nothing to show that a record had been filed excepting the fact that an execution had been issued. More than thirty years afterwards a rule nisi was obtained for leave to file a record therein nunc pro tunc, in order that it might be produced as evidence in a pending action between the sons of the original parties, the title to land being in question. The rule was discharged on the ground of the application being made too late, & by a party in another suit.—REID v. SMITH (1867), 7 N. S. R. 20.—CAN.

3002. ———.]—The corpn. of O. claiming the exclusive right of fishery in O. haven, their lessees brought an action against two fishermen for an invasion of that right. The evidence offered on the part of plffs. included the record in an action brought by the corpn. in 1792 against a fisherman for dredging for oysters in their water, in which the corpn. succeeded in establishing their right to the oysters:—Held: the jury were warranted in finding upon this & the other evidence that the corpn. had the right claimed.—MANNALL v. FISHER (1859), 5 C. B. N. S. 856; 23 J. P. 375; 5 Jur. N. S. 389; 141 E. R. 313.

3003. Value of property—Presentment of grand jury—At quarter sessions.]—Pursuant to the Liverpool Sanitary Amendment Act, 1861, the grand jury of the ct. of quarter sessions presented that certain houses belonging to claimant & others were unfit for human habitation & ought to be demolished. The parties could not agree as to the amount of compensation to which the owners were entitled, & an arbitrator was appointed by the Local Govt. Board to inquire & assess. A provisional order provided that the estimate of value should be based on the fair market value, due regard being had to the nature & condition of the property & the probable duration of the buildings in their existing state, & to their state of repair, without any additional allowance in respect of the compulsory purchase of such premises:—Seemle: the presentment of the grand jury was inadmissible as evidence in this inquiry as to the value of the property.—*GOUGH v. to screen A.'s share from execution by his creditors:—Held: such proceedings were important & relevant evidence, in order to test the bona fides with which A. executed the two documents, as it was important to ascertain how A. subsequently demeaned himself with regard to the property, his share or interest in which he purported to convey by those documents.—*GIRDHAR NAGJISHET v. 3020. Admissibility under private Act—Compulsory purchase of land—Verdict of jury as to compensation.]—A railway Act empowered the owners & occupiers of lands through which the railway & other works were intended to be made to agree to accept satisfaction or recompense for the value of such lands, & also compensation for any damage by them sustained by reason of the severing or dividing of such lands, & for any damage, loss, or inconvenience sustained by them by reason of the taking thereof, etc.; & in case the co. & such parties should not agree as to the amount of compensation, etc., the same should be ascertained by the verdict of the jury if required. Sect. 29, for settling all differences between the co. & the owners & occupiers of any lands taken & damaged, or injuriously affected by the execution of any of the powers granted by the Act, provided for the summoning of a jury by the sheriff, to inquire of, assess, & give a verdict for the money to be paid for the purchase of such lands, or by way of compensation, inter alia, for the severing & dividing the same from other lands. Sect. 31 directed that such verdicts & the judgments thereon, being first signed by the person presiding, should be deposited with, & kept by the clerk of the peace for the county, among the records of the quarter sessions, & should be deemed records to all intents & purposes, & that such records & true copies of them should be evidence. Sect. 111 enacted that, in every case in which the owners, etc., of any lands should, in their arrangements with the co., have agreed to receive compensation for gates, etc., or passages, instead of the same being erected by the co. for the purpose of facilitating the passage to & from either side of the lands severed or divided by the railway, it should not be lawful for such owners, etc., to pass or cross the railway from one part to the other of the lands so severed & divided, otherwise than by a bridge, etc., to be erected at the charge of such owners. Sect. 216 authorised the owners, etc., of lands, through which the railway shall be made (except in cases where the co. should have made proper communication), to pass & repass directly over the part of the railway made upon their lands, for the purpose of occupying them; which right, by sect. 217, was to cease as soon as the co. should have constructed proper bridges, etc.

An owner of land severed by the railway claimed compensation from the co.; the question was submitted to a jury, who awarded to him compensation, on the footing that there was to be a total separation of his land without any communication being made, & he received the payment as such compensation:—Held: this was an arrangement with the co. under sect. 111; & the owner of the land, afterwards crossing the railway for the purpose of the occupation of his land, was a trespasser within Railway Regulation Act, 1840 (c. 97), s. 16; & as it was proved that the verdict of the jury had never been recorded under sect. 31, parol evidence of it, & of the grounds on which it proceeded, was admissible.—MANNING v. EASTERN COUNTIES RY. CO. (1843), 12 M. & W. 237; 3 Ry. & Can. Cas. 637; 13 L. J. Ex. 265; 2 L. T. O. S. 152; 8 J. P. 107; 152 E. R. 1185.

3021. Where evidence on which founded inadmissible.]—A verdict obtained upon the evidence of the parties to a suit, & the decree founded thereon, are not admissible, as evidence of the facts thereby established, in another suit between the same parties in which their evidence is inadmissible.

In a suit by the wife for judicial separation, on the ground of cruelty & desertion, a jury having upon the evidence of the parties & others found the charges proved, the ct. decreed a judicial separation. In a suit by the husband for dissolution of marriage on the ground of the wife's adultery:—Held: the verdict & decree in the suit for judicial separation were not admissible in evidence to prove charges of cruelty & desertion set up by the wife in her answer, because to admit them would be in effect to make use of the evidence of the parties in a suit in which their evidence was inadmissible.—STOATE v. 3037. Terms of lost private Act—Special verdict.—[In ejectment for lands in Kent, pltf.'s case depended upon showing that the lands in question had been disavowed by a private Act, which was alleged to have been passed in 1518. The Act, after proper search, could not be found. As secondary evidence of its contents, there was produced an office copy of a special verdict returned upon the trial of a feigned issue in 1662, wherein the jury found that at a parliament, etc., holden, etc., it was enacted, etc., in these words following, to wit, etc.; the Act was then set out, whereby certain lands in Kent, including some held by one W., were disavowed. There was evidence to identify the lands in question with those held by a person of that name at the time the Act was stated to have passed :—Held : the special verdict, being res inter alios acta, was not admissible per se, & it was not receivable as containing an authenticated copy of the Act, inasmuch as it was strictly the finding of a matter of fact, not professing to set forth a copy of the Act according to its tenor, nor stating the title of the Act, so as to identify it with the lost Act.—DOE d. A. Admissibility and Proof.

3042. Admissibility—Whether return must first be filed—Proceedings in same & in different courts.]—The issuing of a writ is matter of record in the ct. from which it issued.

The issuing of a writ from another ct. is never a matter of record in this ct. until the return thereto is filed; but the issuing of a writ from this ct. although no return thereto be filed is always a matter of record in this ct. 3043. — After Statute of Limitations commenced to run—Proof of resealing after teste.]—Assumpsit for goods sold & delivered. Plea: Stat. Limitations. A writ of summons tested within six years from the accruing of the cause of action was put in by plff. It had been twice resealed, & was not served until after the six years had expired. No evidence was given by deft. when either resealing took place: Held: the resealing gave effect to the original writ without amounting to a reissuing of it, & without making it necessary for plff. to prove the date of the resealing, or more than the teste of the writ.—*BRAITHWAITE v. 3042 l. Admissibility—Whether return must first be filed.]—In an action against a magistrate it is not necessary to prove that the writ was personally served on deft. An attested copy of a writ which has been filed, but not returned, is sufficient evidence of the writ.—MULHALL v. PALMER (1823), 2 Fox & S. Ir. 67.—IR.

Proof—Filing officer's book—Search for original—Notice to produce.]—To prove that a writ issued in a particular cause, it is not sufficient to prove the precipe by the filazer's book, & to give notice to the party to produce it; it should be shown that, after the return, the Treasury was searched, & no such writ found, & that it was in the party's hands, who had notice to produce it.—*EDMONSTONE v. Pltf. replied, that the cause of action did accrue within the six years, etc.:—Held: without specially replying process issued, pltf. might on the above replication prove a quo minus to have issued within the six years, etc., & produce the roll to show the continuance regularly entered up accordingly.

If continuances are regularly entered upon the roll, the ct. will not look at anything in order to contradict the roll, e.g. a writ produced to show that a second writ, an alias, was tested on a day subsequent to the return day of the first.—DICKENSON v. 3059. — — — — ——In an action against a landlord, for an excessive distress, it appeared that two several distresses for rent, & an intervening execution for a debt, were levied; a sale was afterwards effected, when deft., having retained what was due for rent, paid the remainder to the execution creditor:—Held: the production of the writ & warrant, without proof of the judgment, was sufficient.—TAYLOR v. HARRISON (1832), 1 L. J. K. B. 155.

3060. — — — — ——An assignment of goods in fraud of creditors is valid as between parties to the deed, & as between either party & a stranger. A sheriff claiming to seize the goods on behalf of a judgment creditor is a stranger within this rule, if he does not prove the legal authority under which he seized on behalf of such creditor. For this purpose it is sufficient, in trespass for the seizure, if he prove the writ; & there is some evidence of the writ, if pltf. puts in the sheriff's warrant to his officer, & that recites a writ at the suit of the judgment creditor.—BESSEY v. MORRIS (1852), 11 C. B. 1015; 21 L. J. C. P. 185; 18 L. T. O. S. 256; 16 Jur. 500; 138 E. R. 778.

3063. Answer to interrogatories—How proved—Examined copy.—In an action by the administratrix of a wife it appeared that deft. had written letters to the wife promising to hold at her disposal a sum of money which he had received from a third person. The husband did not interfere either to allow her to have the control of the money or to prevent her from dealing with it. He survived her, & then died. To prove the amount pltf. offered in evidence an examined copy of deft.'s answers to interrogatories in a previous action in which pltf. had sued the representative of the husband, but which was discontinued:—Held: (1) the answers were admissible without proof of the interrogatories; (2) an examined copy of the answers was admissible without proof of deft.'s handwriting to the original answers.—*FLEET v. 3105. Admissibility of log-books—Principles of.—We should not have granted the rule nisi if a case had not been cited to show that a log-book is evidence. But in D'Israeli v. Jovett, the log-book was brought from the Admty. & was a public document (PARK, J.).—RUNDLE v. BEAUMONT (1828), 4 Bing. 537; 1 Moo. & P. 396; 6 L. J. O. S. C. P. 91; 130 E. R. 875.

3106. — ———. — A log-book kept for a particular vessel is not evidence of the facts entered therein, when offered on behalf of that vessel; but the party who made the particular entries in the log-book, which are relied on, when he is, or is made a competent witness, may look at those entries & then speak to the truth of the particular statement there embodied; the facts so embodied become evidence to statements sworn to by a particular witness, & not as being statements contained in a particular book; if the log-book were proved as a mere exhibit, & it was sought to read extracts from it, as the sole proof of certain facts, I should reject it; but it only comes in aid of the memory of a person who is deposing, as he is entitled to do, to certain facts, & who refers to certain entries in a document to assist his recollection in the detail of those facts, which he may do, inasmuch as he himself at the time of the occurrence made those entries in that document (DR. LUSHINGTON).—THE SOCIEDADE FELIZ (1843), as reported in 7 Jur. 956; previous proceedings (1812), 1 Wm. Rob. 303.

3107. — ———. — It is desirable that it should be borne in mind that the log of the S., per se, is not evidence of any fact for the S. The log is a statement made by the master of the S. at a time being contemporaneous with the event, & therefore more likely to be correct, & it is used for the purpose only of correcting a statement made at a subsequent time (per Cur.).—THE SINGAPORE & THE HEBE (1866), L. 3110. — To prove desertion—When entry is unsigned.—To bring a case within 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 19, ss. 7, 9, there must be an entry in the log-book in conformity with the provisions of those sections.—THE TWO SISTERS (1813), 2 Wm. Nor are entries in the log-book admissible for the same purpose, nor protests made by the captain as to the state of the ship, unless it can be shown that plff. has previously used these documents upon which to found a claim in respect of the ship.—PARFITT v. 3142. Secretary of Board of Excise—As to accuracy & effect of accounts—In excise books.]—

(1) The certificate of the Secretary of the Board of Excise, as to the accuracy & effect of accounts in the books of the excise, ought not to be received in evidence.

(2) Qu.: whether accounts of stock kept in the excise books are evidence between third parties, as to the delivery of goods.

(3) Copies of such accounts may be given in evidence. Semble: on the ground that the original are public books; but in such case, the copies produced must be proved by a witness, who has examined them with the originals, & can swear to their accuracy.—DUNBAR v. HARVIE (1820), 2 Bli. 351; 4 E. R. 356.

3143. Lloyds' agent—As to damage at foreign port.]—In an action against an underwriter upon goods which sustained sea-damage:—Held: although deft. was a subscriber to Lloyd's, a certificate granted by their agent, resident abroad, was not admissible to prove the amount of the damage.—DRAKE v. MAHUYAT (1823), 1 B. & C. 473; 2 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 696; 1 L. J. O. S. K. B. 161; 107 E. R. 175.

3144. Ministers & elders of Scottish Church.]—On an indictment against accessories before the fact to the forgery of an administration bond on administration granted of the effects of J. S.:—Held: (1) a session-clerk from Scotland had no right to look at a kirk session book to learn the writing of a clergyman to enable him to swear to the writing of a certificate found, on the death of J. S., among his papers; (2) such book was not evidence itself, & not being so, could not be looked at for any purpose whatever; (3) the certificate in question, which was a certificate purporting to have been given by the minister & elders to J. S. on leaving the kirk, would not be evidence, even if the minister's writing were proved.—R. v. BARBER (1841), 1 Car. & Kir. 434; 8 J. P. 614; sub nom. R. v. RICHARDS, BARBER, DOREY, 3 L. 3145. Certificate from custom house—Evidence of burthen of ship.]—(1) The master of a foreign vessel arriving in the port of London delivered to the custom house officers a report of the burthen of his ship, & the number of his crew; & it was filed at the custom house:—Held: 8 & 9 Vict. c. 86, ss. 2, 7, 18, did not give this the character of a public document so as to make it evidence of the burthen of the ship. (2) A certificate was produced from the custom house, where it had been filed, signed by a party who certified that he had measured the vessel, & stated the amount of the tonnage:—Held: it not being shown that this was an act prescribed by statute the certificate could not be received in evidence as a public document to prove the burthen of the ship.—HUNTLEY v. DONOVAN (1850), 15 Q. B. 96; 117 E. R. 304.

3219. Decree made in pursuance of statute—How proved—Copy annexed to statute—Obtained from King's printer.—Evidence is admissible in an action for tithes on 37 Hen. 8, c. 4, of the fact of some of the parishes in London paying at the rate mentioned in the decree, made by virtue of that statute, in order to raise a presumption that such decree had been enrolled, no entry of such enrolment being to be found, & a copy of the decree annexed to the statute, in a printed copy obtained from the King's printer, being produced.—M'DOUGALL v. YOUNG (1826), 2 C. & P. 278; Ry. & M. 392.

3220. Admiralty regulations—How proved—Copy of Gazette.—By Merchant Shipping Repeal Act, 1854 (c. 120), s. 295, it was provided, that "the Admty. might make" certain regulations, such regulations to be published in the London Gazette, & production of the Gazette to be "sufficient evidence of the due making & purport thereof"; & by sect. 2, "the Admty." was defined to mean "the Lord High Admiral, or the Comrs. for executing his office":—Held: a notice published in the Gazette purporting to be given by the Lords Comrs. of the Admty., but signed only "by command of their lordships, W. G. Romaine," was, by production of the Gazette, proved to be duly made by the Admty.—THE OLIVIA (1862) 1 Lush. 497; 6 L. T. 398.

3221. Order of Ministry of Food—How proved—Stationery Office copy.—Where proceedings are taken before the justices in respect of alleged offences against the Bread Order, 1917, & the prosecution omits to prove the Order, the justices ought, even after the case for the prosecution has been closed, to allow the prosecution to prove the Order by producing a Stationery Office copy of it.—*DUFFIN v. 3225. ——— Evidence of tithe modus.—ATKINS & HURST v. DRAKE, No. 3247, post.

3226. By officers of Crown—Ground of admissibility—Made in course of public duty.—The ground on which a survey made by officers of the Crown under a commission is received, is, that it is presumed that they acted in accordance with their public duty, & have stated nothing in their inquiry or survey which is contrary to the fact. But no such presumption of truth attaches to a survey belonging to a private individual, although the presentment of a jury might be evidence of reputation (PARKE, B.).—DANIEL v. WILKIN (1852), 7 Exch. 429; 21 L. J. Ex. 236.

d. Order of Commissioners of Customs & Excise—How proved.—In proceedings in the Ct. of Exch. for the recovery of a statutory penalty in which an order made by the Comrs. of Customs & Excise was founded on, the order, in the absence of challenge, does not require to be produced or proved to the ct.—LORD ADVOCATE v. VAN WEELE [1917] S. C. 227.—SCOT.

PART IV. SECT. 12, SUB-SECT. 15.—A. (a).

e. By officers of Crown—Ground of admissibility.—A plan was produced from the registry office, sworn to be that furnished by the comr. of Crown lands. It was headed "Cardiff," the name of the township, & at the bottom was written "Dept. of Crown lands, Ottawa, Nov. 1866. A. I., assistant comr.," whose signature was proved:—Held: sufficiently certified & receivable in evidence.—NICHOLSON v. PAGE (1868), 27 U. C. R. 318.—CAN.

f. Surveyor General's plan—As proof of facts stated therein.—A copy of the original plan of a township certified by the surveyor-general is admissible to prove an allowance for a road.—BADGELY v. BENDER (1833), 1 O. S. 221.—CAN.

g. ————return of survey of land filed in the Surveyor-General's office, upon which a grant issues, is admissible in evidence to explain an ambiguity in the grant.—WIGGINS v. McLEAN (1850), 1 All. 671.—CAN.

h. ————The report & plans of a Crown land surveyor leading to a grant cannot be used to contradict the terms of the grant, but they can be used for the purpose of ascertaining where the surveyor started & where he established his marks.—MILLET v. BEAZANSON (1910), 9 E. L. R. 16.—CAN.

k. Survey—Proof of.—Semble: in order to prove a survey which will witness.]—A manor map, produced from the custody of the lord of the manor, made in 1817, by a surveyor, since deceased, who was proved by a living witness to have been competent & conversant with the district, & used by the parish authorities for rating purposes, is receivable in evidence where a question of general right to the waste of the manor has arisen in which a class of the community, namely, the inhabitants of a township & tenants of the manor, have a common interest.—SMITH v. LISTER (1895), 64 L. J. Q. B. 154; 72 L. T. 20; 15 R. 226.

It has to be proved that the survey was made by competent persons. That cannot be proved from the document itself (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J.).—ASHETON SMITH v. OWEN, [1906] 1 Ch. 179; 75 L. J. Ch. 181; 94 L. T. 42; 22 T. L. R. 182; 10 Asp. M. L. C. 161, C. A.; affd., [1907] A. C. 124, H. L.

3238. ——In a suit by the rector for tithes, defts. pleaded a modus as covering their lands, as part of a district or tract of land, called Allesley Park; defts., in support of their defence, proved the boundaries of the district, & proved by terriers, rectors' books, & other documents, & also by parol testimony, the existence of the payment as a modus for the district for upwards of 150 years. The rector gave in evidence Pope Nicholas' Taxation, various inquisitions & surveys, in which the rectory, & the district in respect of which the modus was pleaded, were estimated at values wholly inconsistent & irreconcilable with the existence of the alleged modus:—Held: it was for the jury to consider the weight due to the documentary evidence produced by the rector, & whether it ascribed to the rectory & the district their actual value at the time, or whether that evidence bore internal marks of its being erroneous in those respects.—BREE v. BECK (1831), You. 211; 159 E. R. 968; sub nom. BECK v. BREE, 1 Cr. & J. 216; 1 Tyr. 132; 9 L. J. O. S. Ex. 26. Annotation:—Refd. Raine v. Cairns (1841), 4 Hare, 327.

3239. ——Evidence of a payment in lieu of tithes was given, extending as far back as the reign of Charles I. Still more ancient documents relating to the same parish, & among them the Ecclesiastical Survey of Henry VIII., made no mention of such payment:—Held: under these circumstances, an allegation that such payment existed before the time of legal memory, was not supported.—*GRAVES (LORD) v. (2) An account by the minister who was in possession, immediately after the dissolution of a monastery, stating tithes which were received from the various farms was also admissible.—DONNISON v. CURRY (1816), McCle. & Yo. 11, n.; 148 E. R. 303.

3268. —————Upon a bill for tithes by a vicar against the occupiers of an estate which had belonged to the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem; & after the dissolution of the monasteries, being vested in King Henry VIII., had been granted by him to the Archbishop of York & his successors, under whom defts. occupied; defts. pleaded that the lands were held by the Hospital exempt from tithes, that they were so held & granted by the King; & they proved that no tithes had within memory been paid for the lands. On the part of the vicar was produced an inspeximus of an inquisition made under the authority of the Archbishop of York in 1314; by which it was found, after specifying certain tithes, that the vicar ought to receive all other tithes to the church belonging, except corn & hay, which the master & brethren of the hospital of St. John of Jerusalem received as rectors; but that all the vicars had, ever since the time of the ordination of the vicarage, received all other tithes, & peaceably, & did so at that time, but they were bound to give their tithe of corn & hay:—Held: upon the evidence of this document, the vicar was entitled to the tithes claimed by his bill.—ERSLEY v. 3289. — — — — ——[Applts., owners of certain premises, appealed to special sessions against the amount of the gross estimated rental & of the ratable value at which their premises had been assessed for the poor rate. The special sessions reduced the amount of the gross estimated rental & of the ratable value, but in neither case to so low a figure as had been contended for by applts. Applts. gave notice of appeal to quarter sessions on the ground that both amounts as determined by the special sessions were too high. Before the hearing of the appeal at quarter sessions applts. withdrew their appeal so far as it related to the gross estimated rental. At the hearing resps. who had not given notice of appeal against the decision of the special sessions tendered evidence to prove that the true amount of the gross estimated rental was in excess of the figure arrived at by the special sessions, but the evidence was rejected:—Held: although the decision of the special sessions was partly in favour of applts. they were entitled as persons "impugning" the decision within Parochial Assessments Act, 1836 (c. 96), s. 6, to appeal to quarter sessions; & as resps. had not appealed against the decision of the special sessions the evidence tendered by them at quarter sessions had been rightly rejected.—*FOWLER (JOHN) & CO. 3311. Report by General Medical Council—Evidence of professional misconduct.—Three several articles of partnership for carrying on the business of dentists, entered into by two persons named Clifford with plff. in the first action & defts. in the other two actions, all contained a provision that if either partner should be guilty of professional misconduct the other partner should be at liberty to give notice in writing determining the partnership. On May 21, 1906, the General Medical Council, acting under the powers of Dentists Act, 1878 (c. 33), made an order directing the registrar to strike the Cliffords' names off the Register of Dentists, on the ground that they had been guilty of conduct which was infamous or disgraceful in a professional respect within the words of the Act. Plff. in the first action & defts. in the other two actions thereupon gave notice determining the partnership. These three actions were brought to determine the validity of the notices. The order of the Medical Council was tendered in evidence :—Held : (1) the order was admissible as prima facie evidence of the fact that the Cliffords were guilty of acts infamous or disgraceful in a professional sense, & there being no rebutting evidence, that fact was proved; (2) the order was admissible as evidence & conclusive evidence of the fact that defts.' names had been erased from the register by order of the council, & might be admissible against defts. for some purposes other than the truth of the fact of misconduct to show the grounds upon which it was made.—*HILL v. 3315. Auditors' returns of Crown revenue—Evidence as to demise of tithes.—(1) Where in a grant by the Crown of extra-parochial lands, the words "tithes, oblations & obventions" were found to have been introduced amongst the general words :—Held : not to pass the tithes of such lands, in a case where it was in evidence that the tithes were in lease at the time of the grant, & the Crown had continued to demise them whenever they had reverted, the ct. determining that the continued exercise of such strong acts of ownership was sufficient to countervail the slight effect of such words even if where so introduced they were of any force at all, & were not rather attributable to mistake.

(2) Returns of any particular subject-matter by the Auditors in their accounts of the Crown revenue, are sufficient proof of its having been kept in charge to protect the claim of the Crown from the operation of Crown Suits Act, 1768 (c. 16) although they have returned "Nil," & the claim has not been put in suit thereon for more than sixty years.—*A.-G. v. 3316. Of Duchy of Cornwall—Extent of admissibility.—(1) An enrolment of a lease in the Duchy of Cornwall Office is evidence as if it were an enrolment by the Crown, & it is immaterial whether the Duchy is in possession of the Crown or of the Duke.

(2) The estate of the Duchy of Cornwall is one of a very peculiar nature there is nothing like it existing in this country. It is an estate vested in the Duke of Cornwall, when there is a Duke of Cornwall, & when there is no Duke of Cornwall it is vested in the Crown. To say that one rule shall prevail as to the formation of documents or the evidence of these documents, when the Duchy is in the hands of the Duke, & that another rule shall prevail when the Duchy is in the hands of the King, would be accompanied with great confusion & injustice. Whatever is done during the existence of a Duke is to be considered in the same manner as if it was done to the Crown (LORD TENTEDEN, C.J.).

(3) On account of the interest of the Crown in the Duchy of Cornwall all acts which affects the revenues of the Duchy are to be considered as public acts, & an instrument affecting such revenues, though not executed by the parties to an action or their privies, is admissible in evidence.—*ROWE v. of £6 being charged exclusively upon the unsold part, of which thirty-one acres remaining in 1842 were purchased by deft.'s father. In all the deeds from 1786 downwards the thirty-one acres were described as being subject inter alia to a rent of £6 per annum, which deft. & all his predecessors paid to the parish:—Held: (1) deft. was entitled to make his own title deeds evidence, not for the purpose of proving facts which they assert, but to show the intention of deft. & his predecessors in making the payment; (2) & the parish books were evidence for the parish only where the entries were so old as not to be provable by living witnesses.—A.-G. v. There was no direct evidence how it was placed in the chest: but it was proved that, in 1842, several documents were brought in a cart to the workhouse by a pauper, & placed in the chest:—

Held: enough appeared to satisfy the rule of proving deeds to be brought from a proper depository, & the evidence was admissible.—SLATER v. HODGSON (1846), 9 Q. B. 727; 2 New Mag. Cas. 51; 2 New Sess. Cas. 488; 8 L. T. O. S. 160; 10 J. P. Jo. 770; 115 E. R. 1451.

(1) Parochial Registers Act, 1812 (c. 146), s. 5, requires parish registers to be kept at the parson's house or in the church. The custody of such registers by the parish clerk at his house is not, unless accounted for, such reasonably proper custody as to render receivable in evidence an extract made by a witness from a book produced to him as the parish register by the clerk, at the clerk's house.

(2) We cannot lay down any general rule on the question of proper custody. We must be guided by the circumstances of each particular case (PATTESON, J.).

To support an allegation in an indictment that A. was duly elected treasurer of the parish an entry in the vestry book, stating that A. was elected treasurer at a vestry duly held in pursuance of notice, is sufficient evidence.—R. v. MARTIN (1809), 2 Camp. 100.

On an appeal, resps. in order to prove the fact of the delivery to them of a certificate given by appls. acknowledging the pauper to be their settled inhabitant, produced an old book from their own parish chest, in which was an entry of that fact in the handwriting of a former parish officer:—Held: such evidence was inadmissible.—R. v. DEBENHAM (INHABITANTS) (1818), 2 B. & Ald. 185; 106 E. R. 334.

Annotations:—Consd. Irish Soc. v. Derry (Bp.) (1846), 12 Cl. & Fin. 641. Refd. Davies v. Morgan (1831), 1 Tyr. 457; R. v. Worth (1843), 7 J. P. 287; Sturla v. Freccia (1880), 5 App. Cas. 623.

3349. Evidence of tithe modus—Rector's or Vicar's books.—Books of former rectors produced upon trial of an issue, whether any variation had been as to sums paid for tithes of houses in London.—BENNET v. TREPPASS (1723), Bunb. 143; 2 Gwill. 633; 145 E. R. 626.

Annotations:—Mentd. St. Paul's, London v. Morris (1803), 9 Ves. 155; Antrobus v. East India Co. (1806), 13 Ves. 9; Payne v. Esdalle (1888), 13 App. Cas. 613.

3350. ——— Although containing non-parochial entries—Not produced from strictly proper custody.—(1) Where a district modus was pleaded, & it appeared from ancient documents that the modus could not consistently with those documents have existed at the time of legal memory, the ct. decreed an account of tithes in kind, & refused an issue, notwithstanding the payments were proved to have existed for a great number of years.

(2) A district modus, to be good must cover all the lands in the district, & therefore where a modus was pleaded for a particular district, & it appeared from the evidence that certain farms within the district never paid or contributed, the modus was considered bad.

(3) Evidence that sums had been collected from the inhabitants from a person employed by the parson, & from a list furnished by him, affords strong presumption that the payments are farm moduses, & not a district modus, for if it were a district modus, the collection would be made by the parishioners & handed over to the incumbent.

(4) Vicar's books were admitted in evidence, though they contained private entries & memorandums of the vicar, not relating to the parish; & though one of the books had remained for many years in the hands of a representative of a deceased vicar, instead of having been delivered to the succeeding incumbent.—MILLER v. JACKSON (1820), 1 Y. & J. 65, Ex. Ch.

3351. ————[On the trial of an issue, under Tithe Act, 1836 (c. 71), whether a modus of £20 had been, during the statutable period, payable by the occupiers of lands in a hamlet to the rector in lieu of tithes, it appeared, by old terriers, that glebe lands, lying interspersed amongst the other lands in the hamlet, were in the occupation of the rector in the beginning of the seventeenth century, & that, some time about 1610, the occupant of the land in the hamlet occupied also the glebe lands; & that for more than the statutable period no tithes had been paid by any occupant of lands in the hamlet, & £20 per annum had been paid to the rector by the tenants of such lands. An account book kept by a deceased rector, containing receipts & payments by him relative to the living, was received in evidence for the present incumbent. The jury found that the payment had been made for tithes & glebe, & not for tithes only. On a case stating the above facts:—Held: the account book was properly admitted in evidence.—YOUNG v. CLARE HALL (1851), 17 Q. B. 529; 21 L. J. Q. B. 12; 18 L. T. O. S. 90; 15 J. P. 770; 16 Jur. 81; 117 E. R. 1381.

3352. — Books of parish overseers.—Entries in the books of parish overseers, of sums therein stated to be for rates payable in respect of a modus admissible as evidence of modus.—WARD v. POMFRET (1832), 5 Sim. 475; 2 L. J. Ch. 22; 58 E. R. 416.

3353. Appropriation of parish rates.—The vestry clerk of a parish upon his appointment, by the vestry, to the office, was told that it would be part of his duty to collect the church rate & poor rate, & to apply them as his predecessor had done. In pursuance of these instructions, & in accordance with a practice which had prevailed in the parish for fifty or sixty years, the vestry clerk applied a portion of the money arising from a church rate made in pltf's' year of office as churchwarden to the payment of certain parochial charges not legally payable out of the church rate:—Held: one of pltf's being a vestry man, the parish books were admissible in evidence to show the usage of the parish as to the appropriation of the rates.—COOPER v. LAW (1859), 6 C. B. N. S. 502; 28 L. J. C. P. 282; 5 Jur. N. S. 1263; 141 E. R. 552.

iii. Registers of Baptism.

See Canon 70 of 1603; Parochial Register Act, 1812 (c. 146), Sched. A.

3358. Fact of baptism—Entry not made from personal knowledge of incumbent—Founded on minute supplied by parish clerk.—An entry in the register book by the minister of the parish of the baptism of a child, which had taken place before he became minister, or had any connection with the parish, & of which he received information from the parish clerk, is not admissible in evidence, nor is the private memorandum of the fact made by the clerk, who was present at the baptism.—DOE v. WARREN v. BRAY (1828), 8 B. & C. 813; 3 Man. & Ry. K. B. 428; 2 Man. & Ry. M. C. 66; 7 L. J. O. S. K. B. 161; 108 E. R. 1245.

Annotation:—Refd. Lyell v. Kennedy (1887), 56 L. T. 647.

3359. ————A baptismal certificate, when adduced in evidence at Nisi Prius, is evidence only of the fact of baptism, & not of any independent fact which is therein stated. It would be misdirection if the judge, who had admitted such a certificate in evidence, had failed to tell the jury that they were not to treat it as evidence of such independent fact; but the ct. will not, on that ground alone, grant a new trial, if it appear that there was other & abundant evidence on which the jury might have found their verdict, if the certificate objected to had been altogether excluded.

3365. ———.]—On an indictment for carnally knowing & abusing a female child under ten years of age, the best evidence of the age of the child ought to be produced. Where an offence of this kind was committed on Feb. 5, 1832, & the child's father proved, that on his return after an absence from home of a few days, on Feb. 9, 1822, he found that the child had been born, & was told by her grandmother that she had been born the day before; & the register of baptisms shows that the child had been baptised on Feb. 9, 1822 :—Held : not sufficient to prove that the child was under ten years old as the grandmother might have been called.—R. v. 3372. ———.]—Supported by other evidence.—(1) Though a parish register is not conclusive evidence of the place of birth of the person baptised, it is admissible in evidence to be considered with other facts, upon the question as to the place of birth.

(2) The declaration of a deceased mother as to the time of birth, is admissible in evidence upon a question as to the place of birth of the child, though the father be living.—R. v. BIRMINGHAM

(INHABITANTS), R. v. ASTON (INHABITANTS) (1829), 8 L. J. O. S. M. C. 41.

3373. ———.]—Proof that A. & B. were married in the parish of Dale, & that their children, C., D., E., & F. were baptised there, is not evidence from which the justices are bound to infer that E. was born there.

3377. ———.]—When supported by other evidence.—Although an entry in a baptismal register by the officiating clergyman of the day when the baptised child was born furnishes no proof per se that the child was born on the day stated, the entry will not be rejected altogether as an item of evidence upon an inquiry as to the legitimacy, from its birth before or after the marriage of its reputed parents, of the child in question.—Re TURNER, GLENISTER v. HARDING (1885), 29 Ch. D. 985; 54 L. J. Ch. 1089; 53 L. T. 528.

3378. Christian name—Of party baptised.—It requires very strong evidence to satisfy the ct. that a parish register is not to be trusted in so material a matter as the Christian name of a child whose baptism is recorded.—WEBB v. (1851), 19 Beav. 312; 52 E. R. 382.

iv. Registers of Marriages.

See Canon 70 of 1603.

3379. Fact of marriage.—Parish books & registers are good evidence to prove births & marriages; & when produced, the jury may have them out of ct. while they are conferring on their verdict.—VICARY v. FARTHING (1595), Cro. Eliz. 411; 78 E. R. 653.

To establish the pedigree, he proved cohabitation & reputation of marriage between his alleged father & mother. He also produced a parish register signed by them, stating the performance of a marriage ceremony between them at a private house; & the archbishop's fiat for a special licence, with the affidavit upon which the fiat was obtained. No search had been made for the licence; & it appeared that there was no regular place of custody for such licences:—Held: the affidavit, fiat & register were admissible evidence, without production of the licence, to confirm the evidence of cohabitation & reputation, & as showing that parties bearing the names of the alleged father & mother had been engaged in taking measures for contracting a marriage.—DOE d. EGREMONT (EARL) v. GRAZEBROOK (1843), 4 Q. B. 406; 3 Gal. & Dav. 334; 12 L. J. Q. B. 221; 7 Jur. 530; 114 E. R. 951.

3410. — Marriage register.]—The ct., in the absence of any official record, accepted, as sufficient prima facie evidence of a marriage of the parents of an intestate, a statement contained in an extract from a Scottish marriage register of the year 1868, the bridegroom being the intestate's brother, in which, under the heading "Name, surname, & rank or profession of father," appeared the names & descriptions of both parents of the bridegroom.—WIGLEY v. SOLICITOR TO THE TREASURY, [1902] P. 233; 71 L. J. P. 115; 87 L. T. 745.

3411. — Admissibility of certified copy—Of marriage register—Proof of character of person certifying.]—R. v. RIGBY (1909), 73 J. P. Jo. 301.

3412. — Without evidence of law of Scotland.]—The validity of a marriage in Scotland by declaration in presence of two witnesses, afterwards duly registered pursuant to warrant of the Sheriff-Substitute, is sufficiently established in an English ct. by production of a copy of the entry in the register, duly signed by the Registrar, pursuant to Marriage Law (Scotland) Amendment Act, 1856 (c. 96), s. 2, without expert evidence of the law of Scotland.—DREW v. DREW, [1912] P. 175; 81 L. J. P. 85; 107 L. T. 528; 28 T. L. R. 479.

3414. — Certificate of session clerk.]—The libel, in a cause of separation by reason of cruelty, pleaded the marriage in Scotland, & the session clerk's certificate of the registration of the marriage. The libel also pleaded several matters in the conduct of the husband which did not per se come up to actual cruelty:—Held: the certificate of the session clerk could not be received as evidence of the marriage.—SAUNDERS v. SAUNDERS (1816), 10 Jur. 143.

(c) Ireland.

See Marriages (Ireland) Act, 1841 (c. 81); Marriage Law (Ireland) Amendment Acts, 1863 (c. 27), 1873 (c. 16); Matrimonial Causes & Marriage Law (Ireland) Amendment Act, 1870 (c. 110).

3415. Evidence of births, marriages, deaths—Admissibility of copies—Church registers.]—The rule which requires marriages, births, & deaths, in England, to be proved by the registers, where there are no living witnesses, is not applicable to Ireland, where such registers have not been duly kept. Copies of instruments in writing there, & evidence of reputation, are admissible, after proof that search was made for registers.—ROSCOMMON'S (EARL) CLAIM (1828), 6 Cl. & Fin. 97; 7 E. R. 634, H. L.

3416. Evidence of marriage—Certified copy—Church register.]—The ct. accepted as evidence in proof of a marriage solemnised in 1866, in Dublin, according to the rites of the Established Church of England & Ireland, a copy of an entry in the register of marriages, purporting to be signed, & certified as a correct copy of the entry, by the clergyman of the parish where the marriage was celebrated.—WALLACE v. WALLACE (1896), 74 L. T. 253.

Annotation:—Refd. Browning v. Browning (1918), 35 T. L. R. 159.

3417. — — — — —.]—A copy of an entry in the register of marriages, duly certified by the clergyman of the church where the marriage so registered has been solemnised, is sufficient to prove a lawful marriage according to the rites & ceremonies of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Ireland.—WHITTON v. WHITTON, [1900] P. 178; 69 L. J. P. 126; 64 J. P. 329.

3418. — Of certificate of marriage.]—Marriage at a Presbyterian church in Ireland is sufficiently proved by production of a copy of a certificate of marriage certified as a true copy by the Presbyterian minister, who celebrated the marriage.—LEMON v. LEMON (1920), 123 L. T. 585; 36 T. L. R. 525.

3419. — Certificate—From register office.]—A marriage which had been duly celebrated in a register office in Ireland may be proved by the certificate of such marriage.—GUILLET v. GUILLET (1911), 27 T. L. R. 416.

(d) Dominions and Dependencies.

i. Channel Islands and Isle of Man.

3420. Channel Islands—Copy of register of baptism—Evidence of age of person.]—A copy of a register of baptism in the island of Guernsey is not sufficient evidence here of a party being of age.—LUET v. LE MESURIER (1786), 1 Cox, Eq. Cas. 275; 29 E. R. 1164.

Annotation:—Consd. Coode v. Coode (1838), 1 Curt. 755.

3421. — Certificate—Evidence of marriage.]—Where in the case of a marriage in the Channel Islands the marriage ceremony has been celebrated elsewhere & otherwise than in a church in accordance with the rites & ceremonies of the Established Church of England & Wales, evidence of the validity of the marriage according to the local law is still required.—WESTLAKE v. WESTLAKE, [1910] P. 167; 79 L. J. P. 36; 102 L. T. 396; 26 T. L. R. 223; 54 Sol. Jo. 215.

3422. — — — — —.]—A certificate of a marriage having been celebrated in Jersey according to the forms of the Church of England admitted as sufficient evidence of the fact of the marriage without calling expert evidence.—BOUGHEY v. BOUGHEY & FOAN (1917), 86 L. J. P. 89; 117 L. T. 156.

3423. Isle of Man—Copy of certificate—Evidence of marriage—Sufficiency of evidence.]—The fact of a marriage celebrated in the Isle of Man, though averred in the libel & not controverted by the answer, is not sufficiently proved in a suit for divorce on account of adultery, by the production of a copy of the certificate; but further proof was supplied by the visa voce examination of a witness before the Judicial Committee under Judicial Committee Act, 1833 (c. 41), s. 7.—MELLIN v. MELLIN (1838), 2 Moo. P. C. C. 493; 12 E. R. 1094, P. C.

3497. Register of parish apprentices—Evidence of allowance of apprenticeship.—On appeal against an order of removal, resp. alleging a parish apprenticeship, & ground having been laid for the reception of secondary evidence, resp. produced the register book of parish C., which contained an entry in the form prescribed by Parish Apprentices Act, 1802 (c. 46), s. 1, stating that, on Apr. 7, 1823, W., aged, etc., son of etc., was bound apprentice to R., farmer, residing etc., until the age of twenty-one, by the overseers of C., who were named. In the last column were the words "Magistrates assenting, J. H., L. St. A.," which appeared to be the actual signatures of magistrates so named. The apprenticed party, in his examination, deposed that he was bound apprentice by the overseers of C., & stated the other particulars relating to himself, as given in the register. The sessions held, on objection taken, that the examinations did not contain sufficient legal evidence of the apprenticeship, because they did not show that the justices had made any order for the binding, as directed by Parish Apprentices Act, 1816 (c. 139), s. 1, though in the opinion of the sessions it did appear that the justices had allowed, by signing & sealing, an indenture which recited an order, & they quashed the order of removal, subject to a case which put the question: whether sufficient legal evidence of a parish apprenticeship appeared in the examinations:—Held: the signature of the justices would have been evidence of an assent under stat. 1802 Act, but the sessions could not presume from the facts & documents an order or an allowance by the justices, pursuant to 1816

3498 ———.]—On appeal to sessions against an order of removal, it became necessary to prove the settlement of W., by a parochial apprenticeship to P., entered into in parish B. It was shown that, in 1824, when W. was nine years old, he, with his father & the overseers of B. & P., went before some county magistrates for the purpose of B. being bound apprentice to P.; that the magistrates asked the father if he had any objection, to which he answered, "No"; that some papers were drawn up; & that W. commenced serving as apprentice to P. next morning, & served two or three years. Search was made for a magistrates order & an indenture of apprenticeship; but they could not be found. In the parish register book of indentures of 1824 was an entry dated of that year, stating the date of indenture, 1824; the name of P. as the person to whom the binding was; a name of a person, taken to be intended for W., as apprentice; & the names & residences of W.'s parents. This, according to the entry, was signed by three persons there termed "overseers parties to the indenture," & by two persons there termed "magistrates assenting." The sessions having held the apprenticeship proved, & having affirmed the settlement, subject to the opinion of this ct. whether there was sufficient or reasonable evidence from which the sessions might infer that W. was duly bound a parish apprentice to P.:—Held: inasmuch as the examination before magistrates, & the secondary evidence of an indenture furnished by the register & the actual service, made sufficient ground for presuming that an indenture was duly executed, that it recited an order of allowance by the justices, & that such order had in fact been made, so as to constitute a compliance with the requisites of Parish Apprentices Act, 1816 (c. 139), s. 1.—*R. v. 3501. ———. Law list.—Upon an indictment for obtaining money by a false pretence, made by the prisoner, "that he was an attorney," it is not necessary to prove the negative in any other way than by production of the Law List, in which the prisoner's name does not appear as an attorney, as Solicitor's Act, 1860 (c. 127), makes the Law List evidence & shifts the burden

the college, upon which practitioner's name appeared, although the register was open to some objection as not having been formally accepted by the college council.—SANDWICH v. COWPER & GARDUCH (1911), 17 W. L. R. 1; 4 Sask. L. R. 12.—CAN.

3504. Register of hackney carriages.—Evidence of ownership.—

A licence for a taxicab was applied for & issued to deft. as the managing director of a limited co., & his name & address were entered in the register of licences of hackney carriages, kept at Scotland Yard, under the headings "Name of Proprietor" & "Address" with the addition of the words "Managing Director" & the name & address of the co. Pltff., a member of the public, was injured by, as he alleged, the negligent driving of the cab, & he brought an action against deft. to recover damages. At the trial pltf. put in a certified copy of the entry in the register for the purpose of proving that deft. being registered as the proprietor of the cab, was liable for the acts of the driver. Deft. tendered evidence to show that he was not the owner or part owner of the cab, & was therefore not liable. The judge rejected the evidence upon the ground that the entry in the register was conclusive as to the liability of deft. as proprietor for the acts of the driver:—Held: the register was not conclusive & the evidence was wrongly rejected.—KEMP v. ELISHA, [1918] 1 K. B. 228; 87 L. J. K. B. 428; 118 L. T. 246; 82 J. P. 81; 62 Sol. Jo. 174; 16 L. G. R. 17, C. A.

3506 l. Register of shareholders.—Evidence of liability.—The register of shareholders of a joint-stock co. is prima facie evidence of the member-committee to allot to him one hundred shares in a proposed railway co. In answer he received the following letter: "Sir, The provisional committee having allotted to you fifty shares of £20 each in this undertaking, I am instructed to request that you will pay a deposit upon them of £1 10s. per share, on or before the 30th instant, to one of the following bankers," etc. "I beg also to inform you that scrip certificates for the above number of shares will be delivered to you in exchange for this letter, & the banker's receipt for the deposit after the execution of the parliamentary contract, & subscribers' agreement which will lie for your signature at this office on & after Monday the 30th instant." At the foot of the letter was the following memorandum: "The shares allotted to you will be considered forfeited, if the deposit be not paid within the period specified above, & the parliamentary contract & subscribers' agreement must be signed on or before Aug. 20, 1815." Deft. paid the deposit, but did not sign the parliamentary contract or subscribers' agreement. The co. was afterwards incorporated, & deft.'s name was placed on the sealed register of shareholders. In an action for calls:—Held: deft. was not a shareholder, & the above circumstances were an answer to the prima facie case arising from the production of the register containing deft.'s name.—*WATERFORD, WEXFORD, WICKLOW & DUBLIN RY. 3520. — Allowance of time for malting—Excise books.—Proof of malt not having required so long a space of time in working, & passing through the floors, from the cistern to the kiln, as it had been entered as having taken for that purpose, will, in some cases, be considered prima facie evidence of fraud, & duties are recoverable for the amount of so much grain malted as would be commensurate with such excess of time as if so much of the duty were in arrear. The average number of days necessary for working the grain intended for malt between the steeping & drying is computed by the Excise at sixteen. Excise books transcribed from the malter's specimen paper are admissible evidence against him, without calling the officers to substantiate them, & that although they should be charged to be fraudulent & collusive without proof of their being so.—R. v. GRIMWOOD (1815), 1 Price, 369; 145 E. R. 1132.

3521. — Payment of legacy.—A copy of an entry in the books of the Stamp Office of payment of the legacy duty is, under Legacy Duty Act, 1795 (c. 52), s. 27, evidence of the payment of such duty for all purposes; but such copy signed by the Comptroller of the Stamp Duties, & not proved by a witness who examined it with the original, is not admissible.—*HARRISON v. 3549. General rule—No proof of execution required.]—(1) The substance of a deed cannot be proved but by the deed itself unless it is burnt or lost or in the possession of pltf. himself (HOLT, C.J.).

(2) An old deed is good evidence without any witness to swear that it was executed (HOLT, C.J.).

(3) Wherever an original is of a public nature & would be evidence, if produced, an immediate sworn copy will be evidence, but where an original is of a private nature, a copy is not evidence, unless the original is lost or burnt (HOLT, C.J.).—*LYNCH v. PART IV. SECT. 13. SUB-SECT. 1.—A. (a).

3549 i. General rule—No proof of of death & handwriting.]—In an action against the overseers of a parish the books of a deceased overseer [dated 1791] are not admissible for defendants without proof of his death. Or whether his handwriting must be proved.

This is not the same as if the book were eighty or ninety years old. I can't presume that every one who was alive in 1780 or 1790 is dead now. It might be different if the entry were earlier, in 1694 for instance. The defendants have proved neither the death nor the handwriting of the party making the entry; the first is clearly necessary, the other is questionable (PARKE, B.).—DOE d. ROBINSON v. HINDE (1843), 2 Mood. & R. 441; 1 L. T. O. S. 58.

3554. Thirty years—No proof of attestation required—Although subscribing witness living.]—ANON. (prior to 1798), cited 2 Esp. 666.

3555. — — — — —.]—A will more than thirty years old may be read in evidence, without proof of its execution, although testator has died within thirty years, & some of the subscribing witnesses are proved to be still living. After the lapse of a period of more than a hundred years:—Held: in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the death of a party without issue might be presumed.

The rule of computing the thirty years from the date of a deed is equally applicable to a will. The principle upon which deeds after that period are received in evidence, without proof of the execution is that the witnesses are presumed to have died (LORD TENTERDEN, C.J.).—DOE d. OLDHAM v. WOLLEY (1828), 8 B. & C. 22; 108 E. R. 951; sub nom. DOE d. OLDNALL v. DEAKIN, 2 Man. & Ry. K. B. 195; 3 C. & P. 402; sub nom. DOE d. OLDNALL v. WOOLLEY, 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 286.

3556. — Parish certificate of settlement.]—An allowance of a certificate of a settlement, as having been duly executed, written in the margin of the certificate, & signed by two justices, is alone sufficient proof of the certificate, where such certificate is above thirty years old; notwithstanding the allowance does not certify the affidavit of one of the witnesses as to the execution & attestation of the certificate according to 3 Geo. 2, c. 29. Qu: whether an allowance of a certificate written in the margin, & signed by two justices, which allowance does not certify any affidavit made by one of the witnesses, according to 3 Geo. 2, c. 29, can be connected with a writing on the other side of the same paper, not signed by the justices, certifying that such an affidavit was made, so as to amount to proof of such certificate within the provisions of 3 Geo. 2, *execution required.]—*Where the judge is satisfied that a document is more than thirty years old & that it has come from proper custody, he may, as a rule, dispense with proof of its execution.—LALDAS RAMDAS v. KASHIRAM (1867), 4 Bom. A. C. 60.—IND.

3549 ii. — — — — —.]—With regard to the proof of ancient documents, the proper rule is that, if they are more than thirty years old, they need not be proved, provided they have been so acted upon or brought from such a place as to offer reasonable presumption that they were honestly & fairly obtained & preserved for use, & are

p. Over fifty years.] On general principles it would be extremely undesirable, after a document had stood more than fifty years, to allow evidence to be led to show that the document is not what appears on the face of it.—GANPATRAS APPAJI v. BAPU BIN TUKARAM (1919), 1 L. R. 44 Bom. 710.—IND.

terrier found in the archdeacon's registry is admissible.

(2) A terrier, although not signed by the impropriate rector, nor by any person for him, is evidence against him as to tithes due to him in the parish.

(3) In general an ancient manuscript, the actual execution of which cannot now be otherwise proved, receives authenticity from its being found in that place in which such an instrument ought properly to be. It is true that where a connection can be established so as reasonably to account for the custody in which the instruments are found, the cts. have somewhat relaxed the rule, & admitted them to be read though not coming from exactly the most proper repository. In Miller v. Foster, No. 3243, ante, in granting a new trial, proceeded upon the ground of the connection between the terrier & the custody in which it was; & a strong corroborating circumstance in that case was, that the terrier was found annexed to an old lease of the prebend of nearly the same date. The map was in the possession of the incumbent of the parish, & the order not having been complied with, an application was made to justices in petty sessions, under Tithe Act, 1860 (c. 93), s. 28, for an order that the map should be removed from the custody of the incumbent & deposited in accordance with the directions contained in the order of the county council. On the hearing of the application the incumbent tendered evidence to prove that the order of the county council did not provide for the security & due preservation of the map, nor for the convenience of the persons interested therein. The justices ruled that the order of the county council was final & that the evidence tendered, therefore, could not be received, & they made the order for the removal of the map as asked for:—Held: Tithe Act, 1860 (c. 93), s. 29, has not been impliedly repealed by Local Government Act, 1894 (c. 73), s. 17 (8), & the justices had jurisdiction to hear & consider the evidence, & while giving due weight to the directions contained in the order of the county council, to make such order as, having regard to the evidence, they thought proper in the circumstances.—*FOX v. Conveyance relating to land—Some one connected with estate.—Ancient grants are not to be received in evidence, unless they can be accounted for, as coming from the hands of some one connected with the estate to which they relate.—*SWINNERTON v. 3606. — Owner of land.—(1) Ancient entries made by the monks of an abbey, relating to an endowment by them of a vicarage, whether perfect or not, are good evidence quantum valent of their subject-matter; although such entries be mixed with extraneous memoranda, & the book be not confined or appropriated to subjects ejusdem generis. Being admitted, they may be read throughout, for the purpose of proving anything which is material to the issue, provided it is relevant, although it go to affect third persons who were not privy to it, & could have had no cognisance of the matters to which it relates.

(2) Such a book held to have been found in the proper custody to make it evidence, where it is in the possession of an owner who is so far connected with the abbey as to be possessed of some part of the former estates of the monastery; although no part of such estate be situated in the parish in which the question between the parties to the suit arises.

(3) Inquisition on writ ad quod damnum, in the 37th Edward III. . . . was admitted as evidence that at that time the reputation was that the value of so many acres of land was so much in that district (LORD REDESDALE).

(4) Admitting that the Taxation & Survey are admissible in evidence, still they are very distinguishable from the document in question. They are public acts of state, made under authority & known to all men (WOOD, B.).

(5) The entries had been properly received in evidence, the custody being proper, the entries being authentic copies of instruments of which the originals would have been good evidence.—BULLEN v. MICHEL (1816), 4 Dow, 297; 3 Rag. & Y. 757; 2 Price, 399; 3 E. R. 1171, H. L.

3609. Rating agreement—Relating to particular estate—Title deeds of estate.]—Under a rate for the relief of the poor of the parish of T., made on May 3, 1858, applt. was assessed as occupier of an estate in that parish called N. From the year 1698 down to the time the rate was made, N. had maintained its own poor, & had never been charged with the support of the poor of any other place. On Apr. 1, 1858, P., the owner of a large estate in the parish of T., found, among the title deeds of that estate in his possession, an agreement dated Jan. 12, 1698, purporting to be made between the then owner of N. of the one part, & six persons therein named & described as of T., as well on behalf of themselves as of all the rest of the inhabitants of T., of the other. On an appeal against the assessment, on the ground that N. was not in the parish of T.:—Held: (1) this agreement was admissible in evidence, as being an ancient document relating to the interest of all the estates in T., & which might naturally & reasonably be expected to be found among the title deeds of a large estate in T., & so, came from the proper custody; (2) it was decisive evidence to show that N. was a part of T. parish, & how N. came to maintain its own poor; & was also evidence of reputation as to the extent of the parish, being a declaration by the deceased owner of N. & the other inhabitants of T. to that effect.—R. v. BATHWICK (INHABITANTS) (1831), 2 B. & Ad. 630; 3 Bott. 6th ed. 138; 9 L. J. O. S. M. C. 103; 109 E. R. 1280.

3612. Account books—Corporation documents.]—(1) A book in the handwriting of A. purporting to contain account of tithes collected by him seventy years ago, cannot be received in evidence, without proof that A. was collector of tithes at that time.

(2) In a suit for tithes by the lessee of an ecclesiastical corpn. aggregate, to whom the rectory belonged, ancient documents in their possession, purporting to be accounts furnished by some of their members employed to collect the tithes, & appearing to be approved and settled are admissible in evidence.

(3) The statutes of the body enjoining the appointment of collectors, together with the internal evidence of the documents, & their coming out of the proper custody, held sufficient proof that the accounting parties were really collectors.—SHORT v. LEE (1821), 2 Jac. & W. 461; 37 E. R. 705.

3613. Tithe collector—Personal representative.]—In a suit for tithes by an ecclesiastical rector against the occupiers, a terrier signed by the vicar, churchwardens & inhabitants, & which was tendered by defts., was rejected. Old accounts found in the custody of the personal representative of a deceased tithe collector of a former rector, were received, although there was no evidence to show by whom they were made out.

3614. — Relating to estate—Muniments of owner.]—In order to prove the title of a lessor of pltt. in ejectment, a book headed "Account of J. V., sen., receiver of the rents of the Earl of A.," was produced from a proper custody. The book contained for several years up to 1795 successive entries of balances due to J. V., sen., at the foot of which was, in a different handwriting & signed by Lord A. & J. V., jun., a reference to a general statement of account in 1795. The entry in 1795 was as follows: "Balance to J. V., sen., £76 19s. 7d. Feb. 18, 1795. The above account was this day settled and the balance £76 19s. 7d. due thereon to J. V., sen., was paid by the Earl of A. to the undersigned J. V., jun., & the vouchers delivered up. A.—J. V., jun." No evidence was given of J. V., jun.'s death or handwriting, or of his ever having been a receiver:—Held: these entries were admissible in evidence as being made by a person accounting with Lord A. for money which he acknowledges to have received.—DOE d. ASHBURNHAM (LORD) v. MICHAEL (1851), 17 Q. B. 276; 20 L. J. Q. B. 480; 17 L. T. O. S. 151; 15 Jur. 677; 117 E. R. 1286.

3615. Advowson documents—Among bishop's private papers.]—A case touching the right of presentation to a living by the bishop of M. stated for the opinion of counsel, by a bishop of M. in 1695, & found in the family mansion of the D.'s, descendants of that bishop:—Held: evidence against a subsequent bishop of the same see on a question touching the right of presentation to the same living.

These documents were found in a place in which & under the care of persons with whom papers of Bishop D. might naturally & reasonably be expected to be found; & that is precisely the custody which gives authenticity to documents found within it; for it is not necessary that they should be found in the best & most proper place of deposit. If documents continue in such custody there never would be any question as to their authenticity; but it is when documents are found in other than the proper place of deposit that the investigation commences, whether it was reasonable & natural under the circumstances in the particular case, to expect that they should have been in the place where they are actually found; for it is obvious that whilst there can be only one place of deposit strictly & absolutely proper, there may be various, & many that are reasonable & probable, though differing in degree, some being more so, some less; & in those cases the proposition to be determined is, whether the actual custody is so reasonably & probably to be accounted for that it impresses the mind with the conviction that the instrument found in such custody must be genuine (TINDAL, C.J.).—MEATH (Bp.) v. 3624. — Private maps.]—(1) In an action to establish commonable rights over a piece of land on behalf of all the proprietors & occupiers of lands or tenements in a certain parish, the chief questions raised by the evidence were: whether the land in question was within the parish; & if so, whether plffs. had any right to maintain the action. The Ordnance map, & several other maps, some of which had been kept in the British Museum, were tendered in evidence for the purpose of showing the position of the boundaries of the parish:—Held: the maps were not admissible in evidence.

(2) Plffs. founded their claim upon an action of novel disseisin brought in 23 Hen. 3, the records in which were missing. It was submitted that the proceedings could be proved by (a) a notebook in the British Museum containing a note of the case, which was submitted as being a copy of the record; (b) a document forming part of the Cottonian MSS. in the British Museum, purporting to be a register of a priory interested in the action, containing an account of the action; and (c) a note of the action in an entry in the church-book of a parish, the parson of which was a deft. in the action, made four hundred & thirty-eight years after the date of the action:—Held: (a) & (b) were not admissible, but that (c) was receivable in evidence quantum valuit, as an entry of an historical fact in which the parish was interested, it being probably taken from the record which might then have been in existence.—BIDDER v. 3666. Pedigree—Recited in deed of conveyance—Necessity for corroborative evidence.—A conveyance to a purchaser in 1793, from persons residing in Bermuda, of lands then in their possession, & to which, subject to an outstanding but satisfied mtge. term, they claimed title under an entail created in 1732, through a descent recited in the deeds, a subsequent assignment of the mtge. term from the mtgee. to the purchaser, & uninterrupted enjoyment under his conveyance, will not enable him to make a good title; if unsupported by extrinsic evidence of the pedigree recited in the deeds, or of possession, prior to 1793, conformable to that pedigree.—FORT v. The petition for a location & the bond were executed by mark, & in the bond the obligor was described as of Y., labourer. In May, the patent issued to McK., & was in the possession of S. shortly after its date. S. went into possession in 1828, cleared about seven acres, & after three years left the land in the possession of plffs., who had the benefit of it up to within a short period of the death of S. in 1849. Plffs., claiming as heirs at law of S., filed their bill to obtain a conveyance of the land, & produced the patent. Defts., B. & C. produced a conveyance purporting to have been made by, & signed "J. McK.," now of N., yeoman, to J. D., dated Sept. 7, 1833, & a conveyance from D. to B., dated in May, 1849, both registered. No oral testimony was given of the identity of the grantor in the deed to D., with the locatee of the Crown, & no evidence of its custody during the thirty years:—Held: the deed from McK. to D. did not come within the rule that an ancient document proves itself.—ROGERS v. J. stated that he had received the pedigree from his grandfather. It was not proved who had prepared the pedigree:—Held: it was not necessary to show who had made the statements mentioned in the pedigree & it was admissible in evidence.—JAJAROH v. an alleged former owner of an estate, the counterpart of a lease of part of the estate was produced from the muniment room of the estate, which counterpart was executed by the lessee, & purported to be a lease granted by the person whose seisin was to be established, & who had died about one hundred years before the trial. No possession was proved under the lease:—Held: admissible in evidence in an ejectment against a party, who neither claimed under the lease, nor was privy to it.—*DOE d. EGREMONT (EARL.) v. (c) Acts of Ownership.

3670. General rule—Ancient documents—Purporting to be acts of ownership—Coming from proper custody.—M. brought an action against O. for breaking his several fishery in a public navigable river.

At the trial, in order to prove the ancient possession of the fishery, M. gave in evidence an assembly book of the corp., containing entries showing that the fishery was then let for certain rents to a tenant. On exception to this evidence:—Held: such book was admissible in evidence, for the rule is, that ancient documents, coming out of the proper custody, & purporting, upon the face of them, to exercise ownership, such as a lease or a licence, may be given in evidence without proof of possession or payment of rent under them, as being in themselves acts of ownership & proof of possession.—MALCOMSON v. O'DEA (1863), 10 H. L. Cas. 593; 9 L. T. 93; 27 J. P. 820; 9 Jur. N. S. 1135; 12 W. R. 178; 11 E. R. 1155, H. L.

of the life estate was given to M. with the other title deeds on conveyance of the land to him & on the trial it was received in evidence as an ancient document relating to the title & coming from proper custody. It was not executed by the lessees & no counterpart was proved to be in existence:—Held: it was properly admitted in evidence.—DODS v. McDONALD (1905), 36 S. C. R. 231.—CAN.

o. — Alteration of tenancy.—In a suit for ejectment brought in 1894 deft. contended that he held the land on permanent feudal tenure & produced a document, dated 1848, by which his predecessor was given permission to build upon the land. Pltf., landlord, however, produced the counterparts of a subsequent lease to the same tenant deft.'s predecessor, dated 1851, which created a monthly tenancy & of a later one to deft. himself, dated 1859, creating a yearly tenancy determinable on a month's notice, under which provision this suit was brought. Deft. denied that he had executed this document, & contended that it was not proved:—Held: these documents were admissible as ancient documents.—SHAIK HUSAIN v. GOVARDHANDAS PARMANANDAS (1895), 3671.—[In an action brought to determine the title to certain land, pltf. tendered in evidence an ancient document coming from the proper custody which purported to be signed by M., a tenant of a predecessor in title of deft., & which stated that J., a predecessor in title of pltf., had been persuaded to stop all proceedings at law that he then had against M. for wilfully & without leave bringing his sheep & cattle on to J.'s freehold land therein specified, which was assumed to be part of the land in dispute, for which wilful trespass M. bound himself to pay 16s. costs, & that he would for the future keep his own & other people's sheep & cattle from trespassing on the land to the utmost of his power:—Held: the document was admissible in evidence, not as an admission by the tenant as to title, in which case it would not be evidence against the landlord, but as evidence of an act of ownership by a predecessor in title of pltf.—BLANDY-JENKINS v. DUNRAVEN (EARL.), [1899] 2 Ch. 121; 68 L. J. Ch. 589; 81 L. T. 209; 43 Sol. Jo. 656, C. A.

3689. Where account directed to be taken.]—The meaning of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 54, is, that where vouchers have been lost, or the accounts cannot be taken in the ordinary way, the ct. may give special directions. But such directions will not be given unless it appears that the ordinary evidence cannot be had or merely to save expense.

3695. Books kept by purchaser of business—Right of repurchase by vendor—Vendor with access to books.]—O., a cotton spinner, being under advances from B., a cotton broker, for which B. held an equitable mtge. of the mills & premises, came to a general composition with his creditors in July, 1850, paying them the amount of their compositions by means of promissory notes, in which B. joined, & which B. had ultimately to pay. B. got no composition, but the whole spinning mills & business, as a going concern, was sold to B. by O., with a proviso, that if within ten years O. should repay B. principal & interest, or if the profits of the business, after deductions for necessities & repairs, should within ten years repay the principal & interest, then B. should reconvey to O. It was further agreed, that if at any period of the ten years the result of six months' business, on an account thereof being taken, should be that there was not enough net profit to pay interest on the whole principal moneys advanced by B., B. might give O. two months' notice to bar the right of repurchase; & if within that period of two months O. should not pay up to B. all principal & interest then due, all the right & equity of redemption should be barred. B. further agreed to continue to employ O. as manager at £3 per week. In Nov. 1850, stock was taken, & showed sufficient profit. In Sept. 1851, an account was taken, which showed, as B. alleged, a loss of £3,000. Thereupon B. sent a notice dismissing O. from his situation as manager, on the ground of disobedience, & calling on him to pay up in two months the amount of principal & interest, or to stand barred.

The books being kept by B. while O. was manager:—Held: not binding on O.; but O. having free access to the books, they were to be taken as primâ facie evidence, with liberty to O. to surcharge & falsify.—OGDEN v. BATTAMS (1855), 1 Jur. N. S. 791.

3699. —.]—H., who employed Messrs. P. as his solrs., was in the habit of leaving moneys of his in their hands for investment for his benefit. In 1878, Messrs. P., who had lent money of their own to V. & E., an engineering firm, on a mtge. of their works at C., repaid themselves £11,000, part of the debt, out of moneys of H. in their hands & in their books entered the transaction as a "loan" by H. to V. & E., of £11,000 at 5 per cent., the interest being paid to him during his life by Messrs. P. In 1879 H. died intestate, & Messrs. P. then continued to act as solrs. to his administratrix. In 1881, V. & E. bought additional property at C. for their works, & executed a mtge. of that property in fee for £750, which mtge. subsequently became vested in the W. Bank. In 1882, D. became a partner in the firm of V. & E., D. purchasing & taking a conveyance of all the partnership property, & undertaking to pay the partnership debts. D. thereupon granted a lease of the property to the firm. Shortly afterwards D. mtged. the property to Messrs. P. for £50,000 & interest, reserving power to create a charge in priority to that mtge. Under that power D. charged the property with £8,000 in favour of the W. Bank, who thus became entitled to a prior charge for £8,750 on the whole property. D. then retired from his partnership with V. & E., & in Feb. 1883, conveyed the equity of redemption in the property to Messrs. P. In July, 1883, the firm of V. & E. was, through Messrs. P.'s instrumentality, converted into a limited co., & in Dec. 1883, the firm joined with Messrs. P. in conveying the property & goodwill of the firm to the co., subject to the mtge. to the W. Bank, in consideration of paid-up shares allotted to Messrs. P., & to V. & E., who thus became substantially the only shareholders in the co. The legal estate was then outstanding in the bank as to that part of the property which was comprised in their mtge. for £750. Early in 1884 Messrs. P. absconded, & in Mar. 1884, they were adjudicated bkpts. Neither H. nor his administratrix had any knowledge of the transactions entered into by Messrs. P. In June, 1884, the co. was ordered to be wound up. A summons was then taken out by H.'s administratrix, in the winding-up, claiming (a) that subject to the bank's mtge., she became, under "declarations of trust" by Messrs. P., sub-mtgee. for £11,000 & interest, or part owner to that extent, of the £50,000 mtge. to Messrs. P.; (b) priority over the co.; & (c) that subject to the bank's mtge., the securities might be marshalled. Messrs. P. were not represented on the summons, but an order had been made by CAVE, J., in their bkpcy., on the application of H.'s administratrix, the co. not being a party, declaring that, as against the trustees in the bkpcy., £11,000, part of the £50,000 mtge., formed part of H.'s estate, & that appct. was entitled to stand as first mtgee. of the mtged. premises for the £11,000. As evidence in support of the summons the claimant relied on the above-mentioned entry in Messrs. P.'s books; on entries in a cash account furnished to her by them of half-yearly payments of interest on the £11,000; on a tabular statement of "mtges." in the residuary account of H.'s estate prepared by them in 1880 on her behalf for the Legacy Duty Office, one of the items being expressed to be a mtge. on "V. & E.'s property at C. for £11,000 at 5 per cent."; & on a letter written in 1883 by Messrs. P. to her, containing a similar tabulated statement of "mtges." forming part of H.'s estate:—Held: although the entries, etc., so relied on were not evidence as against third parties such as the co., yet as against Messrs. P., they established a declaration of trust of a mtge. for £11,000 & interest extending to all the property at C. belonging to V. & E. at the date of the letter of 1883, & not merely to their property as existing in 1878.—Re VERNON, EWENS & CO. (1886), 32 Ch. 3710. ———.]—In an action of debt by the lessee of the corpn. of N. for toll traverse for a waggon, & a market toll for cattle:—Held: (1) an information quo warranto by the A.-G. of Queen Elizabeth against the corpn., in respect of the customs they claimed & used, was not receivable in evidence, as it did not appear that it was prosecuted, such an information, like an indictment, not being evidence, unless there be the finding of a jury upon it; (2) an exemplification of a judgment in an action of trespass by the corpn., for setting up a stall in a market, with a justification pleaded of such right without paying toll, was not inadmissible, as it might connect itself with the issue in the progress of the same; (3) a counterpart of a feoffment by the corpn. to an individual of land, etc., in the town of N., produced from among the corpn. muniments, was inadmissible, it appearing that no rent was received in respect of the property.

It was proved that it had been the practice, as long as the witness who was conversant with the subject could remember, for the town treasurer to furnish the town clerk with information, from which he made out his, the treasurer's, accounts, & also for the treasurer to attend before the auditors, unless prevented by illness or accident, & produce vouchers verifying the town clerk's statement. Entries in books of that description, commencing with the year 1766, were tendered in evidence. Some of them were signed by the auditors as allowed, & to some of them appeared only an unsigned entry of their having been examined:—Held: (4) those which were signed by the auditors were admissible without proof of any attendance by the particular treasurer before the auditors, or of any entry in his writing, charging himself; partly on the ground that there was reasonable evidence of his having made the town clerk his agent for the making out of the accounts.

Deft. in evidence read a part of a record roll of presentments before justices in eyre, & it appearing that there was one for each hundred, & that reference was made in one part to another part of the same roll:—Held: (5) pltf. was entitled to have read such parts as he thought proper.—*LANCUM v. It was proved in evidence on the trial that T. had declared that he, T., had made such entry for the express purpose of establishing the legitimacy, & the time of the birth of his eldest son N., in case the same should be called in question, in any case or in any cause whatsoever, by any person, after the death of him, T.:—Held: such entry in such Bible, or any other book, or on any other piece of paper, could be received to prove that N. was the legitimate son of T., as evidence of the declaration of T. in matter of pedigree, but with strong circumstances of suspicion on account of its particularity. BERKELEY PEERAGE CASE (1811), 4 Camp. 401, H. 3732. ————Prayer-book.—The case of a claimant to a peerage depending on the genuineness of entries written in an old prayer-book, dated 1728 & 1729, several witnesses, whose occupations for a long time made them so conversant with manuscripts of different ages, that they could take on themselves to name the period in which any manuscript previous to the year 1700 was written, were all of opinion that the entries were written in the early part & before the middle of the last century, & at or about the period of their dates:—Held: such evidence was but small testimony, hardly entitled to any weight, especially as the book containing the entries was not satisfactorily identified.—TRACY PEERAGE (1843), 10 Cl. & Fin. 154; 1 L. T. O. S. 310; 8 E. R. 700, H. L.

3733. ————Missal.—(1) A return to a Royal commission not signed nor sealed by the comrs. is not admissible to prove any matter stated therein.

(2) Entries in a family missal are admitted as evidence of births, deaths, & marriages of members of the family just like similar entries in a family Bible.—SLANE PEERAGE (1835), 5 Cl. & Fin. 23; 10 Bl. N. S. 1; 7 E. R. 311.

3734. ————]—Pltfs., in order to prove that the person under whom they claimed was descended from H. J., produced an old religious book containing the following entry: "E. J., her book, June 15, 1680, the gift of H. J. her father." It did not appear by whom the entry was made; but the book contained, in other parts of it, entries of the births of other members of the family which were proved to be in their father's handwriting; & moreover the book had been preserved by the family:—Held: the first-mentioned entry was admissible in evidence.—HOOD v. BEAUCHAMP (1836), 8 Sim. 26; 59 E. R. 11.

SUB-SECT. 6.—LETTERS GENERALLY.

A. Admissibility.

3735. General rule—In actions of contract.—The action was founded on contract, & any letter from one of the parties to the other, whether answered or not answered, if proved to have been PART IV. SECT. 13, SUB-SECT. 6.—A.

a. In actions of contract—Letters between solicitors of parties.—A., whose wife owned a certain freehold property, wrote to B., the owner of a certain leasehold property, with reference to the properties, as follows: "If you will assume my mtge., & pay me in cash, $3,700, I will assume your mtge. of $5,000 on the leasehold." B. replied "Your offer of this date, for the exchange of my property on K. Street for your property on St. G. Street, I will accept on your terms."—Held: in an action by B., for specific performance of the contract, correspondence between the solrs. of the sent & received is evidence (MARTIN, B.).—GORE v. HAWSEY (1862), 3 F. & F. 509, N. P.

3736. Letter written by wife to husband—Spouses living apart.—In an action for adultery, letters written by the wife to the husband, while living apart from each other, proved to have been written at the time they bore date, & when there was no reason to suspect collusion, are admissible evidence, without showing distinctly the cause of their living apart.—TRELAWNEY v. COLEMAN (1817), 1 B. & Ald. 90; 2 Stark. 191; 106 E. R. 33.

Annotations.—Apld. Willis v. Bernard (1832), 8 Bing. 376. Refd. Scholey v. Goodman (1823), 8 Moore, C. P. 350.

3737. —[In an action for criminal conversation, the letters of the wife to her husband & others are admissible in evidence to show the state of the wife's feelings, although they may also state a fact which would not strictly be evidence.—WILLIS v. BERNARD (1832), 8 Bing. 376; 1 Moo. & S. 584; 1 L. J. C. P. 118; 131 E. R. 439.

3738. Necessity for proof of handwriting.—SHEPPARD v. RADFORD, No. 2025, ante.

3739. —[S., the managing clerk of pltf.'s attorney, wrote a letter to deft., addressed to him at his residence, which letter was proved to have been put into the post. S. proved that he received an answer to his letter:—Held: that the letter thus received in answer was admissible in evidence without proof of the defendant's handwriting.

It was proved by S. that he received a letter of earlier date, & in the same handwriting as the letter last before mentioned:—Held: this letter was also admissible in evidence without proof of deft.'s handwriting; & also a copy of a letter written by S. of still earlier date, to which the last-mentioned letter was an answer, might be given in evidence, the original not having been produced after a notice to produce, without any proof that the original had been put into the post or had reached deft.—OVENSTON v. WILSON (1845), 2 Car. & Kir. 1, N. P.

3740. —[Letter in handwriting of sender's son.]—Where deft. was in the habit of employing his son to write letters in his name, & a letter without signature, but in the son's handwriting, & bearing a postmark, was tendered in evidence:—Held: it was inadmissible.—BARTON v. HUTCHINSON (1819), 2 Car. & Kir. 712, N. P.

3742. Letter in answer to previous letter.—Deft. gave in evidence a letter of pltf. dated Feb. 17, which purported to be an answer to a letter written to pltf. by W. Pltf.'s counsel proved W.'s handwriting to a letter addressed to pltf., & dated Feb. 16, but which had no postmark, & wished to give this letter in evidence as being the letter to which that of Feb. 17 was an answer:—Held: the letter of Feb. 16 was not receivable in evidence, unless it were shown that it was the letter to which pltf.'s letter was an answer, or, at least, that it was in existence before the date of pltf.'s letter.—M'NAMARA v. GIBBS (1842), Car. & M. 412, N. P.

3743. Letters in possession of deceased person.—MONYPENNY v. MASCALL (1815), 5 L. T. O. S. 388.

3744. Letter written by deceased solicitor.—A letter written by a deceased solr., proposing to act as the solr. of a particular individual:—Held: not receivable in evidence, as having been written by the authority of that individual, on proof merely that there was such a solr. in practice at the time, that the letter was in his handwriting, & that it came from the custody of the person to whom it purported to be addressed. In order to render the letter receivable, it must be proved aliunde that the writer had been duly authorised by the individual for whom he professed to act as solr.—BRIGHT v. OSBORN (1858), 1 F. & F. 267, N. P.]

3757. Ordinary course of business—Letter placed on table cleared by porter.—[It is not sufficient prima facie evidence of a letter being sent by the post, that it was written by a merchant in his counting-house, & put down upon a table for the purposes of being carried from thence to the post office, & that by the course of business in the counting-house, all letters deposited on this table are carried to the post office by a porter.—*HETHERINGTON v. 3783. ———.]—A claim for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (c. 58), s. 2, is not "made" by a workman until it has been communicated to the employers; but when a letter making a claim has been properly addressed, stamped, & posted, a presumption arises that it has been delivered, which it is for the employers to rebut.

On & prior to Sept. 18, 1915, a munition worker met with accidents arising out of & in the course of her employment whereby one of her eyes was injured, & after working on for about a fortnight became incapacitated until the following July. On Mar. 22, 1916, the employers received notice of claim for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (c. 58), but refused to accept it, as it was not made within six months of the accident as required by sect. 2. The worker, however, alleged that she had posted a notice of claim to the works manager on Dec. 29, 1915. The employers called evidence to show that all letters were received by their correspondence department & sorted & remitted to the various departments, & proved that no such letter had been received by the claims department. No one was called from the correspondence department. The county ct. judge held that a notice of claim had been duly posted to the employers on Dec. 29, 1915, & made an award in favour of the worker without making it clear by the judgment whether he was of opinion that the letter had been received & lost in the correspondence department or lost in the post. He also took the view that in any case the failure to give notice within six months was occasioned by reasonable cause:—Held: (1) there was no ground on which the failure to give notice of claim within six months could be held to be occasioned by reasonable cause; (2) the County Ct. Judge must be taken to have decided that the letter had reached the employers' correspondence office & been lost there.—WATTS v. VICKERS, LTD. (1916), 86 L. J. K. B. 177; 116 L. T. 172; 33 T. L. Immediately after the deposit of the list they sent to the occupier of the hereditament notice of the altered values contained in a letter, which, prepaid & properly addressed, was put into the post. The occupier did not receive the notice, & therefore raised no objection to the valuation within the time specified by the valuation (Metropolis) Act, 1869 (c. 67). On the hearing of a rule nisi for a mandamus directed to the assessment committee, ordering them to hear & determine the objection:—Held: as a letter containing the notice had been properly addressed & prepaid & put into the post, by Valuation (Metropolis) Act, 1869 (c. 67), s. 65, a service of the notice was to be presumed, although in fact it had never been received by the occupier.—*R. v. Brothers kept an account, as follows: "I have not banked any money this last eight months, as I have dissolved partnership with my brother B. last April . . .":—Held: the implied admission of partnership was separable from the statement that it had been dissolved; & the letter contained evidence which ought to be left to the jury, & from which an existing partnership, & liability on the part of A. at the time the cause of action arose, might be presumed.—*BROWN v. He applied to both accordingly, & was refused a cargo by both. An action was brought by the owners to recover the freight; &, in order to do away with the effect of the proof as to B.'s refusal, a letter from B. to defts. was tendered in evidence, to show that, prior to such refusal, B. had renounced their agency:—Held: to be inadmissible.—HASSELL v. 3807. ——— Want of authority—Absence of ratification.]—Letters written by a deceased agent to his principal subsequently to the date of an agreement alleged to have been made by him on behalf of the principal, detailing conversations with the other party, are not admissible on behalf of the principal to prove that no such agreement was entered into, or that the agent was not authorised to make it, & that the principal never knew of nor ratified it.

Although the alleged agreement was verbal only, & the agent afterwards, & after the writing of the letters, signed a written agreement confirming the verbal one, the letters are inadmissible to prove that the agent was not authorised to sign the written agreement.

It makes no difference that the agent is dead, unless the letters were written at the time of the conversations detailed, & it was the agent's duty to communicate them to his principal at that time.—TURNER v. 3808. ———.]—In an action against brokers for entering into a contract with pltf., as agents for sellers, without authority, it appeared that the broker had been at first put into communication with them as to the sale of a particular cargo of wool, & had learnt what their terms were, except as to price, which was to be afterwards agreed upon, & as to which he had been referred to their agent to complete the matter. The agent, as the broker was aware, received letters from time to time from the sellers, insisting on adherence to the terms they had required, & he was more or less aware of the effect of these letters. Ultimately, however, deft., acting as broker for both parties, concluded with the agent a contract upon different terms, & including other ships, which was at once repudiated by the sellers:—Held: the sellers' letters to their agent were admissible for pltf. to show the want of authority.—*HUGHES v. 3811. To prove that letter constituted official record of transaction.]—In an action for a liquidated sum, as a stipulated reason for obtaining the restoration of a pension from the East India Co., the official letter of the directors announcing the restoration, it being shown that no minute existed of the transaction, & that the letter formed the official record of it, was received as evidence of the fact; & it being shown that pltf. composed all deft.'s letters to the Co. on the subject, & it not appearing that any other means had been used to obtain the pension except those which pltf. had employed:—Held: this was not sufficient evidence that he had obtained it, until aided by an admission of deft. to that effect.—*ABDOOLAH v. 3812. Of tenancy.]—Where a deft. takes possession of premises on the death of a former tenant & an action of ejectment is brought against him without giving notice to quit; if, to defend himself from that action, he produces a letter from pltf. treating him as tenant & claiming rent, that will be conclusive evidence of his tenancy to pltf. in an action for use & occupation, though he alleged that he produced it only for the purpose of showing that he was tenant in possession.—TOWNSEND v. DAVIS (1801), For. 120; 145 E. R. 1132.

3813. Of character in which debt contracted.]—MURRAY v. SOMERVILLE (1809), 2 Camp. 99, n.

3815.—[A. & B. in partnership together, had an account at a bank where B. also kept a private account. The bank having a balance against the firm, applied to B. for payment, when B. returned for answer, that the debt was his own, & had nothing to do with the partnership accounts. B. afterwards gave the bank a promissory note, signed in the partnership name, for the amount of the balance. The bank afterwards sued A. upon the note, & recovered the amount of it from him:—Held: A. might maintain an action against B. for money paid to B.'s use, as B. had admitted that the debt for which the note was given was his own, & was not connected with the partnership accounts.—CROSS v. CHESHIRE (1851), 7 Exch. 43; 21 L. J. Ex. 3; 18 L. T. O. S. 65; 15 Jur. 993.

3816. Of ownership of property—Ship.]—A letter written by an agent, though not known to be such by the party to whom the letter was written, speaking of a ship, as his own ship, is not conclusive against him in an action on a policy of insurance, in which the question of ownership is raised. He may still prove that he is only an agent, & that others are, in fact, the owners of the vessel.—TULLOCH v. BOYD (1816), Holt, N. P. 487.

3817. Of liability.]—As against the master of a vessel in an action for not safely conveying goods to a foreign port consigned to pltf's, evidence that the goods were seized in another foreign port by the govt. coupled with a letter of deft.'s, in which he acknowledges that he is accountable for the goods, is sufficient to warrant the jury in finding for pltf's. without any further proof of the cause of seizure.—CULLEN v. MACALPINE (1819), 2 Stark. 552.

3818. Authorship denied.]—Where, in proof of an acceptance alleged to have been forged by the drawer, a letter purporting to have been signed by deft. is put in as an admission, & as part of pltf.'s case in chief, & its authorship was denied, it is left to the jury with the whole of the case. But a consent by deft. to a judgment in an action on a former bill drawn by the same person was held inadmissible as irrelevant.

How does the fact that she [def't.] admitted a former bill prove that she authorised the drawer to accept bills in her name, unless the former bill was accepted by his hand? & even if you showed that a single instance would be no evidence of a general authority (COCKBURN, C.J.).—PHILPOT v. STOCK (1860), 2 F. & F. 180.

3819. Of membership in company.]—Where a pltf. sued the members of a joint-stock co. for goods sold & delivered, & the defence was, that he was himself a member of the co.:—Held: (1) his own letters, in which he spoke of himself as a member, were evidence to show that he was a member, although it was provided by the partnership deed, that none should be members who did not execute the deed & it did not appear that pltf. had executed it; (2) those letters were evidence of his being a member at the time at which they were written, although his shares had been entered in the books of the co. as transferred to another person; the provisions of the deed requiring the execution of a formal transfer, which it did not

Held: as it appeared from the evidence that pltf. allowed the judgment debtor to make other declarations with respect to the property, it might be presumed that he permitted him to make those contained in the letter, which was offered in evidence & rejected, & there being such a foundation laid at the trial as showed prima facie a joint interest, or an interest of some kind, between pltf. & the judgment debtor with regard to the goods

r. Of ownership of property.]—In trespass for seizing pltf.'s goods, under an execution against the goods of A.:—Held: a letter written by A. before any third party had an interest in questioning the right to the goods, was evidence to show the footing on which pltf. & A. then stood with respect to the goods.—*ROBINSON v. 3820. Of title.—In an action by assignees of a bkpt., admissions of their title as assignees by deft. in letters addressed to the solr. to the commission & to one of the assignees, are prima facie evidence of title, so as to dispense with strict proof, though there is a plea denying the title of pltf. as assignees, & notice to dispute has been given.—*INGLIS v. 3822. Of authorship of former letter—Letter signed by procurator.—A letter signed by procurator is admissible, if unexplained, to prove an admission of the authorship of a former letter.—GAUNTLETT v. WHITWORTH (1849), 2 Car. & Kir. 720.

D. Effect of Not Answering Letter.

3824. Whether evidence—Against party receiving letter.—Pltf. wrote a letter to deft., which deft. did not answer. At the trial, pltf.'s counsel called for it under a notice to produce, & wished to give evidence of its contents:—Held: such evidence was not admissible; but if, by the letter, pltf. demanded a certain sum, so much only of the copy of it might be read as stated the sum demanded.

It is too much to say, that a man, by omitting to answer a letter at all events, admits the truth of the statements that letter contains.—FAIRLIE v. DENTON (1828), 3 C. & P. 103, N. P.

Annotation:—Consd. Gaskill v. Skene (1850), 14 Q. B. 664.

3825. ———.]—A. & B. were tenants to pltf. of certain premises for a term of three years. B. never occupied the premises, but A., on the expiration of the term, held over. No assent of B. to the holding over was proved. An action for use & occupation having been brought by pltf. against A. & B., in which A. suffered judgment by default, pltf. tendered in evidence a letter written by his agent to B., after the expiration of the term, in which he demanded rent alleged to be due subsequently to the term. No answer was returned to this letter:—Held: as there was no evidence of B.'s assent in this case, deft. B. was not liable for the rent, & therefore the letter to him, although admissible, was not entitled to much weight.—DRAPER v. CROFTS (1816), 15 M. & W. 166; 15 L. J. Ex. 92.

3826. ———.]—Letters containing a demand, written to a deft., & unanswered by him, & in reference to which he has afterwards made unsatisfactory statements, are admissible in evidence against him, although they also state facts showing how the demand arises.—GASKILL v. SKENE (1850), 14 Q. B. 664; 19 L. J. Q. B. 275; 14 L. T. O. S. 374; 14 Jur. 597; 117 E. R. 256.

3827. ———.]—Where, in an action for goods sold & delivered, the question is whether deft. or a third person was the purchaser, letters of the third party to pltf. are admissible evidence, although not acted upon or answered by pltf.—DICKSON v. MALCOLM (BARONET) (1853), 21 L. T. O. S. 199, N. P.

3829. ———.]—Pltf. sold a hogshead of cider to deft., by sample, as good draught cider. After the arrival of the cask, deft. on May 28 wrote to pltf. "The cider differs from the sample, & the little I have sold has been complained of in every instance; should this continue I shall be obliged to return it." Pltf. did not answer this letter till June 24. Deft. in trying to sell it used 20 gallons, but finding it unserviceable, refused to pay for the rest, which he returned to pltf. It was found as a fact that the 20 gallons were more than sufficient to enable the defendant to test the quality of the bulk:—Held: the omission of pltf. to answer the letter of May 28 was evidence from which a jury might presume that pltf. acquiesced in the further trial of the cider, & that deft. had not so accepted the bulk as to be bound to pay for the whole.—LUCY v. MOUFLET (1860), 5 H. & N. 229; 29 L. J. Ex. 110; 157 E. R. 1168.

3830. ———.]—Pltf. did the builder's work, & C. the carpenter's work to a house occupied by deft. An agent for pltf. & C. sent their separate bills to deft. in a letter signed by him "per proc.," requesting payment. Deft. wrote to C. in answer, that the pltf. had been expressly informed that the work was to be paid for by the landlord. Pltf. saw this letter shortly after it was written, & did not at the time deny the facts stated in it:—Held: the letter was admissible in evidence against pltf.—CARNE v. STEER (1860), 5 H. & N. 628; 29 L. J. Ex. 281; 2 L. T. 189; 157 E. R. 1330.

3831. ———.]—It seems to have been at one time thought that a duty was cast upon the recipient of a letter to answer it, & that his omission to do so amounted to evidence of an admission of the truth of the statements contained in it. But that notion has been long since exploded & the absurdity of acting upon it demonstrated. It may be otherwise where the relation between the parties is such that a reply might be properly expected (WILLES, J.).—RICHARDS v. GELLATLY (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 127; 26 L. T. 435; 20 W. J., in a letter to R. written in 1889, had referred to the property as "your land":—Held: the proper conclusion upon the whole evidence was that the land was really R.'s property.—MILLER v. MCCUAIG (1900), 13 Man. L. R. 220.—CAN.

b. Of agreement—Letters vouching payment of rent.—Pltf.'s receipts & letters, vouching the payment of the rent in full, & demanding it upon that basis, are evidence to sustain the agreement pleaded.—LYSAGHT v. DELACOUR (1859), 8 I. C. L. R. 453; 11 Ir. Jur. 205.—IR.

who receives that letter must answer it if he means to dispute the fact that he did so agree. So, where merchants are in dispute one with the other in the course of carrying on some business negotiations, & one writes to the other, "but you promised me that you would do this or that," if the other does not answer the letter, but proceeds with the negotiations, he must be taken to admit the truth of the statement. But such cases as those are wholly unlike the case of a letter charging a man with some offence or meanness. Is it the ordinary habit of mankind, of which the cts. will take notice, to answer such letters; & must it be taken, according to the ordinary practice of mankind, that if a man does not answer he admits the truth of the charge made against him? If it were so, life would be unbearable. A man might day by day write such letters, which, if they were not answered, would be brought forward as evidence of the truth of the charges made in them. The ordinary & wise practice is not to answer them—to take no notice of them. Unless it is made out to be the ordinary practice of mankind to answer, I cannot see that not answering is any evidence that the person who receives such letters admits the truth of the statements contained in them (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—*WIEDEMANN v. 3833. ———.—[.]—A firm of contractors tendered for the execution of certain work for the Comrs. of Works. The tender having been accepted, a contract in writing, to be signed & sealed on behalf of both parties, was prepared. Before the execution of this document by the Comrs. of Works the contractors wrote to say that they were sending the contract executed by them "on the assumption that in the event of the Bill dealing with workmen's insurance now before Parliament becoming law, the payments thereunder which will fall upon this co. as employers will be recouped to the co. under clause 15 of the contract." No reply was received to this letter, & the contract was executed by the Comrs. of Works. In an arbitration the arbitrator stated a case for the opinion of the ct. to ascertain whether the terms of the letter were binding on the comrs.:—Held: the comrs. were not bound by the terms of the letter, nor stopped from relying upon the true construction of the sealed contract.

No authority has been cited to me, nor, I am inclined to think could such an authority be cited, that persons are estopped from denying the true construction of a contract by failing to answer a letter, in which the other party to the contract says that he thinks that the contract means so & so 3834. ———.—[.]—There may be circumstances in which there is a duty to answer letters, or in which the probability is so strong that a letter would be answered, that an inference may be drawn from silence. 3835. ———.—[.]—The question of not immediately repudiating an accusation is one of very considerable difficulty, & is, in my view, entirely a question of degree. If a charge of outrageous conduct is made against a person in public, & he says nothing, I have always thought that a jury would be entitled to treat his silence as an admission, if it was the class of accusation in respect of which, & the people in the neighbourhood were the class of people from whom, a repudiation of an untrue charge would be expected. But I do not think the same principle applies to accusations made by private letter. Lunatics write all sorts of letters to all manner of people, & if the receiver of a letter from a lunatic making a charge were bound to write at once & deny it, the time of judges, at any rate, would be fully taken up by answering the letters. I quite agree that the mere fact of receiving a statement by letter is not enough to justify justices or a jury in finding corroboration (SCRUTTON, L.J.).—THOMAS v. JONES, [1921] 1 K. d. ———.—[.]—In trespass for an assault, the act was proved, but not that deft. committed it. To supply this, letters were put in which had passed between the attorneys on either side with a view of settlement, the first written expressly "without prejudice." g. ———.—[.]—In a suit for Rs.465, deft. pleaded limitation. 3838. Meaning of without prejudice.—A letter containing an offer written "without prejudice" means "I make you an offer, if you do not accept it, this letter is not to be used against me." "without prejudice" by letters, & at a personal interview with them, on the footing that pltfs. had begun to use, & were preparing extensive plant for further using, a process of manufacture which defts. alleged to be an infringement of their patent. By the letters, as well as at the interview, defts. asserted that unless an amicable arrangement could be attained they should insist upon their legal rights. No arrangement was made, nor did defts. commence any proceedings:—Held: defts. had made threats against the plaintiffs within the meaning of the Patents Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32.

(2) What I understand by negotiation without prejudice is this: pltf. or deft., a party litigant, may say to his opponent: "Now you & I are likely to be engaged in severe warfare; if that warfare proceeds you understand I shall take every advantage of you that the game of war permits; you must expect no mercy & I shall ask for none; but before bloodshed let us discuss the matter & let us agree that for the purpose of this discussion we will be more or less frank; we will try to come to terms & that nothing that each of us says shall ever be used against the other so as to interfere with our rights at war, if unfortunately war results." That is what I understand to be the meaning not the definition of "without prejudice" (KEKEWICK, J.).—KURTZ & Co. v. SPENCE & SONS (1887), 57 L. J. Ch. 238; 58 L. T. 438; 5 R. P. C. 161.

3840. —.]—(1) Letters written without prejudice are inadmissible to show that there is good cause for depriving a successful litigant of costs under Ord. 65, r. 1.

(2) What is the meaning of the words "without prejudice." I think they mean without prejudice to the position of the writer of the letter. If the terms proposed in the letter are accepted a complete contract is established, & the letter, although written without prejudice, operates to alter the position of affairs & to establish a contract of which specific performance would be given. Supposing a letter is written without prejudice, it is, according both to authority & to good sense, that the answer also should be without prejudice (LINDLEY, L.J.).—WALKER v. WILSHER (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 335; 58 L. J. Q. B. 501; 54 J. P. 213; 37 W. R. 723; 5 T. L. R. 649, C. A.

Each contract contained a clause that the orders were subject to strike or lock-out clauses & force majeure, fire, or breakdown. After war was declared disputes arose as to each of the contracts, but ultimately these disputes were settled "without prejudice" by agreements for an increase in price. While the rearrangements for continued supply were in force regulations were issued under a Proclamation made in Feb. 1916, fixing the quantity of paper or paper making material allowed to be imported under licence at two-thirds of the licensee's consumption in 1914. Further disputes then arose as to prices demanded by resps. which increased prices applts. paid under protest, reserving their right to bring an action to recover the moneys paid in excess of the contract prices & damages for breach of contract:—Held: the words "without prejudice" only meant that the rearrangement was not to be treated as prejudicing the position of the parties under the contracts in reference to any period other than the particular one in reference to which they were then arriving at a fresh agreement, & as there was nothing unreasonable in the rearrangement applts. could not recover the excess paid up to Mar. 1, 1916.—*HULTON (E.) & Co., LTD. v. 3855. Question of costs.—(1) A railway co. having entered into possession of certain lands required for their works after notice by the landowner that they were not to enter until payment of the purchase money, an injunction was granted, against their retaining possession. They afterwards entered into a long correspondence "without prejudice." Ultimately they paid the purchase & compensation money into ct.; & then moved only to dissolve the injunction. Pltf. wished, on that motion, that all proceedings might be stayed & to go into the general question, but defts. refused. Thereupon pltf. moved to that effect:—Held: defts. ought to pay all the costs of the suit, including the costs of this motion.

(2) The correspondence was to be "without prejudice"; which means, not that the parties are not to be bound by the statements made in the course of that correspondence, but only that the whole is to be considered as an amicable treaty, not to be strictly construed to the injury of any party (WOOD, V.-C.)—WOODARD v. EASTERN COUNTIES & LONDON & BLACKWALL RY. CO. (1855), 1 Jur. N. S. 899.

3858. To prove waiver of notice of dishonour—On acceptance of conditional offer.—Deft. being sued on a bill of exchange drawn & indorsed by him, wrote to pltf.'s attorneys in a letter headed "Without prejudice," as follows: "I never had any notice of dishonour of this bill, but if the debt will be accepted without costs, I do not want Mr. Holdsworth to be the loser of it, & I would give a cheque." Thereupon pltf. took out a rule to by a party in the course of a cause cannot be read against him, it may be read by him on the question of costs, in order to show that he had made such an offer as rendered the further prosecution of the suit unnecessary.—BOYD v. SIMPSON (1879), 26 Gr. 278.—CAN.

discontinue the action on payment of costs, which were afterwards taxed & paid by him. Before the costs were paid pltf. commenced another action on the bill against deft., & at the trial offered the above letter as evidence of waiver of notice of dishonour; it was admitted by the learned judge & the jury found for the plaintiff. On a motion for a rule to set the verdict aside upon the ground that the letter, being "without prejudice," was not admissible:—Held: the letter was a conditional offer to waive notice of dishonour, which became absolute when pltf. accepted the terms by discontinuing the first action & foregoing costs, & was therefore rightly admitted in evidence.—HOLDSWORTH v. DIMSDALE (1871), 24 L. T. 360; 19 W. R. 798.

3859. To prove act of bankruptcy.]—A written notice sent by a debtor to one of his creditors that he has suspended payment or is about to suspend payment though expressed to be of his debts written "without prejudice" is admissible in evidence to prove an act of bkpcy., upon the hearing of a bkpcy. petition.—*Re DAINTRY, Ex p. 3860. Not to prove malice.]—Counsel for pltf. in his opening speech read a letter which was written without prejudice & which was undoubtedly well calculated to influence the jury against deft. . . . It is not necessary to discuss how it could have been evidence against deft. under any circumstances. It was a letter written by the husband to one of the solrs. in the case & assumed to be evidence of malice on the part of deft. because it was a copy in her handwriting. I will only say that I do not assent to its being evidence against her, its only relevance being to show malice by her & simply without more proof of authorship than that it was in her handwriting & a copy of her husband's letter (LOID HALSBURY, C.).—WATT v. WATT, [1905] A. C. 115; 74 L. J. K. B. 438; 92 L. T. 480; 53 W. R. 547; 21 T. L. R. 386, H. L.

SUB-SECT. 8.—PRIVATE AND CONFIDENTIAL LETTERS.

3861. Admissibility.]—An action having been commenced by a clergyman for the rescission of a contract on the ground of misrepresentation by deft., deft. wrote to pltf. inclosing a copy of the statement of claim in the action, with marginal comments of an abusive character, & stating his intention of publishing & sending to all the clergy in London copies of the pleading so annotated, & of his letter to pltf. He had previously sent to pltf. letters on the subject of the action, marked "private & confidential" in which he made other threats as to publication:—Held: deft. could not, by making his letters "private," etc., impose upon pltf., who had refused to hold any personal communication with him, any condition as to the way in which they might be used.—KITCAT v. SHARP (1882), as reported in 48 L. T. 64.

3863. For what purposes admitted—All purposes.]—In an action for rent by the landlord's exor. a cheque was put in, which bore at the back an indorsement by deft. confirming his statement that it was given as payment in advance of the rent.

The cheque is in evidence, & in evidence for all purposes. How can I prevent the jury from seeing anything on it? What the indorsement amounts to is another question. It is a general rule as to all such instruments, that if put in they are evidence altogether, & taken as read. What the cheque proves is payment, but it is impossible for me to exclude what is upon it. A parol contract may be varied by parol, & the rent made payable in advance (BYLES, J.).—*NASH v. SUB-SECT. 12.—WILLS.

3880. Admissibility—Unexecuted will.]—In questions of pedigree, the circumstance that a document containing a relevant declaration by a deceased declarant is not complete for its primary purpose does not affect the admissibility of the declaration. Thus, where the question was one as to the marriage of A. & B., both deceased, a declaration by A. that B. passed as his wife contained in a draft will in A.'s handwriting:—Held: admissible, although such draft will was never executed by A.

PART IV. SECT. 13, SUB-SECT. 11.

3872 I. Production—Jurisdiction of court to order.]—The ct. ordered the agent of a telegraph co. to produce all telegrams sent by resp. & his alleged agent during the election, reserving to resp. the right to move the ct. of appeal on the point; & the responsibility as to consequences, if it were wrong so to order, to rest on petitioner.—SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION CASE, HOPKINS v. OLIVER (1875), H. E. C. 243.—CAN.

o. Whether secondary evidence admissible—Proof of receipt by addressee.]—In an action claiming damages for wrongfully procuring plff.'s son to leave his service & refusing to allow him to return, secondary evidence was offered & rejected of a telegram sent by plff. to deft. demanding the son's return:—Held: the evidence should have been received. The same principle that admits proof that letters were deposited in the post office duly addressed, as tending to show that they were received by the persons to whom they are addressed, applies to telegrams.—WHITE v. FLEMING (1888), 20 N. S. R. (8 Lt. & G.) 335.—CAN.

Upon questions of pedigree inscriptions upon tombstones are admitted; as it must be supposed, the relations of the family would not permit an inscription without foundation to remain. So engravings upon rings are admitted; upon the presumption, that a person would not wear a ring with an error upon it (LORD ERSKINE, C.).—VOWLES v. YOUNG (1806), 13 Ves. 140; 33 E. R. 247.

(3) Semble: a copy of an inscription on a tombstone in the burial ground of a Wesleyan chapel is also not evidence for this purpose.—WHITTUCK v. WATERS (1830), 4 C. & P. 375, N. P.

3889. ———.]—(1) Qualification as to evidence of tradition, even upon pedigree. (2) The inscription having been effaced twenty-five years ago its contents were allowed to be proved by the secondary evidence furnished by copies made while the inscription was entire.

Such copies are not inadmissible in evidence, merely because, at the time when they were made, the possibility of a claim or controversy at some future period was contemplated.

(3) Semble: a recital that A. is a child of the marriage of the persons therein named, occurring in a deed by which the personal representative of the last surviving trustee of the premises comprised in the deed assigns the premises to A., who is not related to the assignor, & whose sole title to the assignment is in the character of a child of such marriage, is not admissible as a declaration to prove the legitimacy of A. in a question of pedigree between third parties.—*SLANEY v. 3901. — County map.—A disputed right of way started from a public road, & passing a devious course for about a mile across an estate, came out into another public road. It was in the nature of a rough field or occupation road & was unfenced, & had existed more or less in the same course since 1826, & had gates across it at certain places. It had never been repaired by any public authority. The public used it both before & after 1818. Pltf. was the owner of part of the estate & the occupier of the whole of it. In 1818 a predecessor in title of pltf. purchased part of the estate, & the plan annexed to the particulars of sale showed the way where it passed through part of the property, & stated that it was a public road, & a copy of this plan was attached to a statutory declaration, identifying certain plots of land, made at the same time by the then agent of the estate. Pltf., in 1882, placed a bank across the way at a certain place & diverted it, & afterwards committed other acts of interruption:—Held: old county maps, showing the way, published, one in 1797 by the King's Geographer, & the other in 1826 by A., a well known country surveyor, & produced from the British Museum by the proper official, were admissible as some evidence of reputation.—*TRAFFORD v. The Metropolis Management Act, 1862 (c. 102), s. 75, enacted that no building should, without the consent in writing of the Metropolitan Board of Works, be erected beyond the general line of buildings if the distance of that line from the highway did not exceed fifty feet. On the hearing of a special case stated by quarter sessions on an appeal from a decision by justices on an objection under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, raising the question whether the alleged street was a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large, it appeared that fresh evidence bearing on the question, consisting in deposited plans & a book of reference referred to in a Turnpike Act, had been discovered since the hearing at quarter sessions; & the ct. remitted the case to quarter sessions in order that the fresh evidence might be considered.—*VYNER v. 3919. ———.]—In a defence of a modus for the produce of an ancient farm, it is indispensably necessary to show by evidence that the farm is ancient. Producing a map of the lands of which the farm was stated to consist, & proving the accuracy of the description of the lands in the map, as compared with them in 1803, with reference to the time of commencing the suit, is no proof of such farm being ancient, nor sufficient even to raise such a presumption that it may be capable of further proof, as to furnish ground for giving an opportunity of establishing it by an issue.—*STUART v. 3920. ———.]—To prove public right of way.]—In order to prove that there was a public right of way over & along certain closes which were part of a manor, deft. put in evidence a map which had been used by a deceased steward of the manor at the manor cts. for the purpose of defining the copyholds. In it there appeared a space marked out by two lines crossing the closes in question and called Mellow Lane. There were occupation-ways as well as public highways marked upon the map, but there was nothing to distinguish one from the other, nor was there anything to show that the space marked out as above mentioned was a public highway at all:—Held: the map was inadmissible.—*PIPE v. Carlisle Tables—To prove average duration of life at particular age.]—At the trial of an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1816 (c. 93), brought for the benefit of the mother, widow, & children of R., claiming damages from defts. for having by their negligence caused the death of R., it was proved that the deceased was under a covenant to pay his mother an annuity of £200 during their joint lives. A witness was then called for plff. who stated that he was an accountant, & that he had personal experience as to the mode in which insurance business was conducted. He gave evidence, after referring to certain tables used by insurance officers called the Carlisle Tables, as to the average duration of life of two persons of the ages of the mother & son respectively, & as to the price for which an annuity for the mother's life could be bought. This evidence was objected to by defts., but was ruled to be admissible.—ROWLEY v. LONDON & NORTH WESTERN RY. CO. (1873), L. R. 8 Exch. 221; 42 L. J. Ex. 153; 29 L. T. 180; 21 W. R. 869, Ex. Ch.

3961. —.]—In 1893 a patent was granted to H. for improvements in electric arc lamps. The Jandus Co. in 1898 granted to J. a licence under controlling patents of which they claimed to be possessed. At the time of the licence the Jandus Co. had only an equitable title to H.'s patent, but they alleged this was included in the licence. J. began making arc lamps, which the Jandus Co. alleged to be made under H.'s specification, without paying any royalties reserved by the licence. The Jandus Co. commenced an action to recover royalties & for an account. J. denied that his lamps were made under licenced patents, & counterclaimed for rescission of the licence on the ground of misrepresentation. He sought to put in evidence the specifications of certain prior patents for the purpose of showing the state of public general knowledge:—Held: the prior specifications sought to be put in by deft. were inadmissible, in evidence; & plffs., in proving their title to H.'s patent, might put in without strict proof assignments of the patent which had been registered at the Patent Office in accordance with Patents, etc. Act, 1883 (c. 57), sect. 23.—JANDUS ARC LAMP & ELECTRIC CO., LTD. v. m. Systematic records kept by purchaser.]—Where a purchaser has devised & conducted such a system of inspection & tests & of compiling records thereof as to involve a high probability of the correctness of the results, & these inspections, tests & records are made & compiled by numerous officials under the careful personal supervision of one superintendent as if made & compiled by him personally, & he is afterwards called as a witness in an action for damages, for breach of contract against the sellers, he may properly be allowed to verify the official records, & the records may properly be received in evidence. The records are, under a proper exception to the hearsay rule, admissible in evidence as proof of the facts stated therein. From the enormous amount of testing it is absurd to speak about the witness's memory being refreshed. The necessity principle arises not merely from death or from absence but from sheer impossibility of memory in such a case.—OMAND v. ALBERTA MILLING CO., [1922] 3 W. W. L. 412; 69 D. L. R. 6.—CAN.

n. Record of market-rate.]—Where the ct. has had the advantage of having in evidence before it a record of the market-rate of any particular day her life to her sole & separate use. On Dec. 31, 1844, a valuation was made, by which testator's share was ascertained to be £20,000 & upwards. After more than ten years had expired from the date of the articles, in June, 1853, certain hereditaments, consisting of freeholds, leaseholds & machinery, being part of the partnership assets, were, in alleged consideration of £12,000 conveyed by deft. B. to defts. A. & C. by way of mtgc., subject to a proviso for redemption. Pltf. came of age in 1857, & in 1858 defts. A. & B. rendered to her an account of the trust funds, in which they debited her with various items of expenditure for maintenance & education, with 5 per cent. interest thereon, & credited her with the sum of £12,000 & interest at 5 per cent., with yearly rents up to May 6, 1853, & thenceforth with interest at 4 per cent., with yearly rests. Pltf. prayed for an inquiry & an account of the profits made in the partnership business on the sum of £12,000 from testator's death, & for payment of what should be found due to her, alleging that the mtgc. was an improper security:—Held: the entry of the sum of £12,000 in the account furnished by defts. must be taken as conclusive against them that they had such a sum in their hands.—*TOWNEND v. In an action for infringement & passing off brought by E. & Co. against G. & Co. defts. contended that they had used their device since a date anterior to the user or registration by pltf. of their device. Evidence had been given at the trial by M. that he had entered the employment of pltf. in the year 1885, & that pltf. had at that date been using labels bearing their device. On appeal it was admitted by pltf. that M. had been mistaken as to his dates & that he had not entered pltf.'s employment until the autumn of 1886. A copy of certain entries selected from an old warehouse book of pltf., the book having been lost, had been given in evidence, & had been relied on by the judge as corroborating the recollection of the witness M.:—Held: the copy of the entries in the lost book was not admissible in evidence.—*YOUNG & CO., LTD. v. Competency question for judge—Effect of incompetency discovered during evidence.]—On a prosecution for rape it appeared that prosecutrix was deaf & dumb, & her father, who was sworn to interpret her evidence, said that he believed her to be ignorant of the nature of an oath. An expert however came, & from his report to the ct. prosecutrix was sworn & her evidence taken down as interpreted by the expert. In the course of her examination it became apparent that she did not understand the questions, & that her answers could not be relied upon. The judge directed her to stand down, & struck out her evidence from the case:—Held: although prosecutrix had been sworn, the judge acted rightly in striking out & withdrawing her evidence from the jury.—R. v. WHITEHEAD (1866), L. R. 1 C. C. R. 33; 35 L. J. M. C. 186; 14 L. T. 489; 30 J. P. 391; 14 W. R. 677; 10 Cox, C. C. 234, C. C. R.

General rule—Incompetent.]—Where A., being in the act of committing suicide, is interrupted by B. who meets with his death in a struggle thus originating. Semble: the statement of A. made immediately after & at a time when he was still labouring under an aberration of intellect, is not evidence against him on the charge of murdering B. by drowning him.

Qu.: whether he ought not to be acquitted altogether, & unconditionally, if that be the sole evidence of the manner by which B. came to his death, inasmuch as it proceeds from the mouth of a witness, incompetent on the score of insanity.—R. v. JONES (1839), 3 J. P. 357.

3991. Competency & ability to understand nature of oath—Question for judge.]—(1) If a lunatic be tendered as a witness it is for the judge to examine whether the lunatic be of competent understanding to give rational evidence, & is aware of the nature & obligation of an oath. If the judge is satisfied on these points he should admit the lunatic as a witness.

(2) The lunatic may be examined & cross-

l. ——One maker of a joint promissory note is not a competent witness for another, who alone is sued, without a release, as he is not indifferently liable to the payee & his co-maker, being liable in an action by the latter for contribution to both damages & costs.—DUDLEY v. MOORE (1833), 3 O. S. 71.—CAN.

m. ——In an action against one of two joint makers of a promissory note, the maker not joined is a competent witness for his co-maker, to prove illegality of consideration for the note, upon receiving a release.—PHINNEY v. SMITH (1843), 6 O. S. 498.—CAN.

n. ——Under 8 & 9 Vict. c. 93, s. 89, the surveyor of customs, not being the party either "seizing or informing," is not entitled to a share of the penalty. He therefore cannot be rejected as an incompetent witness upon a case of information for a penalty, for harbouring smuggled goods.—A.-G. v. WARNER (1848), 5 U. C. R. 485.—CAN.

o. ——Where in an action for goods sold & delivered, pltf. made out a prima facie case through his clerk, who proved a delivery of the goods; & the promise to pay on request implied therefrom was repelled by def., who stated a special contract varying from that implied.—Held: pltf. was admissible as a witness to reply to the new case set up by def., & semble, he could not be excluded as a witness by reason of his presence in ct. during the examination of his clerk.—*McFARLANE v. m. Evidence received subject to objection.—Where at the hearing the competency of a witness was objected to, & the ct., received the evidence subject to the objection, but afterwards held the witness incompetent, a reference was directed as to the material points to which his evidence applied, & further directions were reserved.—LINDSAY v. BANK OF MONTREAL (1867), 13 Gr. 63.—CAN.

n. Objection to recall of witness overruled—Subsequent general objection.—On the trial of a cause pltf. recalled a witness who previously gave evidence for him & left the stand. Defts.' counsel objected to pltf. being allowed to recall, & upon the objection being overruled, objected generally to any of witness's testimony being received:—Held: this general objection did not enable the defts., on a motion for a new trial, to claim that part of the evidence was improperly received, but the particular evidence complained of should have been objected to.—*ALLEN v. (2) The case, however, is different where the head of the department does not personally attend at the trial, but sends a subordinate with the documents, to be produced or not as the judge may think proper.—BEATSON v. SKENE (1860), 5 H. & N. 838; 29 L. J. Ex. 430; 2 L. T. 378; 6 Jur. N. S. 780; 8 W. R. 544.

4014. ———.]—Under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), s. 115, the judge has a discretion as to making an order for the production of documents, & the Ct. of Appeal will not readily interfere with the exercise of his discretion, though it has jurisdiction to do so in a proper case.

The liquidator of a co., in order to obtain evidence in support of a misfeasance summons which he had issued against the directors of the co. & the auditors, applied under the above sect. for an order that the surveyor of taxes should attend for examination & produce some balance-sheets of the co. which had been delivered to him for the purpose of assessment of income tax. The surveyor objected to produce these documents, & the Board of Inland Revenue supported his objection by a resolution that their production would be "prejudicial & injurious to the public interests & service":—Held: (1) (WRIGHT, J.) an order for production ought not to be made under the sect.; (2) (CT. OF APPEAL) the exercise by the judge of his discretion ought not to be interfered with.

(3) It is not in every case essential that the principal officer of a Govt. department should himself attend in ct. to take such an objection to the production of documents in the possession of the department. In many cases the ct. will be satisfied of the validity of the objection by other evidence, e.g. by the affidavit of a responsible officer.—Re HARGREAVES (JOSEPH), LTD., [1900] 1 Ch. 347; 69 L. J. interest—Court bound thereby—Whether necessary for attendance in court of head of department.]—Where a person who as minister has charge of a document, & who is qualified by his position to have an opinion whether the production of the document would be objectionable on the ground of public policy, objects on this ground to produce it, the ct. will determine the question of admissibility by reference to the opinion of the minister. The proper mode in which objection to produce such document should be made is for the minister to attend in ct. & state his objection. If a minister instead of attending himself sends a subordinate to ct. to object to produce the document this mode of taking the objection, although irregular, may be accepted by the ct.—*FORAN v. The head of the department attended & declined to produce the letter on the ground that its production would be injurious to the public service, & it was therefore privileged. The judge ordered the letter to be produced & read:—Held: the question whether the production of such a document was injurious to the public service, must be determined, not by the judge, but by the head of the department having the custody of the paper, & the production of the document ought not to have been compelled.—*BRADLEY v. D. Communications between State Officials and Members of Public.

(a) In General.

4030. Communications to State officials—Whether privileged—Information acquired by tax collector.]—Notwithstanding the oath administered to a collector of the property tax by the comrs., that he will not disclose anything he learns in that capacity, except with their consent, or by virtue of an Act of Parliament, he is bound, when subpoenaed as a witness, to give evidence of all facts within his knowledge touching the matter in question.—LEE v. BIRRELL (1813), 3 Camp. 337.

4031. — Memorial to Home Secretary.]—HATCH v. LEWIS (1861), 2 F. & F. 467.

or its representatives are State documents & their production in ct. cannot be enforced. A report made by an Inspector General of Prisons Ireland under 7 G. 4, c. 74, s. 59, to the Lord Lieutenant is a State document & privileged as its production would be injurious to the public interest.—McELVENEY v. CONNELLAN (1864), 17 I. C. L. R. 55.—IR.

PART V. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—D. (a).

4030 i. Communications to State officials—Whether privileged—Information acquired by tax collector.]—Where an income-tax comr. had been subpoenaed to produce the income-tax returns of one of the parties to the suit, & had stated on oath that in his opinion the production of the returns would be prejudicial to the public service, the ct. refused to direct the production of the return.—WILKINSON v. WILKINSON (1901), 1 S. R. N. S. W. 285.—AUS.

4030 ii. — — — — —.]—In a suit brought to establish that plfs. were partners in a certain firm the comrs. for taxation were subpoenaed to produce the income-tax returns made on behalf of the firm. All persons claiming to be beneficially interested in the firm consented to the production, but the chief comr. objected to produce the same, stating on oath that in his opinion their production would be prejudicial to the public interest.—Held: the returns were not privileged from production.—McLEOD v. PHILLIPS (1905), 5 S. R. N. S. W. 503.—AUS.

4030 iii. — — — — —.]—Statements made & documents produced by assessors before income-tax officers for the purpose of showing the incomes of such assessors, do not refer to matters of State & are not privileged under Indian Evidence Act, s. 123. The collector, when summoned to produce such documents by the ct., is bound to produce them & the ct. is empowered under Evidence Act, s. 162, to inspect them to decide on the validity of any objection to their admissibility in evidence. Income-Tax Act, s. 38, & rule 15 of the rules framed thereunder only forbid public servants to make public or disclose any information contained in such documents. The prohibition, however, does not extend to evidence given in cts. of justice. Under Income-Tax Act the collector can compel the production of documents & attendance of witnesses. Documents produced & statements made under process of law cannot be said to be made in "official confidence" within Evidence Act, s. 124, & they are not privileged under that sect.—VENKETACHIELLA CHETTIAR v. SAMPATHU CHETTIAR (1908), 1 L. R. 32 Mad. 62.—IND.

4030 iv. — — — — —.]—Pursuer endeavoured to obtain production of defender's income-tax returns, with a view of proving that he was in a position to repay a loan. The ct. would not order production of the returns, on the ground of confidentiality & public interest.—SHAW v. KAY (1904), 5 Tax Cas. 74.—SCOT.

4030 v. — — — — —.]—In an action for damages pursuer, who had been in partnership with defenders, averred that they had accused him of fraudulently understating the profits of the portion of the business of which he was manager. Defenders pleaded veritas, & craved a diligence for the recovery of documents, including income-tax returns of the profits of the business which had been handed in by the pursuer. The Inland Revenue objected to produce these returns, on the ground that they were confidential, & that it was prejudicial to the public interest that they should be recovered.—Held: the ct. had power in the exercise of its discretion to order production of documents in the custody of a public department, even though that department pleaded public interest as an objection to their production.—HENDERSON v. McGOWN, [1916] S. C. 821.—SCOT.

d. — — — — — Communications to Postmaster-General.]—For the enforcement of Act No. 781, protection may be claimed for all official communications made in the course of duty to the Postmaster-General, no matter by whom they are made or from what country they may come, & the protection will be extended where the aid of the Postmaster-General is invoked on behalf of the criminal law of a foreign land.—SPITZEL v. BECKX (1890), 16 V. L. R. 661.—AUS.

e. — — — — — Information acquired by Customs official.]—Actions against the Comptroller & Collector of Customs of the Commonwealth, under Customs Act, are not actions against the Crown. In such actions, therefore, the common order for discovery should be made as between subject & subject. In 4032. — — — — — Statements made to Lord Chamberlain.]—The Lord Chamberlain cannot be compelled to disclose in evidence communications made to him in his official capacity.—WEST v. WEST (1911), 27 T. L. R. 476, C. A.

4033. Communications from State officials—Whether privileged—Correspondence between Poor-Law Board & guardians.]—The correspondence between a board of guardians & the Poor-Law Board at Somerset House are prima facie privileged communications between public bodies, & on grounds of public policy ought not to be disclosed. But where the board of guardians who had sought the advice of the Poor-Law Board on the subject of a demand against them, caused the answer of the Poor-Law Board to be read at a meeting of the guardians which was open to all ratepayers of the union:—Held: (1) the board having by their own act made the answer public, could not object to its being given in evidence in support of the claim to which it related; (2) the letter of the guardians, to which the one read was an answer, was not, by the course adopted with respect to that answer, removed from the above general rule.—HYETT v. CHELTENHAM GUARDIANS (1850), 15 L. T. O. S. 507.

affidavits, in compliance with such orders, it is competent for deft. to claim privilege on grounds usual between subjects, & also on the ground that the discovery is not expedient in the opinion of Ministers on grounds of public policy.—CLUTTERBUCK BROTHERS v. WOLLASTON, [1908] S. A. L. R. 159.—AUS.

f. — — — — — Communications to Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal.]—In an action for libel plff. interrogated deft. as to the contents of a written communication made by deft. a justice of the peace, to the Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal, concerning plff., who was also a justice of the peace. Deft. by his answer admitted that he had made a privileged communication concerning plff. to the Lords Commissioners, but declined to answer as to its contents. The ct., in the exercise of its judicial discretion, refused to compel deft. to answer the interrogatory.—FITZGIBBON v. GREER (1875), 1 L. R. C. L. 294.—IR.

g. — — — — — Opinion of counsel.]—An opinion of counsel given to a public officer, ought not to be produced in evidence.—EDWARDS v. MACINTOSH (1823), 3 Murr. 369.—SCOT.

h. — — — — —.]—A public department cannot be compelled by a ct. of law to produce confidential documents in its possession coming from third parties, if so to compel it would be to discourage similar communications being made in future.—BROWN'S TRUSTEES v. HAY (1897), 3 Tax Cas. 598.—SCOT.

k. Communications from State officials—Whether privileged—Statements made to newspaper reporters.]—The intentional introduction of newspaper reporters to a discussion with a Cabinet Minister of matters of public interest cannot deprive the occasion of its privileged character, or afford evidence of express malice.—SMITH v. MUGROVE (1885), 11 V. L. R. 440.—AUS.

l. — — — — — Communications relative to character of applicant for public office.]—Public officers are not entitled or compellable to produce written communications made by them officially, relative to the character & conduct of a party applying for a public office, the productions being demanded with a view to an action of damages, against the writer.—EARL v. VASS (1822), 1 Sh. Sc. App. 229.—SCOT.

4035. — Through what channel information disclosed to Government.]—(1) In order to identify a person in ct. with one whom the witness has described, the attention of the witness may be directed to the person in ct., & he may be asked whether that is the person of whom he has spoken.

(2) A witness for the Crown cannot, on cross-examination, be compelled to state through what channel he made a disclosure to Govt., either immediately or mediately.

(3) Evidence of a particular collateral fact cannot be adduced in any case, whether civil or criminal, in order to discredit a witness.

(4) If a witness be asked as to a collateral fact his answer is conclusive.

For the purpose of ascertaining the credit due to witnesses the ct. indulge free cross-examination; but when a crime is imputed to a witness, of which he may be convicted by due course of law, the ct. know but one medium of proof, the record of conviction. You may ask the witness whether he has been guilty of such a crime, this, indeed, would be improperly asked, because he is not bound to criminate himself, but if he does answer promptly, you must be bound by the answer which he gives, for the ct. does not sit for the purpose of examining into collateral crimes (LORD ELLENBOROUGH, C.J.).—R. v. WATSON (1817), 2 Stark. 116; 32 State Tr. 1.

4036. — Whether witness gave information.]

—In information by the A.-G. for a breach of the revenue laws, a witness for the Crown cannot be asked, in cross-examination, “Did you give the information?” The rule of public policy, which protects a witness from being asked such questions as would disclose the informer, if he be a third person, equally applies to questions which would disclose whether the witness is himself the informer.—A.-G. v. BRIANT (1846), 15 M. & W. 169; 15 L. J. Ex. 265; 6 L. T. O. S. 394; 10 J. P. 518.

Annotations:—Folld. Marks v. Beyfus (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 494. Mentd. R. v. Edwards (1853), 9 Exch. 32.

4037. — Police witness—Source of information.]—On an indictment for administering poison with intent to murder the police having in consequence of certain information found the bottle containing the poison in a place used by prisoner:—Held: they were bound to disclose from whom they had the information.—R. v. RICHARDSON (1863), 3 F. & F. 693.

Annotation:—Consd. Marks v. Beyfus (1890), 59 L. J. Q. B. 479.

4038. — Place where secreted when watching premises.]—A constable, having given evidence against a licensed person upon an information under Licensing Act, 1872 (c. 94), s. 14, was asked on cross-examination to say in whose house he had been secreted when watching the licensed premises. He refused to answer the question. The justices held that on the ground of public policy he was privileged from answering it:—Held: the justices had wrongly held that the constable was privileged not to answer the question.—WEBB v. CATCHLOVE (1886), 3 T. L. R. 159; 50 J. P. Jo. 795.

Annotation:—Consd. Duncan v. Toms (1887), 56 L. J. M. C. 81.

4039. — Director of Public Prosecutions — Source & nature of information—Prisoner's innocence.]—A prosecution instituted or carried on by the Director of Public Prosecutions is a public prosecution, & the Director of Public Prosecutions, if called as a witness at the trial or during any proceedings arising out of the trial, is entitled to refuse to disclose the names of persons from whom he has received information & the nature of the information received, unless upon the trial of a prisoner, the judge is of opinion that the disclosure of the name of the informant, or of the nature of the information, is necessary or desirable in order to show prisoner's innocence.—MARKS v. BEYFUS (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 494; 59 L. J. Q. B. 479; 63 L. T. 733; 55 J. P. 182; 38 W. R. 705; 6 T. L. R. 406; 17 Cox, C. C. 196, C. A.

E. Proceedings in Parliament.

4040. Speaker of House of Commons—May prove fact that member spoke—Not substance of speech.]—The Speaker, or a member of Parliament, may be called upon to give evidence of the fact of a member of Parliament having taken part,

PART V. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—D. (b).

4035 i. Whether witness bound to give evidence—Through what channel information disclosed to Government.]—On a prosecution under Canada Temperance Act:—Held: the justices properly refused to allow the disclosure of the source of information on which the complaint was founded.—R. v. SPROULE (1887), 14 O. R. 375.—CAN.

4038 i. — Police witness—Place where secreted when watching commission of offence.]—At a trial in a police ct. on a summary complaint charging betting in a street a police-constable deposed in cross-examination for accused that he had from the windows of a house seen accused commit the offence charged. The constable having been further asked to identify the house, the prosecutor-fiscal objected to the question on the ground that the answer would lead to the public disclosure of the person who had given facilities to the police, but stated that he had no objection to the answer being communicated in writing to the magistrate & to the agent for accused, but no use of it must be made in further cross-examination. The agent for accused refused to accept the answer on this condition, whereupon the magistrate disallowed the question. Accused having been convicted appealed. The ct. sustained the appeal, holding that the question was a competent & proper question, & the condition one which the magistrate was not entitled to impose.—THOMSON v. NEILSON (1900), 3 F. (Ct. of Sess.), 3; 37 Sc. L. R. 930; 8 S. L. T. 147, J.—SCOT.

m. — Attorney-General — Original depositions.]—In an action for damages for malicious prosecutions, ptf. called the A.-G. of Natal to give evidence & produce the original depositions made to the Criminal Investigation Department in consequence of which ptf. had been arrested on a charge of theft. On the A.-G. refusing to produce the depositions as not being admissible under the rules of evidence on the grounds of public policy:—Held: the A.-G. was not bound to put in the depositions.—VILJOEN v. DE JAGER (1912), 33 N. L. R. 581.—S. AF.

n. — Secretary to the Treasury.]—Any communication made to the Treasury of a nature to disclose or discover the commission of an offence under Trading with the Enemy Act, 1916, can in no circumstances be given in evidence by the official to whom the communication was made.—ROBINSON v. BENSON & SIMPSON, [1918] W. L. D. 1.—S. AF.

4042. — May state who was Speaker—Not how member voted—Without leave of House of Commons.]—On a trial, a member of Parliament may be asked whether L. was Speaker of the House of Commons on a particular day, but if he asked how a member voted, he will not be compelled to answer if he decline doing so, & have not the leave of the House to give evidence.—CHUBB v. SALOMONS (1852), 3 Car. & Kir. 75, N. P.

SUB-SECT. 3.—TITLE DEEDS.

A. In General.

4043. Whether privileged from production—Production essential to case.]—In a criminal suit instituted for simony the patron was called as a witness & required to produce the deed of conveyance to him of the advowson of the vicarage in respect of the presentation to which the alleged simony had been committed. It was admitted that the deed was in ct., but the witness declined to produce it on the ground that it was a title deed. The ct. notwithstanding ordered its production.—LEE v. MEREST (1869), 39 L. J. Eccl. 53; 22 L. T. 420; 34 J. P. 422.

4044. —.]—It was not intended by Perpetuation of Testimony Act, 1842 (c. 69), to give to the person who wished to perpetuate testimony as against the person with whom he contemplated future litigation, rights of any stronger character than those which would be possessed by him in a suit actually commenced; & it is of course that when parties are in immediate litigation, they cannot investigate the title deeds of the opponent.—CAMPBELL v. DALHOUSIE (EARL) (1869), L. R. 1 Sc. & Div. 462; 22 L. T. 879, H. L.
Annotation :—Refd. West v. Sackville, [1903] 2 Ch. 378.

4045. — Third party's deeds—Held as trustee.]—A deft. who has worked coal mines without interruption, in pursuance of an agreement with the owner, cannot, upon the trial of an action against him for a breach of the agreement, compel a third person to produce his title deeds, by virtue of which he is entitled to the legal estate in which the premises are situated, as a trustee.—ROBERTS v. SIMPSON (1817), 2 Stark. 203, N. P.

4047. — Held as mortgagee.]—R. v. UPPER BODDINGTON (INHABITANTS), No. 4166 ist.

4048. — Held as pledgee.]—A foreign govt. employed K. & F., as agents in London, to bring out a loan on the English market, & to issue scrip certificates to the subscribers, & to exchange scrip for bonds upon the amount subscribed being fully paid. The govt. employed E. & Co. as their agents & bankers, with power to receive from K. & F. the sums subscribed. Subsequently bonds in the hands of K. & F. were pledged by the president of the govt. to E. & Co., but the validity of this security was disputed by the govt. The govt. filed a bill against K. & F., E. & Co., & others, for accounts of the dealings connected with the issue of the loan. Upon motion that a member of the firm of K. & F., upon cross-examination in the cause, should produce certain documents to the production of which E. & Co. objected:—Held: the scrip certificates & the scrip book in which the certificates were entered must be produced, but not the bonds themselves, since the foreign govt. might, by knowing the numbers of the bonds, use their information to the prejudice of E. & Co., their mtgees., & the knowledge of the numbers of the bonds was not shown to be relevant to the suit.—COSTA RICA REPUBLIC v. ERLANGER (1874), L. R. 19 Eq. 33; 44 L. J. Ch. 281; 31 L. T. 635; 23 W. R. 108.

4049. Privilege confined to title deeds.]—In ejectment by tenant for life under a will containing leasing powers against a lessee holding under a demise from a prior tenant for life, to recover possession, on the ground that the lease was not granted according to the power, the lessor of pltf. of the former tenant for life, to prove seisin, required his exors., under a subpoena duces tecum, to produce books containing entries, by which the steward of that tenant for life charged himself with receipt of rents for the property in question:—Held: the exors. being no parties to the actions, their attorney, who appeared with the books, was bound to produce them as there were not any part of the title deeds of the prior tenant for life; nor was it any reason for their non-production, that if the lessor of pltf. recovered in the action, the estate of the prior tenant for life might be bound to indemnify the lessee under a warranty contained in the demise.—DOE d. EGREMONT (EARL) v. DATE (1842), 3 Q. B. 609; 11 L. J. Q. B. 220; 114 E. R. 611; sub nom. DOE d. WYNDHAM v. DATE, 6 Jur. 990.

SUB-SECT. 4.—MATTER INCRIMINATING WITNESS.

A. In General.

4052. Whether for judge or witness to decide whether matter incriminating.]—(1) A witness is not bound to answer a question, where his answer may have a tendency to render him amenable to a criminal charge: & it is no ground of complaint that the judge cautions the witness, without waiting for him to claim his privilege.

(2) Seemle: it is for the witness, & not for the judge, to determine whether or not the answer to the question may tend to criminate him.—FISHER v. RONALDS (1852), 12 C. B. 762; 22 L. J. C. P. 62; 20 L. T. O. S. 100; 17 Jur. 393; 1 W. R. 54; 138 E. R. 1104.

4056. Necessity for reasonable ground to apprehend danger to witness—To entitle witness to privilege.]—In order to entitle a witness to the privilege of not answering a question, as tending to criminate him, the ct. must see, from the circumstances of the case & the nature of the evidence which the witness is called to give, that there is reasonable ground to apprehend danger to the witness from his being compelled to answer.

PART V. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—A.

4056 i. Necessity for reasonable ground to apprehend danger to witness—To entitle witness to privilege.]—A witness may refuse to consider even a relevant question put to him by a comr. appointed by letters patent under the Great Seal, subject to his being able to satisfy the tribunal charged with reviewing his conduct that he had a reasonable excuse. If any injury was likely to ensue, or if there was any ground, not merely fanciful, for fearing that it might ensue, it would be open to such tribunal to find that the witness had a reasonable excuse.—BRADLEY v. FIELD (1913), 13 S. R. N. S. W. 451; 30 N. S. W. W. N. 135.—AUS.

4056 ii. —.]—A person is protected against answering any question, not only that has a direct tendency to criminate him, but that forms one step towards doing so; the person, however, or, in the case of a corp., an officer, must pledge his oath to his belief that such would or might be the effect of his answer, & it must appear that such belief is likely to be well founded.—D'IVRY v. WORLD NEWSPAPER CO. OF

4056 iii. —.]—Pltfs. launched a motion to commit G., the chairman of deft. board, for breach of an injunction. As witnesses for pltf. upon the pending motion, G. & certain other persons were examined before a special examiner; & pltfs. now moved for an order compelling G. & the other witnesses to attend for re-examination & to answer questions which they had refused to answer & to produce books, papers & documents relating to the payment of salaries of teachers in the employment of deft. board, & in default, for the committal to gaol of G. & the others:—Held: there could be no reasonable apprehension on the part of G. or the other witnesses that by answering the questions which they refused to answer they would make themselves or the board liable to a criminal prosecution; the witnesses themselves were fully protected under Evidence Act, 1914, c. 78, s. 7, & deft. board could not be proceeded against criminally; & the statement of one member of the board, made upon an examination in a civil action, could not be used against another in a criminal

But, if the fact of the witness being in danger be at once made to appear, great latitude should be allowed to him in judging of the effect of any particular question. The danger to be apprehended must be real & appreciable with reference to the ordinary operation of law in the ordinary course of things, & not a danger of an imaginary character, having reference to some barely possible contingency.

On the trial of an information, laid by the A.-G. by order of the House of Commons, against deft., for bribery at a Parliamentary election, a person, to whom it was charged that deft. had given a bribe, was called as a witness, & refused to answer any question connected with deft., on the ground that the answer would tend to criminate him; a pardon under the Great Seal was then handed to the witness, but he still refused to answer, on which the presiding judge compelled him to answer, & on his evidence deft. was convicted:—Held: the pardon took away the privilege of the witness so far as any risk of prosecution at the suit of the Crown was concerned; & though the witness might still be liable to an impeachment by the House of Commons notwithstanding the pardon, by reason of Act of Settlement, 1700 (c. 2), an impeachment was so unlikely that the witness could not be said to be in any real danger, & he was rightly compelled to answer.—R. v. BOYES (1861), 1 B. & S. 311; 30 L. J. Q. B. 301; 5 L. T. 147; 25 J. P. 789; 7 Jur. N. S. 1158; 9 W. R. 690; 9 Cox, C. C. 32; 121 E. R. 730.

4057. —.]—Where a witness objects to answer questions put to him on the ground that his answers may tend to criminate him, the mere statement of his own belief that they may do so is not sufficient to excuse him from answering. To entitle him to silence, the ct. must be satisfied, from the circumstances of the case & the nature of the evidence which the witness is called to give, that there is reasonable ground to apprehend danger to him from his being compelled to answer. If it is apparent that the witness is in danger, great latitude must be allowed him in judging for himself of the effect of his answer to any particular

4056 iv. —.]—In a trial for high treason, the Crown called a witness a person who at the commencement of Act 11 of 1915 was detained in custody in terms of sect. 8 (1) of the Act & against whom no criminal proceedings were pending at the date mentioned in the said sect. The witness, after being sworn, refused to answer certain questions on the ground that the answer would tend to incriminate him of seditious & treasonable acts:—Held: by virtue of sect. 8 he was immune from prosecution & punishment for any such acts, & was not justified in refusing to answer the questions. To entitle a witness to the privilege of silence, the circumstances of the case & the nature of the evidence which the witness is called to give must be such that there is reasonable ground to apprehend danger to him from his being compelled to answer. The danger to be apprehended must be real & appreciable, with reference to the ordinary operation of law in the ordinary course of things.—R. v. KUYPER (1915), T. P. D. 308.—S. AF.

4058. ———.]—Where a question is in form an innocent one, it is not a sufficient ground of refusal to answer for a witness to say he believes his answer to such question will or may criminate him; but he must satisfy the ct. that there is a reasonable probability that it would or might do so. A witness in such a case must satisfy the ct. by some fact outside the question that his answer will or may put him in jeopardy.—Re GENESE, Ex p. GILBERT (1886), 3 Morr. 223, C. A.

4059. Insufficient reason given—Duty of witness to answer.—]—Whatever the rule may be as to the right of a witness to decline answering a question, on the ground that it may tend to criminate him, without giving any reason why it should tend to do so, he will be compelled to answer, where he gives his reason, & such reason is insufficient.—Re MEXICAN & SOUTH AMERICAN CO., ASTON'S

It was contended that prisoner's detention was illegal on the grounds that he had a right to refuse to answer the question put to him, as his answer might tend to criminate him, on a charge of procuring liquor for other persons contrary to 6 Edw. VII. c. 20, s. 2, & the magistrate had no power to adjourn the hearing:—Held: Criminal Code, s. 678, regulated these proceedings, & there did not appear to be any reasonable doubt as to its interpretation. C. Time for and Mode of Taking Objection.

4104. Time for taking objection—Not before witness sworn.]—A party to a suit, who is subpoenaed as a witness, cannot object to be sworn & examined on the ground that the only relevant questions which could be put to him are such as would tend to criminate himself; but the opposite party has a right to insist on his being sworn & examined, & he must, if he thinks fit, claim his privilege not to answer such questions.—BOYLE v. WISEMAN (1855), 10 Exch. 647; 3 C. L. R. 482; 24 L. J. Ex. 160; 24 L. T. O. S. 274; 1 Jur. N. S. 115; 3 W. R. 206; 156 E. R. 598; subsequent proceedings, 11 Exch. 360.

4106. ———.]—If a witness objects to answer questions, on the ground that they may subject him to criminal proceedings, the counsel on the opposite side cannot argue in support of the witness's objection.—R. v. ADEY (1831), 1 Mood. & R. 94, K. B.

4107. — Not parties to action.]—The privilege of refusing to answer questions on the ground that they tend to criminate is that of the witness alone, & neither party to the suit can take any advantage therefrom.

Where a witness was called on the part of the Crown to prove bribery against deft., & he refused to give evidence on the ground that his evidence would tend to criminate himself, which objection was overruled by the judge, whereupon he gave his evidence:—Held: deft. could not afterwards object that such evidence was improperly received.—*R. v. D. Effect of Answering Incriminating Questions.

4108. Voluntary answer—Whether admissible in subsequent proceedings.]—If a witness answers questions to which he might have demurred as subjecting him to penalties, his answers may be used against him to all legal purposes; & therefore, in an action on 5 Geo. 2, c. 30, s. 21, deft.'s examination before the comrs. may be given in evidence to show that by his own confession he had concealed property of bkpt.—*SMITH v. An action was pending against the witness by a shareholder in respect of his participation in bringing out the co., & the solr. for pltf. in the action was the same as the solr. of the official liquidator. The witness attended several appointments before the special examiner, when in the presence of his counsel he was examined by the solr., & when his examination was partially completed he signed his deposition, & the special examiner with his consent filed it. Subsequently the witness refused to attend for examination on the ground that the solr. was using his deposition for the purpose of instructing 4118 i. No inference as to truth of fact sought to be inquired into.]—Deft. refused to answer a question, for fear, as he said, of incriminating himself.

The judge in his charge, after referring to deft.'s refusal to answer on his examination for discovery, & to his reason for refusing, told the jury that they might draw the inference as to what the true answer would have upon the ground that his answers might be used against him, & so might prejudice his defence to an action brought against him & the bkpts. by the petitioning creditor. The questions were relevant to the issues in the action, & the solr. who was employed by the official receiver was the solr. appearing for pltf. in the action:—Held: the examination would be allowed to proceed only on the petitioning creditor undertaking to enter a stay of proceedings in the action.—*Re DESPORTES, Ex p. 4127. — Production of notes.—Judges of the superior cts. ought not to be called upon to produce their notes. If I were to be subpoenaed for such a purpose I should certainly refuse to appear. The same objection is not applicable to the judges of the inferior cts. I see no reason why they should not be called, & especially where, as in this case, the judge is willing to appear (BYLES, J.) — R. v. HARVEY (1858), 8 Cox, C. C. 99.

4130. ——At the sitting of the compensation authority of the borough of C. as to the question of the renewal of the licence of a certain public-house which has been referred to the compensation authority by the licensing committee of the borough on the ground that the said public-house was not required for the particular neighbourhood in which it was situated, a majority of the members of the compensation authority, who had also sat on the licensing committee, refused to grant a renewal of the licence. At the same sitting, however, of the compensation authority, but some time later, the case was reopened, & one of the majority of the justices who had sat at the first hearing gave evidence, but took no part in the adjudication as to the question of the renewal of the licence on this second hearing. The justices again refused to renew the licence:—Held: however regrettable it might be for a justice to give evidence in the manner above stated, there was nothing in law to render such evidence inadmissible.—*MITCHELL v. 4134. ——In an action upon an award, the arbitrator's evidence is admissible to show in respect of what matters he allowed or refused compensation, but not to explain his reasons for awarding a particular sum in respect of any particular matter.

A. was the owner of a house & garden fronting the Thames with an exclusive easement over a causeway & jetty with steps by which the same was available at any state of the tide. Defts. under the powers conferred on them by Thames Embankment Act, 1862 (c. 93), deprived A. of the jetty by constructing the embankment on its side; & in consequence of the execution of the works, a public road was placed between the garden of A. & the river. But it was possible for A. still to have access to the river by means of landing steps which defts. built in the embankment. A. having claimed compensation for the removal of the jetty & for depreciation of the premises by the execution of the works, the matter was referred & the arbitrator awarded a lump sum of £8,325. Defts. in an action on the award called the arbitrator as a witness & he deposed that he had awarded £5,000 for the discomfort to arise from the substitution of the road for the water way. He was interrogated as to the mode by which he had arrived at that sum:—Held: the arbitrator's evidence was admissible to show whether or not he had taken matters into his consideration not within his jurisdiction, but not for the purpose of ascertaining his reasons for awarding a particular sum in respect of anything which was within his jurisdiction.—BUCCLEUCH (DUKE) v. METROPOLITAN BOARD OF WORKS (1872), L. R. 5 H. L. 418; 41 L. J. Ex. 137; 27 L. T. 1; 36 J. P. 724, H. L.

There being a dispute as to what the words "old works" in the schedule applied to:—Held: one of the comrs. might be called to prove that he did not know of certain old works to which it was contended that those words applied; & that evidence was properly left to the jury.—*ROBERTS v. It is the privilege of the client & not of the attorney; but such privilege is confined to counsel, solrs. & attornies, when acting in their respective characters.

The privilege is confined to the cases of counsel, solr. & attorney. 4154. — — ————A solr. is not compelled, & ought not, to disclose what is confidentially communicated by his client to him in his character of solr. at any period of time. . . . An attorney may be examined as to a fact which he knew before he was consulted in his professional character; or which he knows collaterally, & was not communicated by his client; or where he has made himself a party, as a witness to the execution of a deed. . . . An attorney is not to be compelled to disclose what has come solely & entirely to his knowledge in his professional capacity by or on behalf of his client, from his client, directly or intermediately: the object of privilege being to secure to a party the benefit of secrecy in confidential communications with his legal adviser. . . . To bring a communication within the privilege, it must be shown that the matter came to the attorney's knowledge directly or intermediately through another person from the client himself, & that, as to matters which came to his knowledge collaterally, he is bound to answer (*SIR H. Counsel attended before a magistrate on behalf of a person charged with embezzlement, & a book was produced by prosecutor in which it was the duty of the person charged to have entered a sum of money received by him, & there was no such entry. On a second examination, the book was again produced when the entry was found. The party charged having brought an action for a malicious prosecution:—Held: counsel might give evidence as to whether the entry was in the book at the time of the first examination, since the state of the book was not information communicated to him by his client, but knowledge which he acquired by his own observation.—*BROWN v. 4151 I. Whether bound to give evidence—As to knowledge acquired professionally.—The doctrine of privileged communications as between solr. & client exists for the benefit of the client & his representatives in interest not for that of the solr., & in an action to establish the lost will of a testator, who was illegitimate & had died without issue:—Held: statements of testator to his solr. in reference to the making of & provisions in the will, against the objection of those who claimed under the lost will, were admissible in evidence.—STEWART v. WALKER (1903), 23 C. L. T. 320; 6 O. L. R. 495; 1 O. W. R. 489; 2 O. W. R. 990.—CAN.

4161. — Who has ceased to practice.—(1) Communications between a person & his legal adviser, who had been a solr., but at the time of the communications had, without his knowledge, ceased to practice, are privileged.

(2) The communications had reference to the validity of a will, & passed between pltf. & his legal adviser between the date of the will & the death of testator. It was objected that they could not have taken place in contemplation of a suit respecting the validity of the will, & were therefore not protected:—Held: this did not take them out of the rule.—CALLEY v. RICHARDS (1854), 19 Beav. 401; 24 L. T. O. S. 18; 2 W. R. 614; 52 E. R. 406.

4162. — Acting as patent agent.—An action was brought by the registered owner of two letters patent for similar inventions, dated in 1883, & 1884 against defts. for infringement of both such patents. One of defts. was the registered owner of letters patent for a similar invention. Particulars of breaches were delivered by pltf. complaining generally of the infringement of both patents without in any way distinguishing between them. Defts. delivered particulars of objections, & also their answer to interrogatories, which had been delivered by pltf. Pltf. then discontinued the action so far as related to the patent of 1884. Subsequently defts. delivered interrogatories referring to their answer to pltf.'s interrogatories & interrogating him as to which of the processes therein described infringed the letters patent of 1883, & as to which infringed the patent of 1884. They further interrogated pltf. as to documents in his possession relating to the preparation of the specifications filed under both patents. Pltf. declined to answer, alleging as a ground for such refusal that the particulars of infringement had been sufficiently stated by him; & as to the documents, that they were confidential communications between himself & his solr. & counsel, & that such documents were privileged; & that, as regarded any documents relating to the patent of 1884, the interrogatories were irrelevant to the issue. Pltf.'s solr. had also acted as his patent agent:—Held: pltf.'s answer as to documents was insufficient, inasmuch as it did not distinguish communications between himself & his solr. as such, & communications between himself & his solr. in his character of patent agent communications of the former class alone being privileged.—MOSELEY v. VICTORIA RUBBER CO. (1886), 55 L. T. 482; Griffin's Patent Cases, 163; 3 R. P. C. 351.

4163. Solicitor's agent.—(1) On non est factum pleaded to a bond it is not sufficient to prove the execution by a person who executed in the name of deft.'s attorney cannot be examined as to communications with deft. on the subject of the action in order to prove his identity.

(2) Declarations made by the attorney of a party in conversation are not evidence against his client.—PARKINS v. HAWKSHAW (1817), 2 Stark. 239, N. P.

4164. Solicitor's clerk — Articled clerk.—An articulated clerk to an attorney, who is bound by his articles to keep all his master's secrets, is at liberty to give in evidence statements of his master not made under a charge of secrecy, nor affecting the interests of the master's clients; though the disclosure may go to support a civil action against the master.—WEBB v. SMITH (1824), 1 C. & P. 337, N. P.

4165. ——The rule respecting privileged communications extends to an attorney's clerk acting on behalf of his master, as well as to the attorney himself.—TAYLOR v. FORSTER (1825), 2 C. & P. 195.

4166. ——(1) A mtgee. is not bound, in obedience to a subpna duces tecum, to produce the title deeds of his mortgagor.

(2) An attorney is not allowed to give evidence of the contents of a deed in his client's possession; the client refusing to produce it.

(3) The clerk of an attorney is bound equally with his master not to divulge the secrets of the client; & wherever the master should be prevented from disclosing, the clerk should also be prevented.—R. v. UPPER BODDINGTON (INHABITANTS) (1826), 8 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 726; 4 Dow. & Ry. M. C. 233; 5 L. J. O. S. M. C. 10.

4168. Pursuivant of Heralds' College.—A Pursuivant of the Heralds' College employed in the conduct & support of a protest against a pedigree sought to be inrolled in the Heralds' College is not a legal adviser, & therefore communications between him & his employer are not privileged in a court of law.—SLADE v. TUCKER (1880), 14 Ch. D. 824; 49 L. J. Ch. 644; 43 L. T. 49; 28 W. R. 807.

4169. Unqualified person—Wrongly believed to be solicitor.—A person to whom a party, supposing him to be an attorney, makes confidential communications respecting his cause, is bound to give evidence of them, if called as a witness, attorneys only being so privileged as to not being bound to disclose the secrets of their clients.—*FOUNTAIN v. C. What Matters within Protection of Privilege.

(a) Circumstances of Employment.

4171. By whom legal adviser employed.]—The attorney conducting a cause in ct. may be called as a witness by the opposite side, & asked who employs him, in order to show the real party, & so let in his declarations.—LEVY v. POPE (1829), Mood. & M. 410, N. P.

4172. When employed—Whether on specified day.]—YOUNG & BATESON v. HUTCHINSON (1813), 1 L. T. O. S. 59, N. P.

4173. — When first employed.]—At a private examination of the solr. to the debtor the ct. allowed the following question to be put: "Which was the first transaction in which you acted for the debtor in connection with the Pelican Club?" The solr. declined to answer this question on the ground that to do so would be to disclose communications made by his client to him for the purpose of obtaining his professional advice:—Held: the question was not one in respect of which any privilege could attach, & the solr. was bound to answer it.—Re WELLS, Ex p. TRUSTEE (1892), 9 Morr. 116.

4174. When & to whom documents handed over.]—An attorney held bound to discover when & to whom he parted with documents of title of his client, & in whose possession the same were.—BANNER v. JACKSON (1817), 1 De G. & Sm. 472; 63 E. R. 1154.

4175. From whom documents received.]—In the course of the examination of a solr. upon the application of the liquidator of a co., under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), s. 115, the witness claimed privilege as to certain documents in his possession alleged to belong to the liquidator; & he declined to answer questions as to from whom he received the same:—Held: the claim of privilege was properly made, & the witness need not produce the documents.—Re LONDON & NORTHERN BANK, LTD., HADDOCK'S CASE, HOYLE'S CASE, [1902] 2 Ch. 73; 71 L. J. Ch. 511; 86 L. T. 430; 50 W. R. 386; 18 T. L. R. 403; 46 Sol. Jo. 358; 9 Mans. 325; on appeal, [1902] 2 Ch. 78, C. A.

4176. General rule.]—Demurrer by a witness examined by the plffs., on the ground that he had been the solr. of some of the defts., & that the interrogatory required the disclosure of confidential communications, overruled, the witness being bound to produce letters communicated to him from collateral quarters to which the interrogatory pointed, & to answer questions seeking information as to matters of fact, as distinguished from confidential communications.—SAWYER v. BIRCHMORE (1835), 3 My. & K. 572; 4 L. J. Ch. 249; 40 E. R. 218.

4177. —.]—The relation of attorney & client prevents the former from disclosing any communication made to him in the ordinary course of his employment, & on the faith of the confidence which the client reposes in his legal adviser; but the privilege does not extend to matters of fact, which the attorney knows by any other means than by confidential communications with his client, though, if he had not been employed as attorney, he probably would not have known them.

In an action on a bill of exchange, to which deft. pleaded that the bill was given for a gaming debt; & it was deposed that the only bill which had been given by deft. was that upon which the action was brought; & after a request then made to pltf. to produce the bill, pltf.'s attorney was called on the part of deft., & asked whether he then had the bill with him in ct.:—Held: the attorney would not be guilty of any breach of professional confidence in answering the question, & it was admissible.—DWYER v. COLLINS (1852), 7 Exch. 639; 21 L. J. Ex. 225; 19 L. T. O. S. 186; 16 Jur. 569; 155 E. R. 1101.

ROBERTS* (1846), 6 L. T. O. S. 519; 10 Jur. 125.

4181. —.]—A solr., employed to obtain the execution of a deed, & who is one of the witnesses, is not precluded, on the ground of a breach of professional confidence, from giving evidence as to what passed at the time of execution, by which the deed may be proved invalid.—*CRAWCOUR v. 4189 ii. ———.]—The law relating to professional communications between a solr. & client is the same in India, as in England. It is not every communication made by a client to an attorney that is privileged from disclosure. The privilege extends only to communications made to him confidentially, & with a view to obtaining professional advice.—FRAMJI BHICAJI v. MOHANSING DHANSING (1893), 1 L. R. 18 Bom. 263.—IND.

Therefore, where an attorney was applied to by a father, to prepare a deed by which his property was to be assigned to his son, & stated, that there was no consideration for the assignment, on which the attorney refused to prepare it, & it was afterwards drawn by another:—Held: such attorney was precluded from giving evidence of that fact, in an action brought by the son, in which the validity of the deed was attempted to be disputed, although he was not employed in the cause.—*CROMACK v. 4224. — Book given solicitor for collecting tithes.—(1) At the trial of an ejectment to recover land claimed as parcel of the glebe of a rectory, a book describing the lands, subject to tithes, & a map stating the glebe lands, were produced by an attorney, who stated that he had received them from a former rector, who was also owner of the advowson. The book being given to him for the purpose of collecting the tithes, & the map with a view to the sale of the advowson, which was afterwards effected, & the lessor of pltf. appointed to the rectory by the purchaser:—Held: the map was not a privileged communication.

(2) Semble: the book was not.

(3) The heir & exors. of deceased rector having authorised the production of these documents:—Held: they were competent parties to waive the privilege if any existed.—DOE d. MARRIOTT v. HERTFORD (MARQUESS) (1849), 19 L. J. Q. B. 526;

Def't., the solr. of the insured, was present at this interview, but in his answer to the bill refused to state what passed, because he was then the solr. & attorney, & was present as the solr. & attorney of insured, & acquired his information, touching the matters which he refused to answer, solely from the fact of his being present at the time, in the capacity of solr. & attorney, & professional & confidential adviser of insured:—Held: this answer was insufficient.

4252. — ——The rule of privilege protecting confidential communications does not extend to communications between the solrs. of opposite parties.

A bill was filed to set aside a deed, on the ground of alterations having been improperly made in it after execution. Def't. examined the solr. of pltf. as a witness to prove communications between them, showing that the solr. was aware of the alteration in the deed. To the interrogatory on this point the witness demurred, because he alleged that it inquired about matters only known to him as solr. for pltf.:—Held: this could not protect him from the necessity of disclosing his communications with def't.—*GORE v. 4254 i. Communication in presence of other party.—Conversation between party & legal adviser.—To be privileged under Evidence Act, 1872, s. 126, a communication by a party to his attorney must be of a confidential or private nature. Where defts. at an interview, at which pltf. was present, admitted their partnership to their attorney, who was then also acting as attorney for pltf.:—Held: the attorney was not precluded by the above sect. from giving evidence of this admission to him, because defts.' statements, having been made in presence & hearing of pltf., could not be regarded as con-passed between her & her solr. & which, it stated, showed that the deed was prepared & executed for the alleged fraudulent purpose. Deft. in her answer declined to set forth the contents of the letters, as being privileged communications:—Held: the transaction, according to the account of it given in the bill & answer was not a fraud; & therefore, deft. was not bound to set forth the contents of the letters.

(2) Communications between a solr. & his client relative to a fraud contrived between them, are not exceptions to the general rule, they do not fall within the rule itself, for the rule applies not to all that passes between a solr. & his client, but only to what passes between them in professional confidence; & no ct. can permit it to be said that the contriving of a fraud forms part of the professional occupation of an attorney or solr.—*FOLLETT v. 4257. —.]—(1) The reasons of the rule which protects from disclosure communications made in professional confidence, apply in cases of conflict between the client or those claiming under him & third persons, but do not apply in cases of testamentary disposition by the client as between different parties, all of whom claim under him. The privilege does not belong to the exors. as against the next of kin, but following the legal interest is subject to the trusts & incidents to which the legal interest is subject.

On a bill by the next of kin of deceased against his exors., who were his residuary devisees & legatees, alleging that the gift of the property was made to them upon a secret trust for the foundation of a school, the solr. of testator, who was also, after the death of testator, the solr. of defts., the exors., was examined, as a witness for pltf. On a motion by defts. to suppress the depositions of the solr. on the ground of professional confidence:—Held: the communications between testator & the solr. might be read, & the communications between defts., the exors., & the solr. after the death of testator, were privileged.

(2) A privilege given for the protection of the client cannot have the effect of excluding evidence of a trust which he had intended to create, & thus defeat a claim by the parties who accepted the trust, to hold the trust property beneficially.

(3) Communications between solr. & client, through the medium of an agent, are protected equally with communications had directly with the principal.

(4) Semble: the existence of an illegal purpose would prevent any privilege from attaching to the communications between solr. & client.—RUSSELL

4258. —.]—It must not be understood that I give the slightest sanction for there being any privilege of a client who consults an attorney as to the concoction or with respect to the committing of a crime or a fraud. I believe the law is, & properly is, that if a party consults an attorney & obtains advice for what afterwards turns out to be the commission of a crime or a fraud, that party so consulting the attorney has no privilege whatever to close the lips of the attorney from stating the truth. Indeed if any such privilege should be contended for or existed it would work most grievous hardship on an attorney who after he had been consulted upon what subsequently appeared to be a manifest crime & fraud would have his lips closed & might place him in a very serious position of being suspected to be a party to the fraud & without his having an opportunity of exculpating himself. . . . There is no privilege in the case which I have suggested of a party consulting another, a professional man, as to what may afterwards turn out to be a crime of fraud & the best mode of accomplishing it (BOVILL, C.J.).—*TICHBORNE v. 4259. —.]—All communications between a solr. & his client are not privileged from disclosure, but only those passing between them in professional confidence & in the legitimate course of professional employment of the solr. Communications made to a solr. by his client before the commission of a crime for the purpose of being guided or helped in the commission of it, are not privileged from disclosure.

C. & R. were partners under a deed of partnership. M. brought an action against R. & Co. & obtained judgment therein, & issued execution against the goods of R. The goods seized in execution were then claimed by C. as his absolute property under a bill of sale executed in his favour by R. at a date subsequent to the above-mentioned judgment. An interpleader issue was ordered to determine the validity of the bill of sale, & upon the trial of this issue, the partnership deed was produced on C.'s behalf, bearing an indorsement purporting to be a memorandum of dissolution of the partnership prior to the commencement of the action by M. Subsequently C. & R. were tried & convicted upon a charge of conspiring to defraud M., & upon that trial the case for the prosecution was, that the bill of sale was fraudulent, that the partnership between R. & C. was in truth subsisting when it was given, & that the memorandum of dissolution indorsed on the deed was put there

4256 II. —.]—If a man should confide to a professional person that he had a treasonable or felonious intention, & wished to know how he might execute it so as to escape punishment, such communication, which might make the person consulted guilty of misprision if not disclosed, would not be privileged; but if a man meditates an act which, exceeding certain limits, would become criminal, & confined within certain bounds would be perfectly justifiable, the person asking the advice must be considered as seeking how he may avoid, & not how he may commit a crime; & such communication is privileged.—R. v. HAYDN (1825), 2 Fox & S. R. 379.—IR.

4256 III. —.]—In an action to set aside certain deeds made to the prejudice of creditors, defender's solr. was called on to produce a correspondence between him & his client. Objected on the ground of confidentiality. The ct. after inquiry as to the description of the letters repelled the objection. The proceedings libelled amounted to fraud, & therefore to a moral wrong. Letters passing between the bkpt. & his professional adviser in connection with the contemplated fraud were of the very marrow of the necessary inquiry & certainly not privileged.—McCOWAN v. WRIGHT (1853), 1 W. R. 184.—SCOT.

after M. had obtained judgment, & fraudulently ante-dated, the whole transaction being, it was alleged, a fraud intended to cheat M. of the fruits of his execution. Upon the trial a solr. was called on behalf of the prosecution to prove that after M. had obtained the judgment C. & R. together consulted him as to how they could defeat M.'s judgment, & as to whether a bill of sale could legally be executed by R. in favour of C. so as to defeat such judgment, & that no suggestion was then made of any dissolution of partnership having taken place. The reception of this evidence being objected to, on the ground that the communication was one between solr. & client, & privileged, the evidence was received but the question of whether it was properly received was reserved for this ct.:—Held: the evidence was properly received.—*R. v. 4269. Solicitor employed by trustee—in matters of trust—Solicitor acting for cestui que trust—Although looking to trustee for costs.—In an action by a cestui que trust against a trustee, a communication was made by deft. to an attorney, who had been employed by him in the matters of the trust, & only relating to such matters. It appeared that the witness, though he looked to deft. for his costs, pltf. at the time being a married woman, yet was acting for pltf., & did not consider deft. as his client; his employment having been only in getting in the monies due on the securities assigned to deft. under the trusts of a separation deed, & which formed the subject of the trusts:—Held: the communication was not privileged, & the real interest was in the cestui que trust, pltf.—SHEAN v. PHILIPS (1859), 1 F. & F. 449, N. P.

(d) Information acquired from Collateral Sources.

4270. General rule.—KELWAY v. KELWAY (1580), Cary, 89; 21 E. R. 47.

4271. ——An attorney is bound to disclose, when called as a witness by the adverse party, the contents of a notice which he received to produce a paper in the hands of his client; the privilege of the client extending to exclude the

SECT. 3.—ATTENDANCE.

SUB-SECT. 1.—SUBPŒNA AD TESTIFICANDUM.

A. Witnesses within Jurisdiction.

(a) Issue of Subpœna.

i. In General.

4316. May be issued before complaint made.]

—R. v. VICKERY, No. 4691, post.

4317. May be issued at any stage of proceedings—Subject to control of court.]—Any party may without leave of the ct. issue a subpœna for the examination of a witness at any stage of an action; but the ct. will exercise a control over this privilege to prevent its being oppressively used. In an action for the redemption of a mtge. the usual judgment was obtained & deflt., the mtgee., proceeded to vouch his accounts in chambers. Pltfs. subpœnaed a solr. who had acted for both parties in the mtge. transactions, in order to examine him with respect to the moneys received by him on account of both parties:—Held: pltf. was entitled to issue the subpœna & to examine the witness.—RAYMOND v. TAPSON (1882), 22 Ch. D. 430; 48 L. T. 403; 31 W. R. 394, C. A.

4318. ———.]—The ct. will not permit the rules of procedure to be oppressively used, & although a suitor has the privilege of issuing a subpœna for the cross-examination of a witness at any stage of the action, the privilege will be controlled in a proper case.

Pltf. in an administration action, who was also residuary legatee & extrix. under the will the trusts of which it was sought to execute, took out an ordinary summons for accounts under R. S. C., Ord. 15, r. 1, & in support of the summons, & by direction of the chief clerk, made & filed an affidavit to formally prove her title. Deflts., who were her co-exors. & also residuary legatees, served her with a notice to attend before the examiner for the purpose of being cross-examined upon the affidavit, but alleged no reason for believing that any useful result would be obtained, except that it was unnecessary & contrary to the wishes of their testatrix that the estate should be administered by the ct.:—Held: deflts. were abusing the process of the ct., & a motion to compel the attendance of pltf. was refused with costs.—Re MUNDELL, FENTON v. CUMBERLEGE (1883), 52 L. J. Ch. 756; 48 L. T. 776.

4319. ———.]—Although as a general rule a writ of subpœna may be served at any stage of the proceedings in an action, yet service at a time when, to the knowledge of the parties, the action cannot possibly be tried during the current sittings amounts to an abuse of the process of the ct., & ought to be set aside.—LONDON & GLOBE FINANCE CORPN. v. KAUFMAN (1899), 69 L. J. Ch. 196; 48 W. R. 458; 16 T. L. R. 62.

4320. Issue of subpœna merely to compel witness to stand up in court for identification—Abuse of process of court.]—A person, who attends in ct. on subpœna cannot against his will be asked to stand up in ct. for identification.

It is an abuse of the process of the ct. that any one should be brought to the ct. by subpœna solely for the purpose of being compelled to stand up for identification (SHEARMAN, J.).—FARULLI v. FARULLI & PEDERZOLI, [1917] P. 28; 86 L. J. P. 35; 116 L. T. 18.

—J—See, also, No. 4319, ante.

4321. Setting aside subpœna—Jurisdiction of court—Issue abuse of process.]—LONDON & GLOBE FINANCE CORPN. v. KAUFMAN, No. 4319, ante.

4322. ——— Issue not bonâ fide.]—(1) The K. B. Div. of the High Ct. of Justice has jurisdiction to set aside a subpœna issued in a criminal proceeding.

(2) A witness served with a subpœna cannot get it set aside by merely swearing that he can give no material evidence. But the ct. being satisfied that writs of subpœna ad testificandum had been issued not bonâ fide for the purpose of obtaining relevant evidence & that the witnesses named in them were in fact unable to get relevant evidence set the subpœnas aside.—R. v. BAINES, [1909] 1 K. B. 258; 78 L. J. K. B. 119; 100 L. T. 78; 25 T. L. R. 79; 21 Cox, C. C. 756; sub nom. R. v. BAINES, Ex p. ASQUITH, 72 J. P. 524; sub nom. R. v. BAINES, 53 Sol. Jo. 101.

4323. Effect of issue of subpœna—Breach of undertaking not to molest.]—By an undertaking deflt., whose wife was another deflt., & his solr. undertook that no attempt should be made, directly or indirectly, by reason of the production of the wife before the examiner, to discover her residence, or in any way to molest her. The husband & his solr. signed the registrar's book at the foot of the undertaking. When the wife attended before the examiner, the husband's solr., upon the conclusion of her examination, served her with a writ of subpœna to attend as a

p. Public servant—Postmaster.]—The postmaster of D. having been summoned as a witness in a cause & asked whether he had or not then in the office a letter addressed to petr. & an advice of a post office order for money to be paid to him which petr. had not yet claimed, the witness appealed to the ct. whether he was bound to answer in view of his oath of secrecy as a servant of the post office:—Held: he might answer whether he had the letter or the advice but no further.—JAMES v. CLARK (1841), Blucet, 226.—I. of M.

witness in another cause. On motion to commit the solr. to prison for breach of the undertaking, the solr. appearing in person & stating that he did not intend to commit any contempt of ct., or any breach of the undertaking, the ct. would not commit the solr. but made him pay the costs of the application.—LAWFORD v. SPICER, Re SOLICITOR OF THE COURT (1856), 27 L. T. O. S. 75; 2 Jur. N. S. 504; 4 W. R. 497.

b. Subject to control of court—To prevent abuse of process.]—A litigant's privilege of taking out summonses to witnesses is subject to the control of the tribunal, which is called upon to enforce their attendance, though such control will be exercised sparingly & only in exceptional cases. This control is an instance of the authority of every ct. of competent jurisdiction to prevent abuse of its process.—VEERABADRAN CHETTY v. NATARAJA DESIKAR (1905), 1 L. R. 28 Mad. 28.—IND.

4332. Motion for decree.]—The ct. has jurisdiction under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, to issue a subpoena ad testificandum or a subpoena duces tecum, requiring the attendance of witnesses on a motion for a decree.—*WIGAN v. 4338. Time for attendance—No particular notice when cause would come on.—The ct. refused an attachment against a witness, who being subpœnaed without particular notice when the cause would come on, in the course of his third day's attendance left the ct. to attend to urgent business of his trade although the case was tried in his absence & pltf. non-suited, which his evidence would have prevented. So, though the witness was induced to leave the ct. by the representation of the adverse attorney.—BLANDFORD v. DE TASTET (1813), 5 Taunt. 260; 1 Marsh. 42; 128 E. R. 689.

4339. — Omission of "from day to day."—(1) A subpœna requiring the party to attend the trial of a cause on the commission day of the assizes, extends to the whole assizes, & it need not go on to require his attendance from day to day until the cause is tried.

(2) Semble: it is not sufficient, in answer to an application for an attachment against a witness for disobedience to a subpœna, to show that his evidence was not material.

(3) In answer to a motion for an attachment, the witness swore, that he had been for some time in bad health; that on the day before the trial came on, he had been in readiness to attend & give evidence; that on the morning of the trial he was unwell, & did not rise until ten o'clock, & that on going shortly afterwards to his office, which was in his way to the ct., he found the cause had been tried:—Held: rule discharged.

We think there is no sufficient ground . . . for coming to the conclusion, that the absence of the witness was voluntary in contempt of the process of the ct. that ought to have been clearly shown & we cannot presume it (LORD ABINGER, C.B.).—SCHOLES v. HILTON (1842), 10 M. & W. 15; 2 Dowl. N. S. 229; 11 L. J. Ex. 332; 152 E. R. 362. Annotation:—As to (3) Follid. Hadden v. Parker (1849), 14 J. P. Jo. 4.

GALL* (1817), Holt, N. P. 526. Annotation:—Refd. Taylor v. Willans (1830), 4 Moo. & P. 59.

4341. Discrepancy between original & copy served—As to date of attendance.—If the original writ of subpœna requires the witness to appear on May 27, & the copy served requires him to appear on May 24, an attachment for disobedience cannot be obtained.—DOE d. CLARKE v. THOMSON (1841), 9 Dowl. 918.

4342. Alteration of subpœna—Validity.—A subpœna cannot be altered after it has left the office sealed, although a practice has prevailed of permitting the process to be altered by postponing the day of the return.

Where pltf. had obtained an injunction for want of appearance to a writ so altered, by changing the return day from June 30 to July 2, the ct., on motion, quashed the subpœna, & set aside the attachment & injunction which had been granted thereon, on the ground of the irregularity.—*PARKER v. 4347. — — — — — Personal service impossible.—The obligation of producing a witness lies with the cross-examining party, & personal service unnecessary, where impossible.—WINTHROP v. ELDERTON (1853), 1 W. R. 318.

4353. —.]—A witness is not bound to obey a subpoena altered by the attorney from the sittings for which it was originally sued out to subsequent sittings without being re-sealed. Whether a subpoena has been served in reasonable time before the trial is matter for the ct. Service on a person living close to the place of trial, at half past eleven o'clock in the morning, for a cause called on at two o'clock, is not a sufficient time.—BARBER v. WOOD (1838), 2 Mood. & R. 172.

4354. —.]—The question as to whether a subpoena ad testificandum is served within a reasonable time depends upon the circumstances of each particular case; therefore, where deft. was served at 12 o'clock while standing on the steps of the ct.-house, & was told that the trial would come on the same day, which it did, at 5 o'clock:—Held: the service was sufficient.—MAUNSELL v. AINSWORTH (1840), 8 Dowl. 869; 11. & W. 5.

(a) In General.

4409. Nature of subpœna.—The writ of subpœna duces tecum is of compulsory obligation on a witness to produce papers thereby demanded which he has in his possession, & which he has no lawful or reasonable excuse for withholding; of the validity of which excuse the ct., & not the witness, is to judge; & in an action against a sheriff's bailiff, for disobeying such writ, who having been subpœnaed, in a former action by pltf. against another, to produce the warrant under which he acted, had neglected so to do, whereby pltf. was non-suited, his ability to produce the warrant & his want of just excuse for not producing it, are sufficiently alleged by stating, that he could & might in obedience to the said writ of subpœna have produced at the trial of the said warrant, & that he had no lawful or reasonable excuse or impediment to the contrary.—AMEY v. LONG (1808), 9 East, 473; 103 E. R. 653; previous proceedings (1807), 1 Camp. 14, N. P.

Thatcher* (1916), 86 L. J. K. B. 121. Mentd. Davis v. Lovell (1839), 3 Jur. 225.

4410.—Distinguished from summons of justices—Requiring witness to attend & produce documents.—The summons of a justice, requiring a party possessed of documents to attend as a witness & produce such documents on the hearing of an application for an order of removal, is not equivalent to a subpœna duces tecum; & secondary evidence is not admissible on proof that such summons has been served & disobeyed.—R. v. ORTON (INHABITANTS) (1815), 7 Q. B. 120; 1 New Mag. Cas. 243; 1 New Sess. Cas. 567; 14 L. J. M. C. 89; 5 L. T. O. S. 53; 9 J. P. 520; 9 Jur. 441; 115 E. R. 433.

4411. Necessity for—Solicitor in possession of documents.—An attorney, a witness to a deed, & in possession of the same, cannot be compelled to attend with the deed at the hearing of the cause, otherwise than by a subpœna duces tecum.—BUSK v. LEWIS (1821), 6 Madd. 29; 56 E. R. 1000.

4412.—In court.—Where the attorney of a deft. on a criminal trial holds, as attorney for another person, a document which he admits to have with him in ct., & the production of which is requisite for the purposes of the trial, he is bound to produce it, although he has not been served with a subpœna duces tecum.—R. v. NORTH (1815), 5 L. T. O. S. 538; 1 Cox, C. C. 258.

4413.———(1) The holder of a bill, put it into the hands of an attorney to sue upon it in the name of another person, who was really trusted by the attorney for the costs, & regarded as his client:—Held: he was not entitled to sue the attorney for negligence in the action.

(2) Where deft.'s attorney was not bound to produce the bill on a notice to produce:—Held: he was bound to produce it on subpœna duces tecum.—MOSS v. SOLOMON (1858), 1 F. & F. 342, N. P.

4414.—Witness with documents in court.—A witness being sworn, & having then in ct. a document in his possession, is bound to produce it, if required, though he has not received any notice to produce, nor been served with a subpœna duces tecum.—SNEELGROVE v. STEVENS (1812), Car. & M. 508; 6 J. P. 525, N. P.

4415. Whether necessary to swear witness merely producing documents.—If a person having the custody of papers be subpœnaed to produce them on the trial of a cause, he may be called on to put them in without being sworn as a witness.—DAVIS v. DALK (1830), 4 C. & P. 335; Mood. & M. 514, N. P.

Annotation:—Consd. Summers v. Moseley (1834), 3 L. J. Ex. 128.

4416.———A person producing documents under a subpœna duces tecum need not be sworn, if the party by whom he is called does not wish to examine him.—PERRY v. GIBSON (1831), 1 Ad. & El. 48; 3 Nev. & M. K. B. 462; 3 L. J. K. B. 158; 110 E. R. 1125.

4417.———A party served with a subpœna duces tecum is bound to produce the required document in ct., & need not be sworn. Thus in an action against a sheriff upon Debtors' Imprisonment Act, 1759 (c. 28), for a penalty incurred by DARRACOTT (1873), 8 I. R. Eq. 348.—IR.

d. Witness resident in any part of the United Kingdom.—The Probate division has jurisdiction to order a subpœna to issue to compel the attendance of witnesses residing in any part of the United Kingdom.—BAGOT v. BAGOT (1878), 1 L. R. Ir. 1.—IR.

e. Whether against party.—Semble: C. S. C., c. 79, s. 4 authorising the issue of a subpœna to Lower Canada, does not apply to a party to the suit, as C. S. U. C., c. 32, s. 16, apparently contemplates a commission in such case.—YOUNG v. O'REILLY (1864), 21 U. C. R. 172.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.—B. (b).

f. Affidavit of service abroad—Whether commission to authorise taking necessary.—It is unnecessary to issue a commission to authorise the taking of the affidavit of service in a foreign country.—SNYDER v. O'LONE (1853), 4 Gr. 148.—CAN.

g. Party temporarily within jurisdiction.—When a party to an action who lives in a foreign country comes within the jurisdiction, service upon him of an appointment & subpœna, as in the case of resident litigants, is sufficient to compel his attendance.—COMSTOCK v. HARRIS (1887), 12 P. R.

PART V. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 3.—A. (a).

4414 i. Necessity for—Witness with documents in court.—Pltf.'s witness stated that work was done upon a written agreement, which he had in ct., but refused to produce. He had not been subpœnaed:—Held: he was as much bound to produce the writing as if in attendance under a subpœna duces tecum.—FAIRLEY v. GRAHAM (1852), 9 U. C. R. 438.—CAN.

h.———When a subpœna duces tecum has been enforced by counsel, & is necessary to enforce the production day to day.”]—A writ of subpœna duces tecum required deft.’s attorney to appear on a particular day, but did not command him to appear “from day to day,” after that day. The cause was postponed at the instance of deft., & the attorney did not appear on the day when the cause was called on:—Held: attachment for disobedience to the subpœna refused.—VAUGHTON v. BRINE (1840), 9 Dowl. 179; Woll. 41; 4 Jur. 1061.

(d) Service of Subpœna.

4432 Sufficiency—Personal attendance of officer of court required—Necessity for so informing witness.]—When an officer of the ct. is served with a subpœna duces tecum to produce a judgment book, if the personal attendance of the officer be necessary, he must be informed so, or the ct. will not grant an attachment against him, his clerk having attended with the book, though plff. was nonsuited in consequence.—BENNETT v. JONES (1815), 2 Chit. 403.

(e) Irregularity in Subpœna.

4433 Effect of—Witness may disregard subpœna.]—An irregular subpœna duces tecum may be disregarded by a witness.—TIPPINS v. COATES (1818), 17 L. J. Ch. 337; 13 L. T. O. S. 441; 12 Jur. 339, L. C.; previous proceedings (1847), 6 Hare, 16.

4434 ———.]—On an inquiry in chambers to ascertain the next of kin of a person dead, partially intestate, one of the claimants, not a party to the suit, served upon deft., the administrator, & also one of the claimants of kinship, a summons to attend for examination, & a subpœna duces tecum to compel him to produce all letters from persons named in the subpœna, to intestate, & other documents; deft. admitted possession of some such letters & documents, but declined to produce them. Upon motion:—Held: without deciding whether the description was too general, this was an improper mode of attempting to obtain evidence to support the claim.—NEWLAND v. STEER (1865), 13 L. T. 111; 11 Jur. N. S. 596; 13 W. R. 1014.

B. What Documents must be Produced.

(a) Documents of which Witness has Custody only.
i. In General.

4435. General rule.]—(1) Upon a subpœna duces tecum, a witness is bound to produce a paper which he has in his actual custody, though the legal right & property in such paper belong to another. The ct., however, in all such cases will exercise their discretion, in deciding what papers shall be produced; & under what qualifications, as respects the interest of the witness.

(2) Such witness is bound to produce them, though there be a regular way prescribed by law for obtaining such documents.—CORSEN v. DUBOIS (1816), Holt, N. P. 239, N. P.

4436. Documents in possession of witness only as employee—Steward of manor.]—Possession of a steward of documents, as leases, etc., is the possession of his employer, & therefore, not affected by a subpœna duces tecum served on the steward to produce them on the part of a deft. on the trial of an action at law, in which his employer was plff. The steward may, however, be examined as a witness to give evidence of the existence & contents of a particular document, if due notice have been given to produce it specifically.—FALMOUTH (EARL) v. MOSS (1822), 11 Price, 455; 147 E. R. 530.

4437. ———.]—An attorney & steward of a lord of a borough is bound to produce under a subpœna duces tecum public documents relating to the borough, but he is not bound to produce documents relating to the lord’s interest in the borough.—R. v. WOODLEY (1834), 1 Mood. & R. 390, N. P.

Annotation:—Refd. Doe d. Egremont v. Langdon (1818), 13 Jur. 96.

4438. ——— No permission by master to produce—Clerk in public office—Permission of head of office not obtained.]—A party nonsuited for non-production of a document from a public office, is not entitled to a new trial on the ground of surprise, where he has served a clerk in the office with a subpœna duces tecum to produce the document, but has omitted to apply to the head of the office for permission for its production.—AUSTIN v. EVANS (1841), 2 Man. & G. 430; 9 Dowl. 408; Drinkwater, 77; 133 E. R. 814.

4439. ——— Secretary & solicitor of company—Refusal of directors to allow production.]—The ct. refused to grant an attachment against a witness for disobedience of an order of the district prothonotary of the Ct. of Pleas at Lancaster, & of an arbitrator, which required the witness to produce before the latter in London a large number of books & documents belonging to a railway co. in Lincolnshire, of which he was the secretary & solr., & which the directors who were no parties to the reference refused to allow him to bring.—CROWTHER v. APPLEBY (1873), L. R. 9 C. P. 23; 43 L. J. C. P. 7; 22 W. R. 265; sub nom. CROWTHER v. APPLEBY, Re SHARPLEY, 29 L. T. 580; 38 J. P. 21.

4440. ——— Books taken out of his custody.]—The secretary of a co. was called upon to produce the books of his co. in obedience to a subpœna duces tecum. He did not produce them, & stated that, by a resolution passed by his directors subsequently to the service of the subpœna upon him, the books had been taken out of his custody:—Held: no writ of attachment for disobedience to his subpœna ought to issue against him.—R. v. STUART (1885), 2 T. L. R. 144, D. C.

4441. ———.]—A witness, who was the manager of one branch of T.’s business, & in whose possession were, it was said, certain documents relating to dealings that had taken place between debtor & T., was ordered to attend & produce on subpœna the documents. The witness had no authority to produce the documents, & refused to do so:—Held: as the witness was a mere servant & had no authority from his master to produce the documents, he could not under the circumstances of the case be ordered to do so.—Re HIGGS, Ex p. LEICESTER (1892), 66 L. T. 296; 40 W. R. 432, D. C.

4447. — —.]—Overseers of the poor are bound to produce the rate books of their parish before the justices at petty sessions, on an inquiry into the settlement of a pauper, in obedience to a writ of subpœna duces tecum; & if they wilfully omit or refuse to do this, this ct. will grant an attachment against them.

Semble: the attachment will be granted against them, if they do not produce the books, although they swear that they are not in their possession, & that they have made search for them, & think it probable that they may be in custody of a late overseer specifically named, if they do not at the same time swear that they have made search in the parish chest, for this is the proper place for the custody of the books, & the overseers would naturally, in the first instance, expect to find them there.—*R. v. Pltf. was a witness in his own cause; & he remained in this country till after the rule nisi was discharged. On taxation the master allowed pltf. subsistence money from the time the rule was granted till it was discharged. On a rule to review the taxation:—Held: as the master must be taken to have found that pltf. was a necessary witness, that he could not have attended a second trial, if one were ordered, unless he remained, & that his remaining incapacitated him from earning his subsistence, the detention might, under those special circumstances, be considered as part of the costs of the rule, & the allowance was right.

It is not a general rule that parties, if witnesses, are to have an allowance for their attendance.—DOWDELL v. AUSTRALIAN ROYAL MAIL CO. (1851), 3 E. & B. 902; 2 C. L. R. 1656; 23 L. J. Q. B. 369; 23 L. T. O. S. 98; 18 Jur. 579; 2 W. R. 551; 118 E. R. 1379.

4523. Alleged contributory—Summoned as witness.]—Scoble: where an "alleged contributory," not settled on the list, is summoned as a witness his travelling expenses ought to be tendered to him.

But where an "alleged contributory" who declined to sign a proposed admission of his execution of the co.'s deed was served with a summons to attend as a witness, & did not demand his expenses, but disobeyed the summons & there appeared every probability of his being a contributory:—Held: he was not entitled to the costs of a motion to commit him, which it became unnecessary to dispose of on the merits, from his making in ct., the required admission.—RE NORTHERN & SOUTHERN CONNECTING RY. 4524. Judgment debtor—Attending on examination as to means.]—A judgment debtor, for whose examination an order has been made under

R. S. C., Ord. 42, r. 32, though entitled to a reasonable sum for conduct money, does not come within Ord. 37, r. 9, & therefore is not entitled under that rule to the "like conduct money & payment for expenses & loss of time as upon attendance at a trial in ct."

The question what, under the circumstances of the case, is a reasonable sum is eminently one for the discretion of the master, & one which he has better means of determining than the ct.; & I do not think that the ct. ought in this case to interfere with the exercise of his discretion (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—RENDELL v. Deft. who was an attorney & clerk to the parish officers, thinking it advisable that the valuation should be supported by the evidence of another surveyor, with the authority of the parish officers wrote to the valuer to secure the services of a competent person for that purpose. The valuer communicated with pltf., an architect & surveyor, who, to qualify himself for giving evidence, examined the premises in respect of which the litigation arose, & afterwards gave evidence as to their value. Pltf. entered his account in his ledger against the parish officers & sent in his bill to them, but afterwards sued deft. for the work thus done:—Held: the parish officers, & not deft., who was merely their agent, were liable to pltf.—*LEE v. 4534. ——— Part expenses recovered from one party—Right to recover balance from other party.]—Pltf. was subpoenaed as a witness by both parties in a cause between B. & E. In consequence of B.'s subpoena he remained in attendance for eleven days. E. obtained the verdict at the trial, & pltf. called upon B. to pay his expenses, which

B. refused to do. The attorney for E. then paid the demand, upon an understanding that pltf. should return to him any part which the master might strike off, upon taxation. At the taxation the attorney swore that he had paid pltf. the whole sum demanded, but, at the instance of B., the master struck off a certain portion, which pltf. accordingly returned, & then brought an action against B. to recover that amount:—Held: he was not prevented from recovering in the action, by reason of his repayment of the sum which he had first received from the attorney for E.—*HALE v. 4541. — —.—While it has always been the practice, owing to the nature of their calling, to allow seafaring witnesses to be detained on shore to give evidence, & to allow them reasonable compensation for their detention, it is a question for the taxing master whether a party who seeks to charge his opponent with the cost of detaining an expensive witness has acted reasonably in incurring the expense or whether he ought not to have examined the witness on commission.

A taxing master should bear in mind that a witness duly summoned is bound to attend, & the witness is not entitled to receive, as the measure of his compensation, the exact sum he may prove he has lost by reason of the detention. He is, however, entitled to some compensation, & not merely to the conduct money given him with his subpoena; & the wages he is earning may afford an important indication of what is fair compensation. THE ISIS VI. [1921] P. 255; 90 L. Pltf. could have had another passage in the course of a few days, but he remained until the trial of the cause, several months, & gave evidence in his own favour. A verdict was found for him. On motion to review the master's taxation of costs :—Held : if pltf. was detained bonâ fide for the purpose of giving evidence in the cause, & it was proper to call him as a witness at the trial, he ought to be allowed the expense of his maintenance while so remaining in this country as costs against defts., although he

In the meantime a compromise was entered into between the parties, so that it became unnecessary to try the cause.

Upon taxation the master refused to allow the witness's costs, on the ground that the bringing him over was premature:—Held: the taxing master was wrong, & as the witness's evidence was material, the costs of his journey to & from Norway & the costs of his examination before the master should have been allowed.

4608. What is civil process—Capias in respect of information under East India Company Act, 1793 (c. 52), s. 62.—An information at suit of A. G. under the above sect. is in nature of a criminal charge & a capias under sect. 141 in respect of it is criminal process. No privilege therefore from arrest on such a charge exists to a person redeundo on his discharge upon habeas corpus from illegal custody as such privilege only exists in civil process.—Re DOUGLAS (1842), 3 Q. B. 825; 3 Gal. & Dav. 509; 12 L. J. Q. B. 49; 7 Jur. 39; 114 E. R. 724.

Privilege from arrest for contempt of ct., where it otherwise exists, can be claimed in respect of attendance as an advocate at a police court as well as at any other ct., although the proceedings at a police ct. consist merely of a preliminary inquiry on a charge of felony.

F. was a solr., & an order was made at chambers that he should deliver up certain documents & should pay the sum of £10 & certain costs. This order was made against F. as an officer of the ct. F. delivered up the documents, but he did not pay the sum of £10 or the costs. An order for the attachment of F. for contempt of ct. was thereupon made at chambers. F. then paid the sum of £10, but he did not pay the costs. He was arrested under the attachment, whilst he was on his return to his offices from a metropolitan police ct., where he had been as advocate attending to defend certain persons at a preliminary inquiry on a charge of treason-felony:—Held: he was not entitled to be discharged from custody on the ground of privilege from arrest, the attachment having been granted for a contempt of a criminal nature.—Re PRESTON (1883), 11 Q. 4642. —J.—To warrant an attachment against a party for not attending pursuant to a subpoena, it must be made out to the satisfaction of the ct. that his non-attendance was the result of a contemptuous disregard of the process of the ct., or that he was a material & necessary witness.

In an action upon an I.O.U., pltf. subpoenaed three witnesses, viz. deft.'s brother, his clerk, & his attorney's clerk, in order to prove his handwriting. The cause was in the list for Nov. 10, when all the witnesses were in attendance, but it was not called on until the following morning, when, deft.'s brother & his clerk not being in attendance, & the other witness declining to state when asked whether or not he could prove deft.'s handwriting, pltf. by the advice of counsel (though under a peremptory undertaking to try) withdrew the record. On Nov. 12, deft. obtained a rule absolute for judgment as in case of a nonsuit. The ct. discharged, but without costs, a rule for an attachment against deft.'s brother for not attending pursuant to his subpoena—he swearing that his absence was the result of a misapprehension as to the probable time at which the cause would be called on, & not of any intentional disregard of the process of the ct.; & the witness who was in attendance swearing that he could have proved deft.'s handwriting, & that pltf.'s attorney had the means of knowing that fact.—*CHAPMAN v. g. Misconception of arrangement with attorney.]—The ct. refused to attach a witness for not attending a trial in obedience to a subpoena, when his non-attendance originated in a misconception of the meaning of an arrangement entered into between pltf.'s attorney & the witness, whereby the latter was to be sent for when the case was likely to be called on.—*MACCORMACK v. Breach, that deft. did not appear at the trial, by reason whereof pltf. was obliged to withdraw the record. Deft. pleaded non assumpsit. 4702. — Calling witness on subpoena.]—In an action against a party for not appearing to give evidence in obedience to a writ of subpœna ad testificandum, it is not necessary to show that deft. was called on his subpoena by the officer of the ct., if it be shown by other satisfactory evidence that he was not present at the proper time & place when he was required to give evidence; or even that he was absent when the cause was called on for trial, under such circumstances that he could not have been forthcoming when required to give evidence; & in such case it is not necessary that the jury should have been sworn & pltf. nonsuited, it is sufficient if he withdrew the record, being unable safely to go to trial in the absence of the witness.—LAMONT v. CROOK (1840), 6 M. & W. 615; 8 Dowl. 737; 9 L. J. Ex. 253; 4 Jur. 489; 151 E. R. 558.

At all events, such allegation is sufficient after verdict.—MASTERMAN v. JUDSON (1832), 8 Bing. 224; 1 Moo. & S. 367; 1 L. J. C. P. 86; 131 E. R. 387.

4704. — —.]—(1) An action on the case lies against a witness for not attending a trial in pursuance of a subpoena, though pltf. withdrew the record in consequence of his absence, without the jury being sworn.

(2) In such an action it is necessary to allege distinctly in the declaration that there was a good cause of action in the original suit, but an allegation that deft. could have given material evidence for pltf., without which pltf. could not safely proceed to trial, & that by reason of his non-attendance, & because pltf. could not safely proceed to trial without his testimony, he was forced to & did, withdraw the record:—Held: sufficient after verdict.

(3) An allegation that the subpoena was made known to & shown to deft. was held to be supported by evidence that the subpoena was made known to, & conduct money taken by him, though the original subpoena was not shown, it not appearing that he requested to see it.

Pltf. in an action for use & occupation had two witnesses to speak to the occupation. One of them could also have rebutted deft.'s expected set-off, but did not appear upon his subpoena. The cause was called on in the absence of counsel on both sides, & the record withdrawn by pltf.'s attorney, who swore that he withdrew the record solely on account of the absence of the witness:—Held: the witness was liable to be sued accordingly.—MULLETT v. At the trial pltf. obtained a verdict on all the issues except the eighth, which was found for deft.:—Held: pltf. was bound to show that he had sustained some damage from the non-attendance of deft. as a witness.

Where there are several issues in the original action, the absence of a good cause of action, generally, does not per se show that pltf. has not sustained damage from the absence of the witness; for, the witness's testimony might have entitled him to the costs of some one issue.—*COULING v. 4729. Oath taken in usual form without objection—What questions witness may be asked—As to binding effect of oath on conscience of witness.—

(1) If a witness, without objecting to it, takes the oath in the usual form, he may be afterwards asked, whether he thinks the oath binding upon his conscience; but it is unnecessary & irrelevant to ask him, if he considers any other form of oath more binding, & such question cannot be asked.

(2) It is not allowable, on cross-examination, in the statement of a question to a witness, to represent the contents of a letter, & to ask the witness whether he wrote a letter to any person with such contents, or contents to the like effect, without having first shown the witness the letter, & having asked him whether he wrote that letter.

(3) If, on cross-examination, a witness admits a letter to be of his handwriting, he cannot be questioned by counsel whether statements, such as the counsel may suggest, are contained in it, but the whole letter must be read in evidence.

(4) In the ordinary course of proceeding, such letter must be read as part of the cross-examining counsel's case. The ct., however, may permit it to be read at an earlier period, if counsel suggest

(5) If a witness examined in chief on the part of pltf., being asked whether he remembers a quarrel taking place between A. & B., answers, that he has heard of a quarrel between them, but does not know the cause of it, & such witness is not asked, upon his cross-examination, whether he has or has not made a declaration stated in the question touching the cause of the quarrel, counsel for deft. cannot, in order to prove such witness's knowledge of the cause of the quarrel, afterwards examine a witness to prove that the other witness has made such a declaration to him touching the cause of such quarrel.

(6) When a witness in support of a prosecution has been examined in chief, & has not been asked in cross-examination as to any declarations made by him, or acts done by him, to procure persons corruptly to give evidence in support of the prosecution, it is not competent to the party accused to examine witnesses in his defence to prove such declarations or acts, without first calling back such witness examined in chief to be examined or cross-examined as to the fact, whether he ever made such declarations or did such acts.

(7) If, on the trial of an action or indictment, a witness examined on the part of pltf. or prosecutor, upon cross-examination by deft.'s counsel, states that at a time specified he told A. that he was one of the witnesses against deft., & being re-examined by pltf.'s or prosecutor's counsel, states what induced him to mention this to A., pltf.'s or prosecutor's counsel cannot further re-examine the witness as to such conversation, even as far only as it related to his being one of the witnesses.

(8) I think counsel has a right, upon re-examination, to ask all questions, which may be proper to draw forth an explanation of the sense & meaning of the expressions used by the witness on cross-examination, if they be in themselves doubtful, & also, of the motive, by which the witness was induced to use those expressions; but, I think, he has no right to go further, & to introduce matter new in itself, & not suited to the purpose of explaining either the expressions or the motives of the witness (ABBOTT, L.C.J.).—THE QUEEN'S CASE (1820), 2 Brod. & Bing. 281; 1 State Tr. N. S. App. 1318; 129 E. R. 976.

4730. What tribunals may administer oath.—Tribunal under Military Service Act, 1916 (c. 104).—

—(1) Tribunals under the above Act have power, if they think fit to exercise it, of administering an oath, & of hearing evidence on oath; but, having regard to the nature of the inquiry in which they are engaged, certainly in most cases, & probably in almost all, they will exercise a wise discretion in abstaining from taking evidence on oath.

(2) Tribunals have no inherent power to enforce the attendance of witnesses, but they may in a proper case invoke the assistance of the K. B. Div. of the High Ct. to do so; & the Master of the Crown Office, on being satisfied that the case is a proper one, has power to issue a subpoena at the instance of a tribunal.—R. v. 4731 i. Chinaman.—Upon a trial for murder, a Chinese witness, who was not a Christian, was interrogated as to the form of oath most binding, & was sworn by "the King's oath," or "chicken oath," a form deemed of greater solemnity than those ordinarily administered, the "paper" & "saucer" oaths.—R. v. AH WOOEY (1902), 9 B. C. R. 569.—CAN.

4731 ii. —.—An oath administered to a witness, without objection, in the form ordinarily administered to persons of his race or belief, is binding & the witness cannot afterwards be heard to say he was not sworn. It is not necessary to ask the witness whether the oath in the form in which he takes it is recognised by him as binding upon his conscience, there being no such word as "conscience" in the language of the witness, but it is only necessary in such a case to use such equivalent terms as would bring home to the witness the fact that he is binding himself according to his moral sense to speak the truth.—R. v. SUB-SECT. 3.—EFFECT OF DISOBEDIENCE TO ORDER.

4770. Whether ground for rejection of evidence.]—R. v. WEBB (1819), 4 C. & P. 588, n.

4771. ———.]—It is an inflexible rule, that a witness who is present in ct. during a trial, when he ought to have been out of ct., under an order made for that purpose, cannot be examined: & the ct. refused to grant rule to show cause why there should not be a new trial, where a person, not originally intended to be examined, who was present in ct., & who had been in ct. during the trial, was called to give evidence, & was not allowed to be examined on that ground.—A.-G. v. BULPIT (1821), 9 Price, 4; 147 E. R. 2.

4777. ———. Limitation of examination.]—The witnesses had been all ordered out of ct., but one of them came into ct. again, & heard the evidence of another witness. The witness who had so come back into ct. was allowed to be examined as to such facts only as had not been spoken to by any other witness.—BEAMON v. ELLICE (1831), 4 C. & P. 585, N. P.

4778. ———.]—All the witnesses were ordered out of ct. A witness for the prosecution remained in ct. The judge would not allow him to be examined.—R. v. WYLDE (1834), 6 C. & P. 380; 2 Nev. & M. M. C. 198.

4779. ———.]—(1) In an action against the maker of a promissory note, one of the subscribing witnesses was asked if she did not constantly sleep with her master, the pltf. She said that she did not.—Held: a witness might be called for deft. to prove that she did so, & that this was not collateral to the issue; though, if the question had been, whether the witness had walked the streets as that a party intends to give evidence does not entitle the other party to call for his exclusion, as in the case of an ordinary witness.—BIRD v. VIETH (1899), 7 B. C. R. 31.—CAN.

b. ———. Whether excluded as witness—Presence in court during examination of clerk.]—Where in an action for goods sold & delivered, pltf. made out a prima facie case through his clerk, who proved a delivery of the goods; & the promise to pay on request implied therefrom was repelled by deft., who stated a special contract varying from that implied.—Held: pltf. could not be excluded as a witness by reason of his presence in ct. during the examination of his clerk.—McFARLANE v. MARTIN (1853), 3 C. P. 64.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 3.

4770 i. Whether ground for rejection of evidence.]—Notice had been given on a previous day of the assizes, that parties to the record wishing to give evidence must not remain in ct. during the examination of the other witnesses; & the judge rejected the evidence of a deft. for disobedience of such notice.—Held: he had authority so to do.—WINTER v. MIXER (1852), 10 U. C. R. 110.—CAN.

4770 ii. ———.]—At the trial of an action the witnesses were ordered out of ct. Before the case was closed deft.'s counsel tendered a witness who had remained in ct., but the judge refused to allow him to be examined.—Held: there must be a new trial. The practice is to receive such evidence, but with great care.—BLACK v. BESSE (1886), 12 O. R. 522.—CAN.

4770 iii. ———.]—A witness should not be prevented from giving evidence by the mere fact that he has remained in the ct. room during the giving of other evidence when the ct. had ordered all witnesses to be excluded.—OKE v. SPELLER, [1921] 1 W. W. R. 1117; 14 Sask. L. R. 190; 59 D. L. R. 678.—CAN.

c. ———. Matter for judge's discretion.]—At the trial all the witnesses were ordered to withdraw. Deft., however, remained & was tendered as a witness but refused by the ct.—Held: the rejection or admission of the witness's testimony was entirely in the discretion of the judge, & the a prostitute, that would have been so, & had the witness denied it, other witnesses could not have been called to contradict her.

Is it not material to the issue, whether the principal witness who comes to support pltf.'s case is his kept mistress? . . . Here the question is, whether the witness had contracted such a relation with pltf., as might induce her the more readily to conspire with him to support a forgery (COLERIDGE, J.).

(2) If a witness come into ct., & hear some of the evidence after the witnesses have been ordered out of ct., it is entirely in the discretion of the judge whether he shall be examined or not; & this is so in the Exchequer as well as in other cts., the only difference in that ct. being confined to revenue cases, in which the rule is strict, that such witnesses cannot be examined.—THOMAS v. SECT. 6.—EXAMINATION.

SUB-SECT. 1.—EXAMINATION IN CHIEF.

A. In General.

4783. Examination must be relevant.—Where it is sought to elicit from one witness evidence inconsistent with the evidence of a previous witness, the examination, if not for the purpose of throwing discredit upon the previous witness, must have a direct bearing upon the main issue.—NOTTINGHAM TOWN CASE, OLDHAM'S CASE (1866), 15 L. T. 89.

4784. —. —.]—Slander of a school for filth & bad food; which was justified. To rebut the justifications, pltf.'s counsel cannot ask how boys are treated at any other particular school; nor can he ask as to the manner of their education, because it was not called in question by the slander.—BOLDRON v. WIDDOWS (1821), 1 C. & P. 65, N. P.

4785. Sufficiency of answer—No positive recollection of fact—Belief in affirmative.—That a man cannot positively recollect a fact but should rather believe the affirmative, is a full & satisfactory answer by a witness.—MILLER'S CASE (1773), 2 Wm. Bl. 881; 3 Wils. 420; 96 E. R. 518.

B. What Questions may be asked.

(a) Leading Questions.

4786. General rule.—I must have none of those things; we must have fair questions put; for, as you see, we will not admit the King's counsel to put any questions to the witnesses nor produce any witnesses against you that are leading or not proper; so nor must you (JEFFERIES, C.J.).—R. v. ROSEWELL (1681), as reported in 10 State Tr. 117.

Annotations :—Mentd. R. v. Dowling (1848), 3 Cox, C. C. 509; R. v. Mitchell (1848), 3 Cox, C. C. 1.

4788. —. —.]—An interrogatory being objected to as a leading question & the answer obtained by it as objectionable for that reason, the judge caused part of the interrogatory & part of the answer to be suppressed & the remainder which appeared not affected by the context to be read in evidence.—Held: the judge was not bound to reject the interrogatory & answer merely because the question was a leading one, but might exercise a discretion as to excluding or admitting the whole or part of the answer obtained by the leading question, & the course taken at the trial was correct.

The point whether a leading question can be put & the answer to it received or not is one on which the judge must exercise a discretion at the trial, & that whether the evidence be written or virâ voce (COLERIDGE, J.).—SMALL v. NAIRNE (1849), 13 Q. B. 840; 13 L. T. O. S. 527; 116 E. R. 1484.

e. —. —.]—Party—Excepted in order of exclusion.—At the beginning of a trial all witnesses were ordered out of ct., except the parties to the action. Judgment having been given dismissing the action as against the deft. P. his co-deft. M. entered upon his case & called P. as a witness. P. had remained in ct. & heard the whole of the evidence adduced by pltf., & his evidence was rejected on this ground.—Held: the evidence of P. was improperly rejected.—MAHONEY v. MACDONELL (1885), 9 O. R. 137.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

f. Previous examination of defendant by plaintiff—On affidavit—Right of plaintiff to examine at trial.—Pltf. has a right to examine deft. at the examination & hearing of the cause, although pltf. may have already cross-examined him on his answer, & on an affidavit which he has made in the cause.—THOMPSON v. HIND (circa 1862), 1 Ch. Ch. 217.—CAN.

g. Right to exclude evidence—Of own witness—After examination.—Where a party to a suit examines a witness at the hearing, the party calling him cannot afterwards exclude his testimony from the consideration of the ct.—VANNATTO v. MITCHELL (1867), 13 Gr. 665.—CAN.

h. Whether time limit to examination-in-chief—Unnecessary length of examination.—Where an attempt was being made to protract the examination-in-chief of the defence witnesses to a most unnecessary extent so as to delay, if not to prevent, the final termination of the case.—Held: the magistrate was not unreasonable in fixing a time limit for the examination-in-chief of the remaining witnesses.—CHINTAMON SINGH v. R. (1907), 1 L. R. 35 Cal. 243.—IND.

k. Counsel for opposite party—In- terposing questions—During examination.—There is no authority to support the practice of the opposite counsel interposing by asking questions during the examination of a witness.—WALSH v. ST. JOHN (1864), 5 Ndd. L. R. 30.—NFLD.

PART V. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 1.—B. (a).

4786 i. General rule.—The general rule is that in examining one's own witness, not that no leading questions must be asked, but that on material points one must not lead his own witness, but that on points that are merely introductory & form no part of the substance of the inquiry one should lead.—MAVES v. GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RY. Co. (1913), 25 W. L. R. 503; 11 D. L. R. 70; 6 Alta. L. R. 396.—CAN.

1. Question to plaintiff creditor—As to whom credit given.—In an action against the registered owner of a ship for the price of goods supplied for the ship, pltf. cannot be asked on his direct Exceptions were taken to them on the ground that they were leading & suggested answers beneficial to pltf., & not calculated to elicit the truth, & they were allowed by the master:—Held: upon exceptions to the master's certificate, the interrogatories were not leading, & objections might be taken to the evidence at the hearing of the cause.—GREGORY v. MARYCHURCH (1850), 12 Beav. 398; 19 L. J. Ch. 289; 50 E. R. 1113; sub nom. GREGORY v. DAVIES, 14 Jur. 102.

4790. — To direct mind of witness to particular topic—Contents of destroyed document.]—A leading question may be put when it is necessary to contradict a witness on the other side as to the contents of a paper which has been destroyed.—COURTEEN v. TOUSE (1807), 1 Camp. 43, N. P.

4791. — — — — —.]—A witness called to prove that A. & B. were partners, was asked whether A. had interfered in the business of B.:—Held: this was not a leading question.

I wish that objections to questions as leading, might be a little better considered before they are made. It is necessary, to a certain extent, to lead the mind of the witness to the subject of inquiry (LORD ELLENBOROUGH, C.J.).—NICHOLLS v. DOWDING & KEMP (1815), 1 Stark. 81, N. P.

4792. — — — — — Names of alleged partners.]—The counsel for pltf. may suggest to the witness called, to prove the partnership of several members of a firm who are pltf.s., the names of the component members of the firm.—ACERRO v. PETRONI (1815), 1 Stark. 100, N. P.

In cross-examination.]—See Sect. 6, sub-sect. 2, C., post.

(b) Other Questions.

4797. To prove that invention not new—Drawing of another machine constructed by witness—Drawing not made by witness—Questions to show accuracy of drawing.]—On sci. fa. to repeal a patent for a machine, on the ground that it is not new, you may, to prove that, put into the hand of a witness, who had constructed a machine for the same purposes, a drawing not made by himself, & ask him whether he has such a recollection of the machine he made, as to be able to say that that is a correct drawing of it.—R. v. HADDEN (1826), 2 C. & P. 184, N. P.

4798. Witness failing to give expected evidence.]—Where a witness fails to prove the facts that he was expected to do he may be examined by the counsel who call him, in order to show attempts to intimidate him.—NOTTINGHAM CASE (No. 2) (1843), Bar. & Arn. 192.

Hostile witness.]—See Sect. 8, sub-sect. 1, post.

4799. Witness called to give evidence at variance with that of witness on other side.]—Where a witness for the prosecution has given an account of what was said by deft. at a particular transaction, & a witness is called for the defence to give a different one, it is not allowable for deft.'s counsel to put to him the precise words used by the first witness, & ask if they were uttered; but the witness should be called upon in the first instance to give his version of the matter, & when he has so done, he may be asked whether this or that expression was used.—R. v. FUSSELL (1848), 6 State Tr. N. S. 723; 12 J. P. 537; 3 Cox, C. C. 291.

4800. To prove custom.]—A question cannot be asked as to the details of a custom, until a foundation has been laid for that question by proving that some custom exists.—CURTIS v. PEEK (1864), 29 J. P. 70; 13 W. R. 230, Ex. Ch.

4802. In action to restrain breach of covenant to buy beer—Questions to show complaints from customers.]—Deft. executed under seal an agreement with B. Ltd. to take a yearly tenancy of the M. hotel & covenanted that he would purchase of B. Ltd. or their successors all ale beer etc. sold. B. Ltd. sold all their property, including the M. hotel & the goodwill of their business to pltf.s. Defts. refused to purchase beer, ale, etc., from pltf.s., & bought from others. On an injunction to restrain defts. from committing a breach of the covenant:—Held: in examining deft. with respect to the covenant alleged to have been broken the general question "Have you received complaints from customers?" would be allowed.—*MANCHESTER BREWERY CO. v. SUB-SECT. 2.—CROSS-EXAMINATION.

A. In General.

4803. Right to cross-examine—No questions asked witness in examination-in-chief.]—Where a witness has been called by one party, the other may cross-examine him, though no question has been asked him in chief.—PHILLIPS v. EAMER (1795), 1 Esp. 355.

*Annotation:—Reid. Clifford v. Hunter (1827), 1 C. & P. 16.

4804. ———.]—A witness having been called into the box & sworn in the course of a prosecution for a misdemeanour, produced a document, but was not examined:—Held: deft. was entitled to cross-examine.—R. v. BROOKE (1819), 2 Stark. 472, N. P.

4805. ——— Examination stopped before any material question asked.]—If a witness is called, & has only answered an immaterial question when his examination is stopped by the judge, the opposite party has no right to cross-examine him.—CREEVEY v. CARR (1835), 7 C. & P. 64, N. P.

4806. ——— Witness examined by both parties.]—If a witness called by pltf. has been examined, cross-examined, & quitted, & deft. has afterwards occasion to call the same witness back to prove his case, counsel for deft. is not bound to examine as in chief, but may put leading questions, as in cross-examination.—DICKINSON v. SHEE (1801), 4 Esp. 67, N. P.

*Annotations:—Mentd. Thomas v. Evans (1808), 10 East, 101; Re Farley, Ex p. Danks (1852), 1 W. R. 57.

4807. ———.]—(1) Pltf. having examined a witness, if a deft. afterwards calls him as his witness in chief, pltf. may cross-examine him at large.

(2) A deft. may cross-examine another deft.'s witness.

(3) All evidence taken, whether on examination-in-chief or on cross-examination, is open to all parties.—LORD v. COLVIN (1855), 3 Drew. 222; 3 Eq. Rep. 514; 24 L. J. Ch. 517; 25 L. T. O. S. 42; 1 Jur. N. S. 208; 3 W. R. 342; 61 E. R. 888.

4808. ——— After plaintiff nonsuited.]—After pltf. in the course of a cause has submitted to be nonsuited, counsel for deft. cannot put any further question to a witness.—JONES v. HALL (1819), 2 Stark. 505, N. P.

4809. ——— Witness called by mistake.]—If pltf.'s counsel call "Captain S." & Captain Hugh S. answer, & is sworn, & pltf.'s counsel, after asking him a few questions, ascertain that it was Captain Francis S. whom they meant to examine, this does not give the other side a right to cross-examine Captain Hugh S. as he was only examined by mistake.—CLIFFORD v. HUNTER (1827), 3 C. & P. 16.

4810. ———.]—Where a person called only to produce a document is sworn as a witness by mistake, & a question is put to him, which he does not answer, the opposite party is not entitled to cross-examine him.—RUSH v. SMITH (1834), 1 Cr. M. & R. 94; 2 Dowl. 687; 4 Tyr. 675; 3 L. J. Ex. 355; 149 E. R. 1008.

Swearing of witness merely producing documents, see Nos. 4415–4418, ante.

4811. ———.]—A witness called under a mistake of counsel as to his being able to speak to a transaction, is not liable to cross-examination, though sworn, if the mistake be discovered before any question is put.—WOOD v. MACKINSON (1840), 2 Mood. & R. 273, N. P.

4812. ——— Affidavit of witness not read.]—On the hearing of a cause pltf. is not at liberty to cross-examine a deft. whose affidavit has not been read.—FELDEN v. GOSCHEN (1869), 18 W. R. 85.

4813. ——— Witness called by court.]—(1) At the trial of an action, the judge has power to call & examine a witness who has not been called by either of the parties & when he does so neither party has a right to cross-examine the witness without the leave of the judge.

(2) If the evidence of the witness given in answer to questions put to him by the judge is adverse to either of the parties, leave should be given to that party to cross-examine the witness upon his answers, but a general cross-examination ought not to be permitted.—*COULSON v. 4824. —.]—A witness called for pltf., in answering a question put to him by deft.'s counsel on cross-examination, added a statement which was not evidence, & of which the judge did not make a note. Pltf.'s counsel in his reply, observing upon the statement so made, was interrupted by one of the jury, who had understood the statement in a sense opposite to the truth. Pltf.'s counsel thereupon asked the judge to recall the witness, in order that the mistake might be corrected. The judge refused to do so, saying that the statement was not evidence, & told the jury that they must not take it into their consideration:—Held: the decision of the judge was correct: & the possibility of the jury's having permitted their verdict to be influenced by the statement, was no ground for a new trial.—CATTIN v. 4821 i. What is matter for cross-examination—Statement by party on other occasions.]—In an action against a municipality for negligently constructing a drain & causing injury to pltf., pltf. was cross-examined as to a letter written by his attorney to defts., giving a different account of the accident from that given by pltf. in his evidence-in-chief. He answered questions whether he had made a statement like that contained in the letter, & whether he had instructed any one to write to that purport. The presiding judge here stopped the cross-examination, holding that the questions could not be proceeded with unless the letter were put in evidence:—Held: the judge was wrong in stopping the cross-examination of pltf., & counsel for defts. was entitled to ask pltf. whether he had not made a statement to his attorney like that contained in the letter.—YATES v. A witness for the Crown stated in his cross-examination, that he had formerly belonged to the Convention, but had since resigned, & had become a town councillor of B. It was proposed to ask him further in cross-examination, as to what he said at a meeting at which the Convention was agreed on, but which took place nearly a year before the publication of the alleged libel:—Held: this could not be done.—*R. v. Upon cross-examination he was asked if deft. had not offered to refer the dispute, & he, pltf., had not refused to do so. This question was objected to as being irrelevant. The judge, however, permitted it to be put, & pltf. denied it. Dft. afterwards called several witnesses to prove that such offer was made by deft., & refused by pltf. This evidence was also objected to:—Held: under the circumstances, the question & the evidence were admissible.—BLACKMAN v. BRYANT (1872), 27 L. T. 491.

4852. — —.]—If a party in a cause be under the necessity of calling his real adversary in the cause, who is not a party on record, although for the purpose of formal proof only, he makes him a witness for all purposes, & he may be cross-examined as to the whole of the case.—MORGAN v. BRYDGES (1818), 2 Stark. 314, N. P.

Annotation:—Consd. Summers v. Moseley (1834), 4 Tyr. 158.

4853. — —.]—Pltf. having examined witnesses on particular points, deft. is at liberty to cross-examine those witnesses upon any other point he thinks fit.—BERWICK-UPON-TWEED CORPN. v. MURRAY (1850), 10 L. J. Ch. 281; 14 Jur. 659.

4851 i. Whether cross-examination confined to evidence-in-chief.]—Deft. has not a right on the cross-examination of pltf.'s witness, & before the defence is opened, to prove a justification of which he has given notice, & the affirmative of which lies on him; no question leading to it having been asked on the examination-in-chief.—ATKINSON v. SMITH (1859), 4 All. 309.—CAN.

4851 ii. — —.]—In an action the mayor of a town gave evidence for defts., of the care with which the officials looked after the streets:—

Held: he might be asked, on cross-examination, if he knew on what street a person had fallen & was injured, & for which an action was brought, such question arising out of the direct examination.—CAMERON v. MONCTON TOWN (1889), 29 N. B. R. 372.—CAN.

E. Improper Questions.

4854. As to previous legal proceedings by plaintiff.]—(1) On the trial of an action for a nuisance, a witness for pltf. may be asked whether he has not heard pltf. say that he had preferred eight indictments against the proprietors of the works, which in the present action were charged to be a nuisance; (2) a witness may be asked what he heard pltf. say when pltf. was examined as a witness on the trial of one of those indictments.—DAVID v. GRENFELL (1834), 6 C. & P. 624, N. P.

4855. —]—When the same person has been pltf. in any previous action to try the same right, it is "unusual" to ask that question of a witness with the evident view of influencing the jury in their verdict.—DOE d. SPENCER (EARL) v. BURCHAM (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 529.

4856. Requiring witness to draw inference from acts.]—A sergeant in the police, after stating in cross-examination that he attended a debating society where political subjects were discussed, by the direction of the comrs. of police, for the purpose of noticing & reporting; & that he went in private clothes, was asked if he went as a spy:—Held: the question could not be put, as it required the witness to draw an inference from facts; but he might be asked under what directions, & for what purpose he went, & what he did when there.—R. v. BERNARD (1858), 1 F. & F. 240; 8 State Tr. N. S. 887.

4857. As to contents of pamphlet—Religious views of witness.]—It is no ground for a new trial that, pltf. having been asked while under cross-examination whether he was the author of a certain pamphlet which contained expressions of opinion on religious subjects altogether at variance with those generally received amongst Christians, & having declined to answer on the ground that his answer in the affirmative might subject him to a criminal prosecution, counsel for deft. was permitted for a considerable time, obviously with a view to prejudice pltf. with the jury, to read various passages of a similar tendency from other printed documents, each time repeating the inquiry whether pltf. was the author or whether the passage read expressed his notions on the subject, the jury being entitled to have before them all the facts & circumstances from which they might be enabled to judge of the degree of credit due to the party as a witness.—BRADLAUGH v. EDWARDS (1861), 11 C. B. N. S. 377; 142 E. R. 843.

t. As to infringement of secret process.]—Where pltf., the owner of a secret process for the manufacture of an extract of eucalyptus, alleged by his pleading in an action for passing off that defts. falsely & fraudulently represented, inter alia, that their extract was the same & made in the same way as pltf.'s, & called his manager to give evidence on his behalf:—Held: defts.' counsel was entitled to cross-examine the manager as to pltf.'s secret process.—SANDNER v. CURNOW, [1905] V. L. R. 648.—AUS.

a. Usury—Making notes payable at distant place.]—On the trial of an action on a promissory note brought by pltf., to which defts. pleaded usury, consisting in pltf. making the note payable at a distance from the place of discount, & thereby securing a larger rate of interest in the shape of commission than they were legally entitled to, the pltf.'s agent was asked in cross-examination, whether during the time he was in P., the place of discount, he had directed or caused any other note to be made payable at any other place than P.:—Held: the question was admissible.—BANK of MONTREAL v. SCOTT (1867), 17 C. P. 358.—CAN.

b. As to liabilities of firm.]—A surety on a bond, who is a member of a mercantile partnership is not compellable, upon cross-examination on his affidavit of justification, to disclose the liabilities of the partnership.—DOUGLAS v. BLACKKEY (1892), 14 P. R. 504.—CAN.

c. As to insurance of plaintiff.]—Deft., in an action to recover damages for injury to pltf.'s vehicle, is not entitled to have pltf. answer any question relating to insurance on his vehicle.—MILLARD v. TORONTO Ry. Co. (1914), 31 O. L. R. 526; 6 O. W. N. 519.—CAN.

4864 i. Extent of re-examination—Limited to questions arising out of cross-examination.]—On cross-examination of deft., pltf.'s counsel put in his hands a deed from W. to deft. & others, & asked him whether he knew of the deed having been made, & whether he as a member of an Orange lodge had accepted it.—Held: deft.'s counsel had no right on re-examination to ask deft. what took place between W. & him with regard to the purchase of the land described in the deed.—DOE d. WETMORE v. BELL (1890), 30 N. B. R. 83.—CAN.

tion the amount of bonds issued by the co. On cross-examination the witness was questioned as to the disposition of the proceeds of debentures, & on re-examination pltf.'s counsel interrogated him at length as to the selling price of the shares on the Montreal exchange.—Held: on the cross-examination of the witness by defts.' counsel the door was not opened for re-examination as to the selling price of the stock.—*HESSE v. 4869. ———. Cross-examination as to conversation—Whether whole conversation admissible in re-examination.]—THE QUEEN'S CASE, No. 4729, ante.

4870. ———. ———.]—In an action against the Governor of Gibraltar, for assault & false imprisonment, it was proved that a party of soldiers, under the command of his military secretary, surrounded pltf.'s house, & that while a search was making in the adjoining house for a Spaniard who was suspected to be concealed there, pltf., in attempting to leave his house, was prevented from so doing by a sentinel placed at the door, who compelled him to return. It was also proved that the deft. had repeatedly expressed a desire to apprehend the Spaniard; that his secretary being unattached, could not employ the troops on such a service except by his directions, & that deft. had never called his secretary to account for what had occurred. It further appeared, on the evidence of pltf.'s brother, that pltf. had told him, that deft. expressed to pltf. his regret at having been obliged to direct the search. No evidence was given on the part of deft. Pltf.'s brother, who was examined on interrogatories, having been asked upon cross-examination as to some particulars of a conversation which pltf. had told him, he, pltf., had held with deft., & being asked, on re-examination, to detail the whole conversation, stated that pltf. had informed him that deft. had expressed his regret at being obliged to direct the search:—Held: this evidence was admissible.—*GLYNN v. 4887. As to handwriting in which document written—Previous contradictory statement by witness.—(1) Evidence of statements by witnesses on other occasions, relevant to the matter at issue, & inconsistent with the evidence given by them at the trial, is always admissible, in order to impeach the value of their testimony; but it is only such statements as are relevant that are admissible. In order to lay a foundation for the admission of such contradictory statements, & to enable the witness to explain them, & for that purpose only, he must be asked whether he ever said what is suggested to him, with the name of the person to whom or in whose presence he is supposed to have said it, or some other circumstance sufficient to designate the particular occasion. If the witness, on the cross-examination, admit the conversation imputed to him, there is no necessity for giving other evidence of it; but if he says he does not recollect, that is not an admission, & evidence may be given on the other side that the witness did say what is imputed, provided the statement be relevant to the matter in issue.

The editor of a newspaper swore that A. was the writer of a certain article which had appeared in that paper many years before, & that the manuscript had been lost. A. stated that he had been in the habit of writing such articles for the newspaper in question, but that he had no recollection of having sent the particular article now referred to. He swore, however, that all the statements made in the articles he did send were true:—Held: the newspaper might be put into A.'s hand, in order to refresh his memory, & he might be asked, whether, looking at the article, he had any doubt that the fact was as therein stated.—*TOPHAM v. The witness stated that he let the house as agent to the owner, & that the terms were reduced to writing to prevent mistake, & signed by the pauper's wife to bind her husband, who was not present; but there was no other signature. The pauper occupied, & appeared to have paid rent quarterly for some time, at the rate above-mentioned:—Held: the sessions not having found that the wife was authorised by the pauper, the above entry was not an agreement for a lease, nor a lease, & the witness might look at it to refresh his memory, without its being produced in evidence.—R. v. No writing was signed by the parties or their agents, but there was at the foot of the printed paper a memorandum, also read over to the future tenant, stating that the parties had agreed to let & to take subject to the printed terms, the name of the farm & the rent, & that the letting was for one year certain from Lady-Day, & so from year to year, till notice to quit. Some of the terms were special, having relation to husbandry. 4984. Observations made by surveyor—At time of making survey.—A paper, containing the observations of a surveyor at the time of making a survey, & to the substance of which he had deposed before the comrs. who examined him, not admissible in evidence, as an exhibit.

The surveyor says, "When I made this survey, I was of opinion," etc.; the question is, ought he to be thus examined as to that opinion? In law, such a paper would not be admitted as evidence, although a witness would be permitted to refresh his memory, as to what was his opinion at the time of making his survey, by reference to such a paper (LEACH, M.R.).—TWORT v. JEFFERIES (1832), 1 L. J. Ch. 218.

4990. Statement — By prisoner — Made before coroner.—Written notes made by the coroner of a statement made in his presence during an inquest by prisoner may be used by him at the trial, in order to refresh his memory as to what that statement was. The reading of such written notes does not entitle prisoner to have the depositions of other witnesses taken in the course of the same inquest read.—R. v. WIGGINS (1867), 31 J. P. 728; 10 Cox, C. C. 562.

4991. — Made before magistrate.—Where prisoner refused to sign his examination before the magistrate or to admit its truth, the ct. allowed parol evidence of prisoner's statement to be given, & permitted the magistrate's clerk to refresh his memory from the document.—R. v. DEWHURST (1825), 1 Lew. C. C. 47.

4992. ——[On an examination on a charge of felony before a magistrate, prisoner was asked if he wished to put any question to a witness against him. Instead of asking anything, he made a statement, which was written down on the depositions, but not signed by prisoner, who had received no caution:—Held: this statement was not evidence per se, but any one who heard prisoner make it might give evidence of it, refreshing his memory from what was thus written down; but in such a case prisoner ought to be told that that was not the proper time for him to make a statement.—R. v. WATSON (1851), 3 Car. & Kir. 111.

4993. — Previously made by witness.—A witness's previous written statement may be used to refresh his memory when exhausted.—CHESTER (CITY) ELECTION PETITION, HEYWOOD v. DODSON & LAWLEY (1880), as reported in 44 L. T. 285.

into a waste-book, from his own knowledge; & the tradesman copied the entries, day by day, into a ledger, in the presence of the clerk, who checked them as they were copied:—Held: the clerk, in an action brought by the tradesman for goods sold & delivered, might use the entries in the ledger to refresh his memory, although the waste-book was not produced, nor its absence accounted for, the entries in the ledger being in the nature of entries made by the clerk himself.

The rule, that the best evidence must be produced, precludes a witness from refreshing his memory with a copy of an instrument which might itself be used for refreshing his memory, as much as it precludes the admission in evidence of the copy of an instrument which would be evidence in itself.—*BURTON v. PART V. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 7.—E.

5000 i. When permissible—Witness originally acquainted with fact.]—A witness stated that as agent for pltf. he gave deft. certain parcels to deliver, with a memorandum of charges on each to collect, that witness had entered in a memorandum book all the parcels given to deft., that he had given this book to pltf., & had since searched among papers left by him pltf.'s agent for it, but without success. The witness produced a statement made from the memorandum book, & said he recollected the delivery of the parcel, his recollection not depending on the book, but that he could not speak of the sums except from the memorandum book:—Held: the non-production of the memorandum book was not sufficiently accounted for to admit secondary evidence of its contents.—*STROVEL v. F. For What Purposes Memory may be refreshed.

5004. To refresh recollection of handwriting.—Although comparison of handwriting is not admissible evidence, when the fact to be proved is the handwriting of a particular person, whose supposed signature is upon a paper put into the witness's hand, yet, if such witness has a document, to which is affixed the handwriting of that person, as to whose signature the question arises, & which document he knows to have his genuine subscription, he has a right to recur to it for the purpose of refreshing his memory; a basis being first laid in his having once seen deft. sign his name, though he had forgotten the character of his handwriting.—BURR v. HARPER (1816), Holt, N. P. 420, N. P. Annotation:—Consd. Doe d. Mudd v. Suckermore (1836), 5 Ad. & El. 703.

The ct. will not lay down that in no possible case, & under no possible circumstances, a witness may not be re-examined; but, under any circumstances, the ct. would accede to such a proposition with extreme jealousy. The party here is applying for the re-examination of her own witness: he has been very fully examined, & concludes his deposition in the strongest terms. It is confirmed by the examiner that he was fully & carefully examined; that the deposition was read over to him on the night on which it was taken; that he attended again on the following day, & the deposition was again read over to him. It would go to the destruction of all evidence whatever if a precedent of this kind were established (SIR JOHN NICHOLL).—REEVES v. REEVES (1813), 2 Phillim. 117; 161 E. R. 1094.

5027. Grounds for refusing—Evidence discoverable before hearing—Delay in application.]—Pltf. was driving upon a highway within defts.' district, of which they were the highway authority. His pony suddenly put his foot through the crust of the highway & fell; pltf.'s arm was broken & his pony injured. He brought an action against defts. for £170 damages, alleging that the accident was caused by the improper construction by defts. of a drain under the highway. At the hearing he failed to prove that defts. had constructed the drain in question, but by arrangement he was allowed, without formal amendment of the pleadings, to contend that the drain was made by the defts.' "predecessors in title" (by which was intended their predecessors in the office of highway authority), & that defts. were liable for their predecessors' misfeasance. On this question the jury found that the accident was caused by the negligent construction of the drain & that the drain was constructed by some of defts.' predecessors in title, & they assessed the damages at £100. On those findings judgment was entered for pltf. Defts. appealed. At the close of their argument resp.'s counsel applied for leave, under R. S. C., Ord. 58, r. 4, to call further evidence that defts. had in fact made the drain in question. The action was tried with the jury in Feb. 1916, & heard on further consideration before the judge on Mar. 29. In the interval some persons residing in the neighbourhood, who had read the report of the case in local papers, offered evidence that defts. had made the drain. Pltf. obtained affidavits in May & in July, after defts. had given notice of appeal, & gave them notice that he should apply to call further evidence, but took no further steps until the appeal came on. The ct. refused the application on the grounds that pltf. had not shown sufficient promptness in applying, & that the ct. were not satisfied that he could not with due diligence have discovered the evidence before the hearing.—*NASH v. k. —.]—Pltf. recalled a witness who previously gave evidence for him

& left the stand. Defts.' counsel objected to pltf. being allowed to recall, & upon the objection being overruled, objected generally to any of witness' testimony being received:—Held: this general objection did not enable defts. to claim that part of the evidence was improperly received, but that the particular evidence complained of should have been objected to.—*ALLEN v. which had been discovered since the trial of the action:—Held: R. S. C., Ord. 58, r. 4, was emphatic, & must be construed strictly; the books having been throughout in the possession of pltf's, could have been found before the trial of the action but for the fact that the search had been discontinued, & there were no special circumstances within the meaning of the rule; & the motion must be dismissed.—*YOUNG & CO., LTD. v. SUB-SECT. 2.—AT WHAT STAGE OF PROCEEDINGS ADMITTED.

It is never too late to admit evidence to explain an error arising from the double meaning of a word (JAMES, L.J.):—BIGSBY v. DICKINSON (1876), 4 Ch. D. 24; 46 L. J. Ch. 280; 35 L. T. 679; 25 W. R. 89, C. A.

He alleged that his evidence contained proof of the allegation to be inserted:—Held: (1) under the rules of ct. to the Jud. Act, 1875 (c. 77), Ord. 27, rr. 1 & 6, he might have leave to amend his bill, but he was not to bring any further evidence; (2) deft. should have leave to adduce fresh evidence; (3) pltf. should pay the costs occasioned by the amendment.—*KING v. 5032. —[—Evidence was opened showing that on three occasions lithofracteur had been imported to London by K. & Co., the bills of lading being made out in the names of K. & Co., & indorsed by their manager in London to defts., who held an importation licence. Defts. having duly obtained leave from the Custom House authorities, had in their own names procured the delivery of these cargoes & transhipped them to lighters, from which they were afterwards taken & dealt with by K. & Co.'s London manager. There was evidence that in procuring the delivery of the cargoes defts. acted merely as Custom House agents for K. & Co., & without remuneration. Pltfs. asked leave to amend by charging defts. with infringement as such agents:—Held: pltfs. ought to have liberty to amend without going into further evidence, defts. to have liberty to amend their defence & adduce evidence in support, the costs to be reserved.—NOBEL'S EXPLOSIVE CO. v. 5045. After defendant's case summed up.]—

(1) Upon the trial of issues in a patent case pltf. is entitled to call evidence in reply, for the purpose of rebutting a case of prior user set up by deft.; (2) but after the evidence for the defence has been summed up, deft. will not be allowed to adduce further evidence in answer to that given by pltf. in reply.—PENN v. JACK (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 314; 14 L. T. 495; sub nom. PENN v. JACK, PENN v. BIBBY, PENN v. FERNIE, 14 W. R. 760; on appeal, sub nom. PENN v. BIBBY, 2 Ch. App. 127, L. C.

5049. — During judgment.]—A seaman returning to his ship from shore fell from the gangway & was drowned. On the hearing of a claim by the dependants the deputy judge began to give his award in favour of the dependants when it was pointed out to him that there had been no evidence that the seaman went on shore with leave. The deputy judge thereupon had a witness recalled upon this point, & being satisfied from this that the seaman had been given leave, awarded for the dependants.—Held: the judge was entitled to hear the evidence in this way.—PETERS v. SUB-SECT. 3.—REBUTTING EVIDENCE.

A. In General.

5051. Discretion of judge to allow.]—It is in the discretion of the judge, subject to the reviewal of the ct. to determine in what stage of the cause evidence may be produced. In trespass for false imprisonment deft. pleaded the pltf. had stolen deft.'s chaff; he also pleaded that his chaff had been stolen, & that he had reasonable ground to suspect pltf. Pltf. gave evidence, in the first instance, to account for her possession of chaff. Deft.'s witnesses proved that the chaff in the pltf.'s possession was similar in quality to that lost by deft. (inter alia) that in both there was linseed:—Held: the judge had rightly exercised his discretion in allowing pltf. to call a witness in reply to account for the presence of linseed in the chaff found in pltf.'s possession.—WRIGHT v. WILLCOX (1850), 9 C. B. 650; 19 L. J. C. P. 333; 15 L. T. O. S. 228; 14 Jur. 746; 137 E. R. 1047.

5052. ———.]—Action claiming an injunction against the master of a ship in which a set of pumps, alleged to be an infringement, was used, as well as against the makers. Pltf. brought evidence at the trial in support of the case raised by his pleadings & particulars of infringement, & to meet the case raised by defts. on their pleadings & particulars of objections. Defts. went into evidence on a much wider issue than that raised by the pleadings, etc. Pltf. applied to adduce evidence in reply by adducing instances of infringement other than those mentioned in the particulars of infringement, & which he had obtained during the course of the trial:—Held: under the circumstances he was entitled to bring in this evidence.—ADAIR v. YOUNG (1879), 40 L. T. 61; on appeal, 11 Ch. D. 136, C. A.

5054. What is rebutting evidence—Not mere confirmation of original case.]—Any evidence that pltf. moved for leave to adduce further evidence for the purpose of showing that an exhibit which was used as part of the evidence in the case was not a true copy of the original document:—Held: the application would be refused.—DURBER WATCH CASE MANUFACTURING CO. v. TAGGART (1899), 20 C. L. T. 374; 19 P. R. 233.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

5051 i. Discretion of judge to allow.]—It does not necessarily follow, that because pltf.'s witness when recalled to rebut deft.'s evidence, makes statements which in fact amount to a new case for pltf., the judge must therefore refuse to allow such statements to go to the jury.—DYKIN v. CROCKER (1850), 7 U. C. R. 398.—CAN.

5054 i. What is rebutting evidence—Not mere confirmation of original case.]—Evidence is admissible to contradict a statement of a fact made by a witness

5064. ———. —M. petitioned for a decree of nullity of marriage by reason of the alleged frigidity, etc., of H., the man, owing to which the alleged marriage had not been consummated. H. traversed the alleged frigidity, etc. At the hearing H. gave evidence that the non-consummation was caused by the pain felt & distress expressed by M. when he attempted to have connection. The evidence was objected to on the ground that such cause of non-consummation should have been alleged in the answer, but the ct. admitted the evidence, saying, that evidence in reply might be called, if the ct. should think that petitioner was taken by surprise.—*M. 5065. ———. Where defence disclosed.—Deft. called witnesses to prove exemption from the land by reason of the barrenness of the land:—Held: although in the re-examination of a witness for pltf. a question had been asked as to the fertility of the land, pltf. was entitled to adduce evidence in reply to disprove the defence.—GRESWOLDE v. KEMP (1842), Car. & M. 635, N. P.

t. As to revocation of licence—To cut timber.—Where pltf., in trespass for cutting & carrying away timber, issue being joined on a revocation of licence, called the agent of deft. to prove that he had revoked the licence to him, & the witness denied such revocation:—Held: pltf. might call other witnesses to prove that they had heard this witness admit that the licence had been revoked to him, & that the witnesses knew that he had still gone on & cut the timber after he had made the admission.—MENAB v. STINSON (1842), 6 O. S. 445.—CAN.

u. Whether evidence which might have been admitted—In first instance.—Semble: pltf. in ejectment relying on the opening of his case upon a prima facie title by possession, & being met by proof on the part of deft. of a prior possession cannot repel such proof by attempting to show that the possession of deft. is that of a tenant to him, pltf., as landlord. He should go into his case fully in the first instance.—DOE d. OSBORNE v. MCDOUGALL (1849), 6 U. C. R. 135.—CAN.

b. ———.—Witness for pltf. denied on cross-examination having made a statement in presence of L., who was afterwards called by deft., & contradicted him:—Held: pltf. might call evidence in reply to rebut L.'s testimony & confirm that of his own witness; such evidence not being properly part of pltf.'s case in the first

J.—VOL. XXII.

5067. ———. By pleadings.—In an action to restrain defts. from erecting a urinal in a mews, the statement of claim alleged that the soil of the mews was vested in & was the absolute property of three of pltf's. The statement of defence did not admit this allegation; but alleged that the mews had long been a highway dedicated to the public. At the trial of the action several witnesses were examined on both sides; & at the close of defts.' evidence, pltf's. applied for leave to call evidence in reply, to show that the soil of the mews had not been dedicated to the public:—Held: as pltf's. were distinctly apprised by the pleadings before the trial of the action what the nature of the defence would be, the application must be refused.—VERNON v. ST. JAMES, WESTMINSTER VESTRY (1880), 49 L. J. Ch. 130; 42 L. T. 82; on appeal, 16 Ch. D. 449, C. A.

5068. In action of detinue.—To prove in what right subject-matter received.—If a deft., in an action of detinue for papers, set up as a defence that he delivered up the papers to K., in pursuance of a notice from pltf.'s attorney to that effect, pltf.'s counsel may call K. as a witness in reply, to prove that he received the papers in another right, & not on behalf of pltf.—ANDERSON v. PASSMAN (1835), 7 C. & P. 193, N. P.

c. ———.—Where a party upon whom the onus of proof lies produces a receipt before the master, or other proof of a nature generally conclusive, & closes his evidence, & the other side produces testimony tending to shake this evidence, further evidence in support should be allowed to be produced, though in strictness it may be such as might have been produced in the first instance.—MOODY v. MCCANN (1860), 1 Ch. Ch. 88.—CAN.

d. ———.—When deft. on the trial swore to a final settlement & an order given pltf. for the balance, the ct. refused to grant pltf. a new trial on an affidavit stating that the paper sworn to as having been an order had been found since the trial, & that it was not an order, but a statement of an account with another party. Pltf. should have rebutted the testimony as to the settlement & order, & given secondary evidence of the contents of the paper, first proving its loss.—CYR v. HART (1873), 2 Pug. 71.—CAN.

e. ———.—In an action of replevin, pltf. proved ownership & rested his case. Deft. then moved for a nonsuit. Pltf. offered evidence in rebuttal to meet the case made by deft., which was rejected, on the ground that evidence to prove the non-existence of the tenancy alleged would be merely confirmatory of pltf.'s case, & the action was disposed of by allowing deft.'s application for a nonsuit:—Held: in the circumstances, the rejection of the evidence tendered by pltf. in rebuttal could be sustained only on the ground that the onus of proof on the issues to which it related was at the outset of the case on pltf.—MCADAM v. KICKBUSH (1905), 11 B. C. R. 488.—CAN.

f. Action of ejectment—To rebut plea of title by possession.—In an action of ejectment by a son against his father, pltf. claimed under a deed from deft.. There was evidence to show that since this deed deft. had been more than twenty years in possession without any recognition of pltf.'s right. Pltf. to repel this evidence, attempted to show that during a part of that period deft. was in possession as agent of his pltf.'s brother, to whom he had given a lease; & among other evidence he offered a paper in deft.'s handwriting, purporting to be a lease from pltf. to his brother, of certain lands, including the premises in question, for a part of the time during which deft. claimed to have held adversely. At the foot, but not in deft.'s writing, was written pltf.'s name, & the word "copy." No proof was offered respecting this paper, except that it was in deft.'s handwriting:—Held: such paper should have been received.—MCQUEEN v. MCQUEEN (1852), 10 U. C. R. 193.—CAN.

g. Collateral matters.—Defts. called pltf. & after asking him some questions produced a deposition made by him before a magistrate, which was at variance with his answers. He admitted the contradiction, but said his present evidence was correct, & gave as an explanation that he was much confused at the time, being without papers which he wished to refer to & that all he said was not in the deposition:—Held: this explanation was a collateral matter, & defts. therefore could not call the magistrate to disprove it.—BEEMER v. KERR (1864), 23 U. C. R. 537.—CAN.

h. To disprove signature.—Where a witness, on cross-examination, denied having signed a paper, but which was not then shown to him, & the opposite party afterwards produced the paper, & gave evidence to prove the witness' signature to it, the witness may be recalled to disprove the signature.—

Sect. 7.—Further evidence: Sub-sect. 3, B.; sub-sect. 4. Sect. 8: Sub-sect. 1, A.]

5069. To disprove alibi.]—Pltf. in an action on the case gave, as confirmatory evidence of deft.'s having committed the tort proved at L. proof that he was seen near the spot at the time in question, & deft. called witnesses, who swore that deft. was at R. at that time. Pltf. was allowed to give in reply additional evidence of deft.'s being at L. such evidence being a direct contradiction of the new fact of deft.'s being at R.—v. AYNWORTH (1838), 2 Mood. & R. 108, N. P.

Annotation:—Apld. Rogers v. Manley (1880), 42 L. T. 584.

5070. ———.]—Pltf. rested his case partly on an alleged conversation between himself & deft. at pltf.'s house on a certain evening in the presence of pltf.'s wife. Pltf.'s wife was cross-examined as to the substance of the alleged conversation, but not as to the fact of deft. having been in the house on that occasion. Deft. having in his examination in chief denied that he was in the house at all on the evening in question, leave was given to pltf. after the evidence on both sides was closed, to call further evidence to rebut deft.'s denial.—ROGERS v. MANLEY (1880), 42 L. T. 584.

5074. In interpleader proceedings—Validity of deed of assignment.]—Upon the trial of an interpleader issue in a county ct. for the purpose of trying the title to certain goods taken in execution, pltf., in support of his title, gave in evidence a deed, which was valid upon the face of it, by which execution debtor had assigned to him the goods in question; but the witness called to prove the execution of the deed was cross-examined by defts., with a view to show that the deed was therefore void:—Held: pltf. was not bound to give evidence in the first instance to establish the validity of the deed, although called upon by the judge to do so, & although the nature of the defence appeared by the cross-examination of the attesting witness; & the judge was wrong in refusing to receive evidence in reply, to rebut a case of fraud set up by defts. to invalidate the deed.—SHAW v. BECK (1853), 8 Exch. 392; 1 Saund. & M. 67; 20 L. T. O. S. 211; 17 J. P. 72; 155 E. R. 1401. Annotations:—Consd. Penn v. Jack (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 314; *Vernon v. 5077. Discretion of judge to allow credit of witness to be impeached.]—I mean to decide this, & no further. That in each particular case there must be some discretion in the presiding judge, that defts. should not be permitted to contradict their own witness:—Held: the trial erred in his refusal to admit such evidence.—MARUZECKA v. CHARLESWORTH (1916), 33 W. L. R. 823; 9 W. W. R. 1313.—CAN.

q. To corroborate statement of witness for Crown.]—In a trial for murder a witness who swore he identified prisoner as one of the persons who committed the murder, was cross-examined on behalf of prisoner as to an alleged conversation which he had shortly after the commission of the crime, in which he was alleged to have stated that prisoner was not the guilty party; the witness denied that he made such a statement, & prisoner as a substantial part of his defence produced A. & B. who were present at the alleged conversation to contradict the witness. At the close of prisoner's case the Crown was allowed to go into a rebutting case in order to produce C. & D., who were present at the alleged conversation, to corroborate the statement of the witness & contradict A. & B.—R. v. WHELAN (1881), 14 Cox, C. C. 595.—IR.

r. To rebut statements made extra-judicially.]—Defender, who had cross-examined one of pursuer's witnesses, offered to contradict the statements made by that witness on cross-examination by proving counter statements extra-judicially made by him when not on oath:—Held: such proof was incompetent.—HERCULES INSURANCE CO. v. k. THOMSON (1868), 1 Han. 207.—CAN.

l. To show that admission was to discredit plaintiff.]—Where deft. on cross-examination was asked if he had not made an admission to T. of his agreement, the breach of which was complained of, & denied it, it is competent for pltf. to rebut this evidence by showing deft. had made the admission for the purpose of discrediting deft., even though it also affected pltf.'s case.—WHITTAKER v. PUG 436.—CAN.

To repel allegation of unchastity.]—On the trial of an action for breach of promise of marriage, where pltf. gave evidence of her seduction by deft., the latter, by his cross-examination of pltf., attempted to show her unchastity before her acquaintance with him:—Held: this gave her the right to repel the imputation involved in such cross-examination, not only her own evidence, but also to licate her character by ———.]—BURKE v. SCRIPPER (1876),

n. Denial of fact on animation of plaintiff — D. ———. testimony as to that fact—Whether rebutting evidence admitted.]—The fact of pltf. having denied on cross-examination a fact afterwards testified to by deft., will not prevent pltf. calling witnesses to rebut deft.'s testimony on the point as to which pltf. had been cross-examined.—DOE d. BARNES v. BELYEA (1880), 19 N. B. R. 541.—CAN.

o. Evidence in rebuttal after re-examination.]—The judge at the trial consulted, because he thought the agreement had not been properly proved, but allowed the case to go to the jury on the issue of fraud, the onus of which was on defts., & for assessment of damages. Deft.'s counsel cross-examined one of pltf.'s witnesses on the question of fraud, & pltf. re-examined him upon the cross-examination:—Held: such re-examination did not deprive pltf. of his right to call witnesses in reply to deft.'s evidence of fraud; at all events, this was a matter for the judge at the trial.—McDONALD v. MURRAY (1884), 5 O. R. 559.—CAN.

p. Refusal to allow — To correct judge's assumption.]—Where deft. called by defts. made certain statements upon cross-examination, & while it was proceeding the judge stated that he was going to assume certain facts from those statements & defts. proposed to call the other defts. to show that the judge's assumption was wrong, but the judge refused to such evidence on the ground as to the mode in which the examination shall be conducted, in order best to answer the purposes of justice (ABBOTT, C.J.).—BASTIN v. CAREW (1824), Ry. & M. 127, N. P.

5083. —. —.]—At the trial of an action deft.'s counsel, in order to show that a witness called by him was hostile, & to obtain leave to treat him as such under Common Law Procedure Act, 1854 (c. 125), s. 22, asked the judge to look at an affidavit made by the witness in a former action. The judge, being of opinion that there had been nothing in the witness's demeanour, or in the way he had given his evidence, to show that he was hostile, refused to look at the affidavit. On motion for new trial:—Held: the discretion given to the judge under above sect. was absolute, & the ct. had no jurisdiction to review his decision.

PART V. SECT. 8, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

5082 i. Discretion of judge to allow credit of witness to be impeached—Whether subject to review.—The ct. will not review the discretion of the judge at the trial in receiving evidence to contradict a party's own witnesses as being adverse, nor in receiving evidence on the part of the defence after the close of pltf.'s case, even though for the purpose of corroborating the defence.—HERBERT v. MERCANTILE FIRE INSURANCE CO. (1878), 43 U. C. R. 384.—CAN.

5088 i. What is hostility—Evidence unfavourable to party calling witness.—Where a witness being called to prove pltf.'s case persists in making positive, though very improbable statements, disproving it, the ct., in the absence of any other witness, will not allow the case to go to the jury.—VINCENT v. SRAQUE (1847), 3 U. C. R. 283.—CAN.

5088 ii. —. —.]—Where one of the parties to a suit is called as a witness by the other it is discretionary with the judge to allow him to be examined as a hostile witness, & to restrict his own conduct to the style of an examination-in-chief. The opposite party on the record is not necessarily a hostile witness; his conduct on the stand is the proper test.—ATKINSON v. ATKINSON (1862), 5 A. 271.—CAN.

5088 iii. —. —.]—If a witness called to prove a case unexpectedly gives evidence in opposition to it, the judge may allow the party calling such witness to treat him as hostile & to cross-examine him; though the effect of doing so may be to discredit his testimony.—DAVIDSON v. ARSINKAU (1862), 5 All. 289.—CAN.

5088 iv. —. —.]—In trespass against the sheriff for taking goods, pltf. called the bailiff who made the seizure & sale. He swore that pltf., after giving notice of his claim to the goods, withdrew it, & that the sale went on. Pltf. offered to disprove the withdrawal:—Held: such evidence was admissible as relevant to the issue, though contradicting pltf.'s own witness.—ROBINSON v. RAYNOLDS (1864), 23 U. C. R. 560.—CAN.

5088 vi. —. —.]—Pltf.'s counsel read to his own witness statements made by witness at a coroner's inquest & ask him to confirm them. No ruling was obtained that the witness was adverse, but the questions were admitted subject to objection:—Held: inadmissible, because such questions were either an attempt on counsel's part to have evidence at the inquest sworn to before the jury, or an attempt to contradict his own witness for which no foundation was laid.—McGOWAN v. WARNER (1913), 41 N. B. R. 524; 14 E. L. R. 47; 15 D. L. R. 134.—CAN.

a hostile witness is one who, from the manner in which he gives his evidence, shows that he is not desirous of telling the truth.—LUCHIRAM MOTILAL ROID v. RADHA CHAIKAM PONDAR (1921), 1 L. R. 40 Calc. 93.—IND.

5088 x. —. —.]—To entitle a party to cross-examine a witness called by him, such witness must, in the opinion of the ct., be proved to be adverse. An allegation that the witness, on a previous occasion, has made a statement inconsistent with his present testimony, is immaterial to prove that he is adverse. This fact can only be proved from his demeanour in the box, his position towards, or relationship to, the party calling him & the general circumstances of the case.—MEYER'S TRUSTEE v. MALAN (1911), T. P. D. 559.—S. AF.

5093. — Witness giving evidence at variance with previous statement.—(1) The hostility must be shown in open ct. When one wants to cross-examine one's own witness, one cannot take as the ground of hostility the fact that he does not now make the statement which he had made before (JELLE, J.).

—(1) The situation in which a witness stands towards either party, does not give the party calling the witness a right to cross-examine him unless the witness's evidence be of such a nature as to make it appear that the witness is an unwilling one.

(2) If a witness for a prosecution disprove prosecutor's case, prosecutor may call other witnesses to prove the facts denied by the former witness, & thus incidentally contradict that witness & show him to be unworthy of credit; but prosecutor cannot adduce any evidence not otherwise admissible for the sole purpose of discrediting his own witness.—*R. v. C. By Reference to Previous Statements.

(a) In General.

5103. When allowed.—A. was called as a witness by deft., to prove a partnership, but he proved the contrary; deft. then tendered in evidence an answer of A. to a bill filed in Chancery, in which A. swore that up to a certain time he was a partner with deft.:—Held: it was competent to deft., after A. had denied the partnership, to prove the existence of it by other witnesses.

Semble: The answer [to the bill] was not admissible in evidence, because the only effect of it was to discredit A. deft.'s own witness.

I doubt whether deft. was at liberty to put in the answer in Chancery of the witness in order to discredit him. It was competent to pltf. in cross-examination to have asked the witness if he had sworn, in his answer in Chancery, contrary to the fact he was then deposing to; & if he had said that he had not, then pltf., in order to discredit him, might have given the answer in evidence; but he could not do so without putting the preliminary question to him. But I think deft. ought not to have been permitted so to discredit his own witness. The present impression of my mind therefore is, that the answer ought not to have been received in evidence (BAYLEY, J.).—EWER v. AMBROSE (1825), 3 B. & C. 746; 5 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 629; 3 L. J. O. S. K. B. 115; 107 E. R. 910. Annotations:—Consd. Wright v. Beckett (1834), 1 Mood. & R. 414. Refd. Bradley v. Ricardo (1831), 8 Bing. 67.

Annotations:—Consd. Winter v. Butt (1841), 2 Mood. & R. 357; Melhuish v. Collier (1850), 15 Q. B. 878.

5105. ——(1) Although the general rule is, that, on the trial of a cause, a party shall not discredit his own witness, yet, if the witness unexpectedly gives adverse evidence, the party may ask him if he has not, on a particular occasion, made a contrary statement; & the question & answer may be stated by the judge to the jury with the rest of the evidence; the judge cautioning them not to infer, merely from the question, that the fact suggested by it is true. Qu.: whether, in such case the party may contradict the witness by evidence as to such former statement.

(2) If a witness called in support of a case unexpectedly gives evidence in opposition to it, the party calling him may go on to prove the case by other witnesses; & it will be no objection to the proof of any relevant fact that the statement of it contradicts, & thereby indirectly discredits, the first witness. The fact is relevant, though it be not part of the transaction on which the issue turns, if the truth or falsehood of it may fairly influence the belief of the jury as to the whole case. Thus, if pltf.'s first witness denies a material fact, & states that persons connected with pltf. have offered him money to assert it, pltf. may call those persons, not only to prove the fact, but to disprove the attempt at subornation.—MELHUISE v. COLLIER (1850), 15 Q. B. 878; 19 L. J. Q. B.

In an action upon a policy of insurance against fire, one issue was, whether or not goods of pltf. had been destroyed by fire as alleged in the declaration. A witness was called for pltf., to prove that part of the goods were supplied to pltf. by him before the fire; but on being shown an invoice & letter relating to such goods, he stated that they were written by him, but that he never delivered such goods to pltf.; & he deposed that the letter, supposed to have been sent from Edinburgh, was written by him in London, at the desire of pltf.; that the invoice was drawn up by him, the witness, after the fire, in the presence of pltf.'s son & shopman; & that the son & shopman persuaded him to state that the goods had been sent according to the invoice & letter:—Held: the son & shopman, who had already been examined for pltf., might have been called back to contradict all these statements.—*FRIEDLANDER v. On application for a new trial it was asked that pltf.'s mother might be ordered to be examined as to the fact whether certain declarations deposed to at the former trials by some of the witnesses as having been made by her to them were so made by her; & after taking time to consider the ct. consented to remove the mere technical objection arising from her position in the cause, but would not interfere to prevent any other objection being raised that could be raised.

A witness had been produced at the second trial, whose character was not known at the time, but who it was stated on affidavit had been convicted of an unnatural offence. The rule of the law being that if the depositions at a former trial are read at the new trial, evidence as to credit cannot be gone into, it was also asked that if this witness should not be produced at the new trial, but his depositions at the former trial read, evidence might be gone into as to credit. The ct. gave leave.—HARGRAVE v. HARGRAVE (1849), 12 L. T. O. S. 444; 13 Jur. 403.

Facts collateral to the issue upon the record cannot be given in evidence to discredit a witness.

You may call a witness to contradict any fact material to the issue but not to contradict such as goes only to the general credit of the witness, for that is a collateral issue (ALDERSON, B.).—HARRISON v. GORDON (1838), 2 Lew. C. C. 150.

5196. [—]—The credit of witnesses cannot be considered as collateral to the issue, or the very best means of ascertaining the truth would be shut out. It is not what witnesses swear, but what they swear truly, to which the ct. must look. I am disposed to admit evidence of this kind (Dr. LUSHINGTON).—BROWN v. The rule is a rule of prudence, rather than of law; & in an action tried by a jury it is the duty of the judge to recommend the jury to disregard the unsupported evidence of claimant; but if they should decline to do so, & should find for the claimant, quacre, if their verdict could be interfered with.

An English widow lady residing in Paris in a house which belonged to her for her separate use, married an English gentleman, & by the marriage settlement certain plate which formerly belonged to her first husband was settled to her separate use. After the marriage, her husband having family plate of his own, sent it to his wife's house in Paris, & she then sent her own plate to her son by her first marriage. Upon the death of the husband his family plate, & also a marble bust of himself, was in his wife's house at Paris. In a suit for the administration of his estate his wife claimed the plate as having been given her in exchange for her own plate, & the bust as having been presented to her by her husband :—Held : the surrounding circumstances did not furnish corroborative evidence in support of the claim by the wife to the plate & bust, & as the claim rested on her unsupported testimony it could not be allowed.—*Re FINCH, FINCH v. 5267. Memorandum indorsed on agreement.]—In assumpsit upon an agreement between pltf. & defts. & a memorandum of even date indorsed thereon, to explain & vary the terms of the original agreement, which was expressly referred to as "the within-mentioned agreement," the consideration for defts.' promise was alleged to be, the making of the agreement & memorandum, & the undertaking on the part of pltf.

to perform the same. At the trial pltf. called for & proved, defts. producing it, the part of the agreement & memorandum executed by pltf. They then offered in evidence, the part executed by defts.; & after duly proving the execution of the memorandum indorsed thereon, proposed, without calling or accounting for the absence of the subscribing witness, to read the original agreement. The judge rejected it upon a bill of exceptions:—Held: the agreement ought to have been received.—FISHMONGERS' Co. v. DIMSDALE (1848), 6 C. B. 896; 18 L. J. C. P. 55; 13 L. T. O. S. 345; 136 E. R. 1500, Ex. Ch.

5268. —[—]—On Mar. 17, 1838, an agreement was executed in counterpart, each part being duly stamped with a 35s. stamp, between pltf. & defts. Two or three weeks afterwards, a memorandum was indorsed upon each part of the agreement, for the purpose of more accurately defining the intention of the parties, the memorandum indorsed on the part of the agreement which was in defts.' possession being signed by pltf.' attorney, & being stamped with a 35s. stamp, that indorsed on the part of the agreement in pltf.' possession being signed by defts.' attorney, & stamped with a 20s. stamp. At the trial pltf. called for & read the agreement which was in the hands of defts. with the memorandum indorsed thereon. They then produced their part of the agreement, & after proving the authority of the attorney who had executed it, read the memorandum indorsed on it; & then they proposed to read the agreement, which the memorandum referred to as "the within-mentioned agreement." It was thereupon objected, on the part of defts., that, inasmuch as the agreement was thus incorporated in the memorandum, & both together contained more than fifteen folios, a 35s. stamp upon the memorandum was necessary, in the absence of proof of the agreement it referred to, by calling the attesting witnesses: & the judge ruled that it was inadmissible:—Held: upon exceptions to that ruling, the last-mentioned memorandum was sufficiently stamped, & the agreement it referred to admissible in evidence without calling the attesting witnesses.—FISHMONGERS' Co. v. DIMSDALE (1852), 12 C. B. 557; 22 L. J. C. P. 44; 21 L. T. O. S. 7; 16 Jur. 799; 138 E. R. 1024, Ex. Ch.

5269. 5281. —[—]—On the trial of an appeal at sessions, a witness proved the contents of a lost deed, & its execution by the parties. He stated, on cross-examination, that the name of B. was written opposite to the names of the parties: that he knew B. who was dead; but that witness did not know B.'s handwriting. The sessions found that B. was the attesting witness, & because there was no evidence of his handwriting, rejected the secondary evidence. On a case stating the above facts:—Held: the sessions having found as a fact the identity of the attesting witness & deceased man, further evidence of handwriting was not required.—R. v. ST. GILES, CAMBERWELL (INHABITANTS) (1853), 1 E. & B. 642; 22 L. J. M. C. 54; 20 L. T. O. S. 259; 17 J. P. 104; 17 Jur. 161; 1 W. R. 181; 118 E. R. 577.

signing it as testator has no attestation clause, but the two persons whose names are subscribed in writing apparently differing from that of testator & from each other, as witnesses, are dead, such document may be capable of proof as a valid will.—RE BUCKLEY (1899), 24 V. L. R. 923.—AUS.

e. Attestation by mark.]—A holograph will signed at the foot by testator, & containing an attestation clause appeared attested by two marksmen. Their names, as subscribed to the will, the attestation clause, & the words "mark—his," which appeared written above & below crosses opposite each of their names, were in testator's handwriting. At the date of the instrument, two persons of the names so subscribed as those of the attesting witnesses were in his employment. They were both illiterate, & both predeceased him. The document was found shortly after testator's death, in his house, preserved among his other papers:—Held: there were reasonable grounds for presuming that the will had been duly executed & attested.—

CARR* (1843), 2 Dowl. N. S. 1034; 12 L. J. Ex. 312; 7 Jur. 379.

5295. —.]—It is no objection to the admission of secondary evidence of the execution of a deed, that the attesting witness was in England for a short time (about three weeks) before the trial & was not served with a subpoena, he being absent from England at the time of the trial.—LANE v. RICHARDSON (1848), 3 New Pract. Cas. 112; 11 L. T. O. S. 125.

5297. — Service in navy.]—If an attesting witness appears, upon search made at the Admiralty, to be serving in the navy, his absence is sufficiently accounted for to render secondary evidence admissible.—PARKER v. HOSKINS (1810), 2 Taunt. 223; 127 E. R. 1062.

5298. — Residence in Ireland.]—Scemle: where an attesting witness to a bond resides in Ireland, his handwriting may be proved, although no steps have been taken to procure his personal attendance.—HODNETT v. FORMAN (1815), Stark. 90, N. P.

It was proved by the attesting witness that the signature of C. was of his handwriting, & that he had no recollection of the transaction, but that he should not have signed the attestation if he had not seen the deed executed:—Held: sufficient, & the fact that the attesting witness was neither an attorney nor an attorney's clerk made no difference.

5300. — —.]—A. gave two promissory notes to B. On an action being brought on these notes, it appeared that one of the notes was attested by a man now in Ireland:—Held: that note might be read without calling the attesting witness.—DORMER v. HOWARD (1849), 12 L. T. O. S. 457, N. P.

5301. — Absconding to avoid criminal charge.]

—(1) To dispense with the necessity of calling the subscribing witness to a deed, it is sufficient to show that he expressed an intention of leaving the country, that he had reason for doing so to avoid a criminal charge, & that his relations have not seen him since he expressed his intention of going.

(2) It is not necessary, in the absence of the subscribing witness, to prove the handwriting of the party executing the deed; it is enough to prove the handwriting of the witness.—KAY v. BROOKMAN (1828), 3 C. & P. 555; Mood. & M. 286, N. P.

5303. — Statement of parents that witness abroad.]—Evidence, that, a week before the trial, the parents of an attesting witness to a deed were asked where he was, & stated, that he was in America, is reasonable evidence that he is without the jurisdiction of the ct., so as to let in proof of his handwriting to the attestation of the deed.—*AUSTIN v. Evidence was adduced to show that the other attesting witness had not been heard of since the year following the grant of probate of the will, & that notwithstanding every effort to trace him he had not been found. The ct. allowed the affidavit made by him about eight years before, for the purpose of obtaining probate of the will in the district registry to be read as evidence in support of the will.—GORNALL v. WILLIS (1906), 75 L. J. P. 86.

5321. What is sufficient diligence.—]—In an action on a post obit bond, it appeared that the attesting witness was an attorney who formerly had an office in London & resided at Sydenham:—Held: it was not enough to let in evidence of his handwriting to prove the execution of the deed that he had disappeared from his office in London for a twelve-month before the trial, & had not been heard of during that period by persons who knew him, without showing that search had been made after him at the house he occupied at Sydenham.

But evidence of his handwriting was admitted, on proof that a twelve-month ago, a commission of bkpt. had been sued out against him, to which he had never appeared.—WARDELL v. FERMORE (1809), 2 Camp. 282, N. P.

Search had also been made at debt.'s house, & in the neighbourhood; & upon receiving information at debt.'s that the witness was gone to Margate, inquiry was there made without success:—Held: under these circumstances, evidence of his handwriting was admissible.—BURT v. CURTIS (1826), 2 C. & P. 296, N. P.

5324. —. —.]—To excuse the absence of an attesting witness to a lease executed twenty-three years before, proof was offered that inquiry had been made at several places where the witness, a female servant, had lived, but that no one could tell what had become of her:—Held: sufficient.—BAMPTON v. PAULIN (1827), 4 Bing. 264; 12 Moore, C. P. 497; 5 L. J. O. S. C. P. 108; 130 E. R. 769.

5325. —. —.]—Upon a question of settlement by apprenticeship the indenture was produced, apparently executed by all parties; & the name of "George Jones" was affixed to the attestation, as the attesting witness; but without any description. It was proved, that diligent search had been made in the place where the indenture was executed, but that no person of that name could be there found; & that inquiry had also been made of the parties to the indenture, but no information as to the witness could be obtained from them, but that between two & three miles from the place, there was a George Jones, who had been applied to, & who said he knew nothing at all about the matter. He was not produced. Upon this evidence, the sessions refused to receive the parties themselves to prove the execution of the indenture; being of opinion that enough had not been done to prove the handwriting of the attesting witness:—Held: the sessions had decided rightly.—*R. v. 5326. —.]—In order to dispense with the production of an attesting witness to a will bearing the date May 15, 1806, it was proved that applications had been made by letter to the attorney in whose office the witness was at the time a clerk, in the first place for general information respecting the will & afterwards for information respecting the witnesses by whom it was attested, & that advertisements for their discovery had a week before the trial been inserted in three daily & one weekly newspaper, but without success:—Held: sufficient had been done to entitle the party to have the will read on proof of the handwritings of the witnesses, although the attorney of whom the inquiries had been made, stated that one of the witnesses was examined in a cause touching the property in 1815, a fact which he had forgotten to communicate at the time he was asked for information, but which, it was suggested, he could not have failed to remember had any strict inquiry been instituted.—*MILLER v. i. Whether attesting witness barred by interest.—Deft. pleaded that by deed of Aug. 21, 1837, the husband conveyed the land to T., & that on Apr. 23, 1850, deft. by deed jointly executed with her husband, released her dower to T., who conveyed to deft. & on this issue was joined. The release of Apr. 23, was a deed poll of release of dower, for a nominal consideration, executed by defendant by mark, & the only subscribing witness being deft., it had been decided that it could not be proved by evidence of his handwriting. Deft. therefore proved the execution of the deed of Aug. 21, 1837, which was executed by defendant, though she was no party to it, & it contained no release of dower. A certificate of two justices was indorsed, dated Mar. 2, 1850, that defendant had appeared before them, & duly barred her dower; & one of them proved that she was examined, executed the deed, & received £10. T., the grantee proved that she agreed to bar her dower, & that he took her to the justices for that purpose, but finding that the proceeding before them was ineffectual, he had the release Apr. 23, 1850, prepared, & sent it to her by deft., with a note for £40, which he held against her husband, to be kept if the release was executed, otherwise, returned; & that deft. brought back to him the release apparently executed, but not the note. The evidence was received (though objected to) as tending to strengthen the probability that the release was really executed; it being also sworn in confirmation, that the defendant's name to the release was written by her husband: that in May following, defendant told witness that deft. had been to her to sign a paper for T., which she had signed; & that the next day she told deft. she had no right there. The jury found for deft.:—Held: deft. being obliged to resort in effect to secondary evidence, was bound to call defendant, who could have given the best, notwithstanding her adverse interest.—*CLARK v. 5340. ———. ——CALL v. DUNNING, No. 5311, ante

bound apprentice to C. of P., until the age of twenty-one years, & I produce the indenture dated Aug. 30, 1821, executed by both parties & by my father; the consideration was £15. I served the whole time & resided in my master's house at P. during the said service." Appls. delivered the following notice of the grounds of their appeal against the order of removal, "that the said pauper did not acquire a settlement in the parish of P., by reason of his being bound an apprentice by indenture, dated Aug. 30, 1821, to C. & serving under the same indenture, because the premium of £15 paid to C. was paid by the parish officers of P. & not by the father of the said pauper, & that the requisites of the statute made for the regulation & binding of parish apprentices then in force had not been complied with." At the hearing of the appeal, appls. required resps. to prove the execution of the indenture of apprenticeship as a part of their case, & resps. not being prepared to do so, the ct. of quarter sessions quashed the order of removal without going into the merits, but granted a special case stating the above objection, & directing that if the opinion of the sessions was wrong in requiring the evidence, the case was to be sent back to be reheard:—Held: the decision of the sessions was wrong, because the grounds of appeal admitted the execution of the indenture of apprenticeship.—R. v. Pltf. afterwards filed the bill for an account of the same tithes. The parties agreed to admit in the cause certain facts, in the same manner as if they had been proved by proper & legal evidence; & among others, that a certain exhibit was the notice, & a certain other exhibit was a true copy of the lease referred to in the notice:—Held: the notice was not evidence of the lease so as to relieve deft. from the necessity of calling the attesting witness. —*MOUNSEY v. 5386. Cross-examination of attesting witness—When allowed.]—A person devised real property to his widow for life, & after her death to his children equally, with a power to the widow to mortgage or sell, in case "the fund" arising from the real & personal estate of testator was not sufficient for the maintenance of the widow. The widow executed a mtge. of the property for £30 to her son T., & it was proved that four years before the mtge. T. advanced his mother a sum less than £1 to pay a poor rate, that she was unable to pay. The subscribing witness to the mtge. deed had acted as attorney both of the widow & T. respecting it. On the trial of an ejectment by the administratrix of T. to recover the property under the mtge. deed:—Held: the subscribing witness might be cross-examined to show that the sum of £30, mentioned in the mtge. deed, & in the receipt at the back of it, was never in fact advanced.—DOE d. 5398. — Confined to matters of scientific knowledge.]—Plff. seeking to interfere on the ground of nuisance with a work carried on in a normal manner must, in order to sustain his suit, show that he has incurred actual & substantial or visible damage. The primary evidence of such damage should be that of ordinary witnesses. Scientific evidence should be resorted to, not to establish the fact of the damage, but only to explain the causes of it. The ct. will not in such cases send an expert to report where such course would in fact be giving a new trial on new evidence, & delegating the judgment of the ct. to that of the expert, nor will it direct an issue where the state of things may have been materially altered from lapse of time since the institution of the suit.—SALVIN v. 5402 i. Function of expert witness—To give opinion on particular facts.—

It is not necessary to embody in a question put to an expert as a hypothetical question all the facts relating to the subject upon which the opinion of the witness is asked. It is sufficient that one fact which has been proven, or more than one, be stated to the witness, & he is told to assume the truth of the fact stated, & his opinion is asked upon it.—WILSON v. s. Conflict of opinion as to value.—It is not as a general thing the best rule, in cases of varying opinion as to value, to reject one set of witnesses in toto & to adopt the figures of an opposing set. It is rather to be supposed that neither is exactly to be followed, & that truth lies somewhere between the extremes.—MUNSHI v. LINDSAY (1886), 11 O. R. 520.—CAN.

PART VI. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.

5408 i. What evidence may be given—Whether confined to matters within personal experience.—A further question was reserved as to the competency of a witness, a medical man, to give evidence as to the distance at which the gun with which the wound causing death was inflicted, was held from the body of the deceased.

The witness in question had given evidence as follows: "There are indicia in medical science from which it can be tried at what distance small shot are fired at the body. I have studied this not from personal experience, but from books. I base my opinion as to the distance not so much upon the absence of burning as from the size of the wound, & the jagged nature of the edge."—Held: the witness having been shown, prima facie, to be an expert, the question was regular & the answer properly received.—PROBERT v. 5437. What witnesses may be heard—Whether personal experience necessary.]—It is competent to the witness to give us his judgment, if he can speak to the practice of a long series of years. He may prove what is the proper way of dealing with ships; & it is not necessary that he should have been personally engaged in the trade to form an opinion as a matter of judgment. A medical man may give an opinion on a professional point, though the case may never have occurred within his own experience. It is a scientific opinion, & he may give it just as a man in particular trade may give evidence of the usage of the trade, though he may never have been there.—STURGE v. HALDIMANT (1848), 11 L. T. 5475. — Delegation of functions not included.—An arbitrator, to whom a question of account was referred "to be determined on the principle adopted in certain accounts prepared by C. & Co. (accountants)," submitted the statements & accounts furnished to him by the parties to C. & Co., & made his award, founded on the report of C. & Co., without communicating such report to the parties:—Held: (1) he had unduly delegated his functions; (2) the report of C. & Co. was evidence, upon which each party had a right to be heard.

The delegation by the arbitrator had been too great, the decision of the whole matter having been virtually left to the accountants (TURNER, L. J.).—*EASTERN COUNTIES RY. CO. v. EASTERN UNION RY. SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

5484. Time for swearing.—Rule to show cause.—Before cause shown.]—Affidavits on showing cause are in time, if sworn at any time before cause is shown.—BRAINE v. HUNT (1834), 2 Cr. & M. 418; 2 Dowl. 391; 4 Tyr. 243; 3 L. J. Ex. 85; 149 E. R. 823.

5485. ———.]—It is no objection to an affidavit used in opposing a motion, that it has been sworn after the day upon which the rule was due, if it be sworn before cause actually shown.—GRAHAM v. BEAUMONT (1836), 5 Dowl. 49; 3 Scott, 287; 5 L. J. C. P. 270.

Annotation:— Mentd. Gilbert v. Crosier (1857), 1 C. B. N. S. 632.

5486. Before issue of writ.]—Upon an undertaking by pltf. to have the affidavit resworn & filed an interim injunction extending over next motion day was granted in an action where the affidavit in support of the application had been sworn two days before the issue of the writ.—GREEN v. PRIOR, [1886] W. N. 50.

5487. ———.]—In this case the question arose as to the value of an affidavit sworn before the writ in an action was issued:—Held: there was no proceeding pending before the ct. when the affidavit was sworn, & in such a case the practice was to treat it as a nullity. SILBER v. LEWIN (1889), 33 Sol. Jo. 757.

5488. ———. Originating motion.]—On the hearing of an originating motion:—Held: proceedings originated by notice of motion must be deemed to commence on the date when the notice is marked with the name of a particular judge & certain affidavits which had been sworn before such date directed to be resworn.—Re ABBOTT'S TRADE-MARK No. 8656 (1904), 48 Sol. Jo. 351.

5489. Whether affirmation permitted.—No conscientious scruple alleged.]—The exemption from taking an oath in C. L. P. Act, 1854 (c. 125), s. 20, is in favour of scruples of conscience only. The ct. therefore declined to receive an affirmation, which did not allege a conscientious scruple, in lieu of an affidavit from a natural-born subject of the Emperor of Germany, although by the laws of Germany voluntary oaths are forbidden, & he was domiciled in Germany & was actually residing there at the time he was required to make such affidavit.—In the Goods of PRINCE HENRY THE SIXTY-NINTH OF REUSS-KÖSTRITZ (1880), 49 L. See, now, Oaths Acts, 1888 (c. 46), 1909 (c. 39).

5490. Whether statutory declaration accepted in lieu of.]—A question arose on a petition whether under Statutory Declaration Act, 1835 (c. 62), a statutory declaration made in Fiji before a notary public was receivable in evidence in a petition. The deponent was alive:—Held: there was no reason why he should depart from the regular practice & not require an affidavit from the person who had made the statutory declaration.—Re VAUGHAN'S TRUST (1881), 26 Sol. Jo. 76.

5491. Right of party to read opponent's evidence.]—Affidavits, when once filed, may be made use of by the opposite party, though the party filing them may decline to use them.—PRICE v. HAYMAN (1838), 4 M. & W. 8; 7 Dowl. 47; 1 Horn & H. 191; 7 L. J. Ex. 297; 150 E. R. 1321.

l. Affidavit of agent.—Proof.]—Where the action is against the agent of pltf. in the suit, it is not sufficient to produce an affidavit purporting to be made by him; it must be proved to have been made by him, & that he was pltf.'s agent.—MCLARREN v. BLACKLOCK (1866), 14 U. C. R. 24.—CAN.

m. As proof of loss under insurance policy.]—One of the conditions of a policy of insurance required that all persons sustaining loss should give notice to the agent through whom insured, & if required, make proof of the same by their oath or affirmation, & by the production of a certificate under the hands of three of the nearest householders, etc. Pltf. having sustained a loss, furnished an affidavit & certificate in the terms of the condition, without being required to do so. In an action on the policy:—Held: the affidavit & certificate were admissible as part of the preliminary proof.—PERKINS v. EQUITABLE INSURANCE CO. (1860), 4 All. 562.—CAN.

n. Affidavit referred to in declarations by underwriter.]—In an action against the secretary of the Society of Underwriters the declarations of an underwriter on the policy relative to the subject-matter, are evidence against deff.; & if such declarations refer to facts stated in an affidavit obtained by pltf. respecting the loss, such affidavit is also admissible.—DUFFY v. STYMEST (1861), 5 All. 197.—CAN.

o. In arbitration proceedings.]—Where the umpire chosen upon a reference to arbn. had allowed an affidavit to be sued in evidence; but remarked, when it was read, that he would not attach any weight to it, & swore that in adjudicating upon the matters in difference he did not take such affidavit as evidence, or attach any weight whatever thereto, the award, notwithstanding, was set aside.—*McKENWARD v. 5495. Evidence in one motion cannot be used in another.—Affidavit in one motion cannot be read in another.—R. v. THETFORD CORPN. (1707), 11 Mod. Rep. 141; 88 E. R. 952.

5496. Privilege of affidavits.—An affidavit in an interlocutory proceeding is privileged, & cannot form the subject of a civil action.

Where it was alleged that deft. had libelled pltf. in such an affidavit:—Held: no action would lie against deft.—GOMPAS v. WHITE (1880), 54 J. P. 22; 6 T. L. R. 20, D. C.

5497. Notice of intention to read affidavit.—Necessity for.—Where affidavits are intended to be read in support of a motion made on notice, the general rule of the ct. requires that notice that such affidavits are filed & are intended to be read, be given in the notice of motion; & unless this be done, the affidavits cannot be read.

The rule does not apply to affidavits of service of notices of motion.—ROCK v. UNETT (1831), You. 268; 159 E. R. 992.

petitioner.—Although it is not imperative that the affidavit in proof of title should be made by petitioner, some valid reason should be given why it is not so made when such is the case.—Re RUNDEL (1872), 4 Ch. Ch. 71.—CAN.

r. Proof of foreign judgment.—Effect of Ord. 14.—Deft. appeared to the action by D., a solr., & then went to reside outside the jurisdiction. D. being elevated to the bench, pltf. afterwards obtained a summons for judgment under Ord. 14, & served it upon H., the former partner of D. H. refused to accept or acknowledge the service. Pltf. left the summons at the office of H., who returned it, the judge, upon the return day mentioned in the summons, treated the above as good service thereof, & no one appearing for deft., made an order giving pltf. leave to sign judgment for the amount claimed. Deft. appointed L., partner of H., solr. ad hoc, & appeared to the Div. Ct. from the order:—Held: Ord. 14, though allowing affidavit evidence instead of the oral evidence usually adduced at a trial, does not supersede the rules of evidence, & it was necessary that the foreign judgment should be strictly proved.—DENNY v. SAYWARD (1895), 4 B. C. R. 212.—CAN.

a. Application for leave to read.—Time for making.—An application for leave to read an affidavit as evidence should be made before the trial; but on this appeal in an undefended action for divorce, an affidavit as to domicile was considered although it did not appear that leave to use it had been obtained.—*RAE v. We can look at any proceedings in the action such as these affidavits to see whether they suggest the existence of documents, the production of which may be serviceable. But general notice to read them should not have been given. Pltfs. should have called attention to those affidavits on which they meant to rely & have given notice of reading them only (COTTON, L.J.).—DOWNING v. FALMOUTH UNITED SEWERAGE BOARD (1887), 37 Ch. D. 234; 57 L. J. Ch. 234; 58 L. T. 206; 36 W. R. 437; 4 T. L. R. 190, C. A.

5499. — Right of opponent to read.—If pltf. gives notice of his intention to read an affidavit on the hearing of a motion, but declines to do so, deft. is nevertheless entitled to read it.—CAUTY v. HOULDITCH (1844), 14 Sim. 75; 60 E. R. 285.

b. Use of affidavits in subsequent stages.—An affidavit made by a witness for either party on an interlocutory application in an action cannot be used by the other party on the hearing of the action as an admission by the former, unless, perhaps, where it is known that he knew its contents before it was used on the interlocutory application.—JOHNSTON v. MATTHEWS (1893), 19 V. L. R. 638.—AUS.

c. Application for injunction.—Effect of suppression of facts in affidavit.—The affidavit on which an ex p. injunction is applied for must, to guard against abuse of that process, present a candid statement of the whole case, & must set forth not only the facts which pltf. thinks to be, but such as are in truth material to the determination of the application. An injunction obtained on affidavits in which this rule is not observed, will be dissolved on that ground alone, independently of the merits.—LEY v. McDONALD (1851), 2 Gr. 398.—CAN.

SUB-SECT. 2.—CROSS-EXAMINATION.

5507. Discretion of court to order—General rule.]—The ct. or judge has a discretion, in making an order under R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 1, for the attendance for cross-examination of a person who has made an affidavit, & is not bound to make such an order.—LA TRINIDAD, LTD. v. BROWNE (1887), 36 W. R. 138.

5508. ——— Affidavit showing cause against garnishee order nisi.]—(1) A garnishee who disputes his liability to the judgment debtor is not a person who can properly be ordered to attend for examination under R. S. C., Ord. 42, r. 32. If the power to order such examination is given by the rule, it is a discretionary power & ought only to be exercised with great caution.

(2) An affidavit showing cause against a garnishee order nisi is not an affidavit upon which cross-examination can be ordered under R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 1.—JEFFRIES v. TOMLINSON (1886), 3 T. L. R. 193.

5509. ——— Where productive of no result.]—The ct. will prevent the process of the ct. from being abused for the purpose of oppression.

other evidence; though the absence of other evidence may sometimes be a circumstance material to be considered.—TREADWELL v. MORRIS (1868), 15 Gr. 165.—CAN.

• Where proceedings interlocutory in form only.]—Although the application to amend a registered plan is by petition, & is therefore interlocutory in form, the order to be made finally & conclusively settles the rights of the parties concerned; & the evidence upon the application, if the facts are in dispute should, in the absence of agreement, be given res recte. The judge properly refused to receive affidavits in answer to the oral testimony of witnesses given in support of the petition.—Re McDONALD & LISTOWEL (1903), 6 O. L. R. 556; 2 O. W. R. 1009.—CAN.

1. Unanswered affidavits taken as true.]—Upon an application to dismiss an action as frivolous & vexatious, affidavits of defts. were allowed to be read, & not being answered, were taken as true, & the action dismissed by the full ct. on appeal from an order refusing the application.—HOPKINS v. LIGNORA MOUNT SICKER COPPER MINING CO. (1907), 7 W. L. R. 156; 13 B. C. R. 226.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.

5507 i. Discretion of court to order—General rule.]—The rule in force in England that a party who has made an affidavit must submit to cross-examination upon it, if required on notice to his solr., before taking any further steps in the cause, being founded on a special English order, has no application in this province.—GRANT v. WINCHESTER (1873), 6 P. R. 44.—CAN.

5507 ii. ———.]—As a general rule an order under Rule 401 will not be made for the attendance for cross-examination of ptff. who has made an affidavit leading to an interim injunction before deft. files an affidavit of merits.—LEAVOCK v. WEST (1897), 6 B. C. R. 404.—CAN.

5507 iii. ———.]—Rules 385 & 420, taken together, compel the production for cross-examination of deponent on his affidavit if required by the opposite party, before such affidavit can be used.—WESTHALEN v. EDMONDS (1899), 7 B. C. R. 175.—CAN.

5507 iv. ———.]—On an application at chambers to set aside as false, frivolous, & vexatious the pleas pleaded by deft. to an action brought against him as acceptor of a bill of exchange, discounted by ptff. bank, deft. applied for leave to cross-examine the manager of the bank on the affidavit upon which the motion was founded.—Held: the matter was one within the discretion of the chambers judge, & there was no appeal from his refusal to permit the cross-examination applied for.—BANK OF MONTREAL v. BENT (1900), 34 N. S. L. 489.—CAN.

5507 v. ———.]—On a summons for judgment under Ord. 14, it is only in any necessity made an affidavit for the purpose of an application in chambers for accounts, defts. proposed to cross-examine her on her affidavit, & on her refusing to appear, applied for an order on her to attend.—Held: the affidavit having been immaterial to the relief sought, & no reason having been suggested for supposing that the cross-examination could be productive of any result, the application was an abuse of the process of the ct. for the purpose of oppression & must be refused.—Re MUNDELL, FENTON v. CUMBERLEGE (1883), 52 L. J. Ch. 756; 48 L. T. 776.

5510. ——— In case of foreigner.]—Application to cross-examine a foreigner on an affidavit made by him in an action in this country refused as a matter of discretion in this case, but the cts. will make such an order where necessary.—STRAUSS v. GOLDSCHMIDT (1892), 8 T. L. R. 239, D. C.

5512. ——— On hearing of appeal.]—(1) The S. Corpn., being the owners of several letters patent relating to the manufacture of saccharin, commenced an action for infringement of the same against D. Co., & moved for an interlocutory injunction. The motion was dismissed on the ground that the validity of the patent was in dispute. Ptffs. appealed, & in the course of arguments on the appeal, applied for leave to cross-examine one of the secretaries of deft. co., who had made an affidavit, on the ground that it was evasive. Cross-examination was allowed (as an exceptional case) before the ct., by its leave.

5507 vi. ———.]—Upon an application by deft. for security for the costs of the action, upon the ground, that ptff. resided out of the jurisdiction, as appeared by deft.'s affidavit & by the indorsement on the writ of summons, deft.'s affidavit further stated, as required by Rule 528, that he had a good defence upon the merits. Ptff. made no answer by affidavit, but, on the return of the summons, asked that deft. be cross-examined on his affidavit.—Held: ptff. was entitled under r. 292, to cross-examination on the affidavit.—MURDOCK v. PATTON (1910), 15 W. L. R. 283.—CAN.

5507 vii. ———.]—Although it is within the discretion of the judge, whether or not he will allow a cross-examination upon an affidavit in support of a motion, petition or summons, under Rule 293, that where the discretion is exercised upon a wrong principle, the appellate ct. may set the matter right.—*Ewing v. 5515. Affidavit contradicting previous affidavit of same person—Duty to produce deponent for examination.—On contradictory affidavits of same person, personal examination required.

The general rule is that whoever produces the affidavit of a person to contradict a former made by that person, should produce him in ct., a personal examination being required (LORD HARDWICKE, C.).—Ex p. LORD (1750), 2 Ves. Sen. 26; 28 E. R. 18, L. C.

5516. Before whom examination conducted—Examiner.—The ct., under Court of Chancery Acts, 1852 (cc. 80 & 86), directed that a party to a suit, a witness by affidavit on his own behalf in support of his own state of facts before the master, should be cross-examined before the examiner instead of the master; & that all the parties should be examined on interrogatories before the examiner, as the master should direct.—HEXTALL v. CHEATLE (1852), 1 Sm. & G. 78; 9 Hare, App. xx., n.; 20 L. T. O. S. 139; 17 Jur. 128; 1 W. R. 91; 65 E. R. 35.

5517. —[—]—(1) A witness who has made an affidavit may be cross-examined either before one of the examiners of the ct. or a special examiner, & in the case of a witness abroad the proper course is to apply for a special examiner.

(2) Time will not be enlarged to allow of affidavits in reply being filed after cross-examination of a witness on the other side.—EDWARDS v. SPAIGHT (1862), 2 John. & H. 617; 70 E. R. 1205.

5523. Time for examination—Till time for hearing.—Where a cause is set down for hearing in the ordinary course, a deft. cannot be compelled to come in & be cross-examined after the expiration of a month from the time fixed for closing the evidence; but this rule does not apply to the case of a cause being set down upon motion for decree, in which case a party can be cross-examined, & affidavits may be filed up to the actual time of hearing.—BEDWELL v. PRUDENCE (1860), 1 Drew. & Sm. 221; 8 W. R. 702; 62 E. R. 363.

5524. Who may be examined—Creditor in administration suit.—A creditor's affidavit filed in support of his claim for a debt, under a decree in an administration suit, is one upon which, under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 40, he can be cross-examined.

—CAST v. POYSER (1856), 3 Sm. & G. 369; 26 L. J. Ch. 93, 353; 28 L. T. O. S. 118, 197; 3 Jur. N. S. 38; 65 E. R. 698, C. A.

The action was heard as a short cause, when the usual judgment was made directing accounts & inquiries, & the further consideration was adjourned. The judgment contained no special reservation as to costs. When the action came on upon further consideration ptfss. desired to read an affidavit which contained charges against defts. The charges related for the most part, to the conduct of the defts. between judgment & further consideration, & partly also to the conduct of defts. before action brought. The object of the affidavit was to make defts. liable to pay the costs of the action or some part thereof, occasioned by reason of the acts complained of in such affidavit, & otherwise appearing by the evidence in the action. Defts. objected to this affidavit being read contending that the ct. had no jurisdiction to allow any such affidavit to be read:—Held: (1) as to the conduct of defts. between judgment & further consideration, ptfss. were entitled to read an affidavit; (2) as to the conduct of defts. before action no affidavit could be read by ptfss.

5568. Practice in commercial court.]—With reference to the admission of evidence without having the witnesses presented for cross-examination, as is now common in the Commercial Ct., the practice goes of course upon the basis that all the witnesses are to be assumed to be honest witnesses. It would, however, be dangerous to extend by implication what the witnesses have actually said, except in the clearest cases (RIGBY, L.J.).—ISIS S.S. Co. v. BAHR & Co., [1899] 2 Q. B. 364; 68 L. s. In claim for attachment of debts.]—It was agreed that the

should be determined in a summary way upon affidavits:—Held: claimant, being really ptf. in an issue, was entitled to file affidavits in reply to

See, generally, WILLS.

5569. Execution of will.]—In an action brought for the purpose of proving a will in solemn form, where none of the parties cited had appeared. The ct. declined to order the execution & attestation of the will to be proved by affidavit under R. S. C., Ord. 37, r. 1.—COOK v. TOMLINSON (1876), 24 W. R. 851; 3 Char. Pr. Cas. 326.

5571. ———.]—In a suit for probate in solemn form, where it appeared that after every effort to trace the attesting witnesses neither of them could be found, the ct. admitted, as secondary evidence of execution, an affidavit of one of them, sworn to support an application for probate in common form.—HAYES v. WILLS (1906), 75 L. J. P. 86.

5572. When affidavit may be read—Witness giving evidence in another court.]—In a probate suit, out of nine defts. on the record eight had been cited & had not appeared. The remaining one, who was resident in New Zealand, had not been served. The ct., at the hearing, allowed him to be struck off the record, & the case to proceed against the other eight defts. The ct. also allowed an affidavit used on a motion formerly made in the suit, & sworn by a witness who had been subpoenaed but was unable to attend, owing to his being, at the time of the hearing, engaged as a witness elsewhere, to be put in evidence, & treated the application as made before the trial under R. S. C., Ord. 37, r. 1.—DREWITT v. DREWITT (1888), 58 L. T. 684; 52 J. P. 232.

SUB-SECT. 8. — TRADE MARKS.

5573. Use of statutory declarations.]—On an application to register a trade mark the practice of taking evidence by statutory declaration without cross-examination must not be abused.—Re BAGOTS, HUTTON & Co.'s TRADE MARK, [1916] 2 Ch. 103; 84 L. SECT. 5. — AFFIDAVITS IN REPLY.

See, note R. S. C., Ord. 38, rr. 25-27.

5574. Function of.]—(1) Where ptf. had filed affidavits in reply introducing a new state of facts in the nature of a new assignment, defts. were allowed at the hearing to read affidavits in reply without having given notice of them, the cause being allowed to stand over in order to give the ptf. time to answer them.

(2) The proper function of evidence given in reply is, to explain away, if possible, the effect of evidence already given.—HEATH v. WALLINGFORD (1865), 12 L. T. 631.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. A.-G. v. Colney Hatch Lunatic Asylum (1868), 4 Ch. App. 146.

5575. Time for leave to file.—In opposition to supplemental affidavit.]—(1) The proper time for applying to file a supplemental affidavit in answer to an affidavit shown by the courtesy of counsel before the argument of a rule to the counsel on the other side, is when that affidavit has been filed.

(2) Semble: an affidavit in answer to such a supplemental affidavit may be allowed if an application be made as soon as that supplemental affidavit is read.—SWINFEN v. SWINFEN (1857), 1 C. B. N. 5577. Where not confined to matters of reply.—Leave to defendant to read affidavit in answer.]—HEATH v. WALLINGFORD, No. 5574, ante.

5578. — Leave to amend claim & file further evidence.]—In a suit to set aside a settlement on the ground of fraud & surprise on plff., evidence was filed in reply tending to show that plff., at the time of executing the settlement, was of infirm mind. Upon the hearing of a motion for leave to use this evidence, which had been objected to as not being properly evidence in reply, plff. asked for leave to amend the bill, & go into fresh evidence. The cause was at issue before Nov. 1, 1875; & the hearing had been fixed & only accidentally postponed:—Held: leave should be given to plff. to amend the bill, & go into further evidence, & an order asked for by deft., that the evidence should be taken riâ voce, should be refused.—ROE v. DAVIES (1876), 2 Ch. D. 729; 24 W. R. 606; 3 Ch. Pr. Cas. 126.

5579. — Defendant's evidence raising wider issue than pleadings.]—Action claiming an injunction against the master of a ship in which a set of pumps, alleged to be an infringement, was used, as well as against the makers. Plff. brought evidence at the trial in support of the case raised by his pleadings & particulars of infringement, & to meet the case raised by defts. on their pleadings & particulars of objections. Defts. went into evidence on a much wider issue than that raised by the pleadings, etc. Plff. applied to adduce evidence in reply by adducing instances of infringement other than those mentioned in the particulars of infringement, & which he had obtained during the course of the trial:—Held: he was entitled to bring in this evidence.—ADAIR v. YOUNG (1879), 40 L. T. 61; subsequent proceedings, 11 Ch. D. 136, C. A.; 12 Ch. D. 13, C. A.

5580. — May be disregarded by court.—Or leave given to answer.]—Affidavits filed by a plff. in reply will not upon interlocutory motion be ordered to be taken off the file upon an allegation by deft. that they are not confined to matters strictly in reply; though at the hearing, if it should turn out to be so, the ct. will not regard them, or may give leave to deft. to answer them.—GILBERT v. COMEDY OPERA CO. (1880), 16 Ch. D. 594; 43 L. T. 665; 20 W. R. 169.

5582. May be confirmatory of evidence in chief.]—Where evidence is taken by affidavit under R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 1, plff.'s affidavits in reply need not be restricted to cutting down deft.'s evidence, but may be confirmatory of plff.'s evidence in chief, & the practice to this effect in the Ch. Div. has not been altered by R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 3.—PEACOCK v. HARPER (1877), 7 Ch. D. 648; 47 L. J. Ch. 238; 38 L. T. 143; 26 W. R. 109.

SECT. 6.—CROSS-EXAMINATIONS.

5583. Notice to produce for cross-examination.—Duty of party cross-examining to make appointment.]—A party who intends to cross-examine a witness must, himself, make an appointment for that purpose with the examiner, & give notice of the time appointed to the witness & the solr. of the opposite party.—KEYMER v. PERING (1839), 10 Sim. 179; 8 L. J. Ch. 355; 59 E. R. 581.

5584. — Must state time, place & occasion.]—On the prosecution of an inquiry added to a decree one party filed an affidavit by a person resident in South America, & gave notice to read it, whereupon the opposite party gave notice that he required to cross-examine the deponent, not saying when, where, or before whom:—Held: (1) R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 28, excluding an affidavit from being read, except by special leave, unless the deponent is produced for cross-examination, even supposing that Ord. 37, rr. 21, 22, make that rule applicable to evidence on an inquiry, & supposing that Ord. 38, r. 28, applies to a witness resident out of the jurisdiction, did not exclude the present affidavit, as the notice for cross-examination did not follow the terms of Ord. 38, r. 28; (2) the order of the Ct. of Appeal admitting the affidavit as evidence, without prejudice to any application by the opposite party within fourteen days for the cross-examination of the deponent in any place in South America before some proper person to be appointed for that purpose, was right under all the circumstances.

(3) It will be observed that the notice was a notice simply that defts. required to cross-examine all the witnesses on whose affidavits the other side placed reliance, & specifying certain affidavits. There was no mention of time, or place, or occasion, & I cannot think that this notice was such a notice as is contemplated by the rules to which attention has been called (LORD HERSCHEL, C.):—*CONCHA v. Sect. 6. Cross-examination. Sects. 7 & 8.]

5585. Time for cross-examination.—Of party filing affidavit.]—(1) A party to a cause, filing or giving notice to read an affidavit before the evidence is closed, may be cross-examined upon such affidavit at once, without waiting until the evidence is closed.

(2) A party having filed or given notice to read an affidavit is not at liberty to withdraw it.—CLARKE v. LAW (1855), 2 K. & J. 28; 2 Jur. N. S. 228; 1 W. R. 35; 69 E. R. 680.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Stebbing v. Alice (1856), 2 Jur. N. S. 1161. As to (2) Refd. Pike v. Dickinson (1873), 21 W. R. 862. Apld. Re Quartz Hill, etc. Co., Ex p. Young (1882), 21 Ch. D. 642. Refd. National Insce. & Investment Assn. v. Carstairs (1863), 2 New Rep. 255.

5586. — Not till evidence closed.]—As a general rule a party should file his affidavits before cross-examining a party on the other side. Consequently an affidavit filed in a creditor's administration suit by deft. exors. subsequently to their cross-examination of pltf. upon his affidavit in support of his claim is not generally admissible in proceedings in chambers for adjudication of pltf.'s claim, but it was allowed to be used upon leave given to the deponent to reply.—LANCEFIELD v. INGOLDEN (1872), 41 L. J. Ch. 473; 26 L. T. 687; 20 W. R. 621.

5587. — — —.]—Muir v. Kirby (1887), 32 Sol. Jo. 130.

5588. — — —.]—In an administration action inquiries were directed & pltf. was ordered to furnish certain accounts. After pltf. had filed his accounts & affidavits in the matter defts. obtained an order for his cross-examination. By direction of the judge the general practice in his chambers, of which defts. were aware, was not to make an order for cross-examination until the evidence was closed. After pltf. had been cross-examined defts. applied for leave to file further evidence generally.—Held: there being no rule of ct. expressly referring to the point, the judge had a discretion, provided he made no hard & fast rule, to adopt a general practice in such matters, & defts. were not entitled to the leave asked as a matter of right, but only on showing special circumstances.—Re DAVIES, ISSARD v. LAMBERT (1890), 41 Ch. D. 253; 59 L. J. Ch. 516; 62 L. T. 715; 38 W. R. 584, C. A.

5589. — Discretion of court to extend.]—The fourteen days from the filing of an affidavit in support of a petition having been allowed to expire without notice having been given to cross-examine on the affidavit as provided by Ord. Feb. 5, 1861, r. 19:—Held: the ct. was not thereby precluded from exercising its discretionary power under Chancery Improvement Act, 1852 (c. 86), s. 40, & leave to cross-examine should be granted.—Re SADLER'S WELLS THEATRE (1873), 42 L. J. Ch. 737.

the place where the affidavit has been made, it being in the discretion of the ct. to excuse his attendance for cross-examination in London.

Such witness should communicate with the party on whose behalf the affidavit has been made, throwing upon him the duty of applying for a special examiner.—TOWNSEND v. WILLIAMS (1858), 6 W. R. 734.

5591. Failure of deponent to appear.—Affidavit not received.]—Where a deft. has given notice of his intention to cross-examine a witness on an affidavit of his, & such witness does not appear at the hearing, deft. has a right either to have his affidavit withdrawn, or the cause ordered to stand over till he can be cross-examined on it. The ct. will not go on with the examination of other witnesses in the interim.—NASON v. CLAMP (1861), 10 L. T. 682; 12 W. R. 973.

5592. — — —.]—Motion to take off the file the affidavits of a deponent who, after an order to attend before the examiner at his own expense, had not been produced for cross-examination:—Held: irregular, as the affidavits could not be used as evidence except by special leave.—*MEYRICK v. 5595. Expenses of witness.—Party to cause.]—A party to a cause, upon being cross-examined on his affidavit, is entitled to be paid his reasonable expenses by the party cross-examining him, in the same way as a witness under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 38.—DAVEY v. DURRANT (1858), 24 Beav. 493; 31 L. T. O. S. 21; 4 Jur. N. S. 230; 6 W. R. 405; 53 E. R. 448; sub nom. DAVEY v. DURRANT, SMITH v. DURRANT, 27 L. J. C., Ord. 38, r. 4, that the party producing deponents for cross-examination upon their affidavits shall not be entitled to demand the expenses thereof in the first instance from the party requiring such production, is confined to a cross-examination of the deponents before the ct. at the trial of the action, & does not apply to a cross-examination on an affidavit filed after decree for the purpose of proceedings in chambers.—*Re KNIGHT, KNIGHT v. c. Affidavit in suit in foreign court.—Power to order attendance of deponent for cross-examination.]—Manitoba Evidence Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 57, s. 57, as re-enacted by 4 & 5 Edw. VII., c. 11, s. 1, does not empower the ct. to make an order commanding the attendance of a person making an affidavit in a suit or proceeding pending in a ct. outside Manitoba for the purpose of being cross-examined upon it within having subsequently served deft. with a subpoena moved that he be ordered to attend at his own expense:—Held: it was open to pltf. to combine the two methods of procedure & deft. was bound to produce himself at his own expense for cross-examination & further, regarding deft. as a deponent whose attendance was required for cross-examination the penalty imposed by R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 28, of having his affidavit rejected did not relieve him from the obligation to attend at his own expense.—Re BAKER, CONNELL v. BAKER (1885), 29 Ch. D. 711; 54 L. J. 5622. —.]—Plffs. gave notice to defts. four days after the time for closing the evidence, of their intention to read, at the hearing of the cause, certain affidavits used on an interlocutory application, & proceeded at the hearing to read the same. At the hearing defts. objected to their being read. That objection was allowed. Plffs. thereupon moved that the cause might stand over until the following day, & that the ct. would give special leave to them to read the affidavits, or to allow them to examine orally witnesses who were then in ct., under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 38:—Held: as plffs. neglected to make an application within due time for special leave to read the affidavits at the hearing, & as there were no special circumstances in the case, the ct. could not accede to the application.

5627. ——The term "further evidence" in R. S. C., Ord. 58, r. 5, simply means evidence not used on the trial of the action in the ct. below, whether such evidence has already been used in the same or any other cause between the same parties, or is altogether new in itself. Where, therefore, on the hearing of an action on further consideration the judge refused to allow pltf. to read affidavits which had been used on an inquiry in chambers, & were mentioned in the chief clerk's certificate, on the ground that notice to read them had not been given:—Held: (1) the evidence ought not to have been rejected, but the judge should have adjourned the hearing, with liberty to deft. to adduce evidence in reply; (2) the rejection of the evidence was under the circumstances a "special ground" for admitting it on the appeal, & in the particular case a preliminary motion before the appeal came on was not necessary.—*Re CHENNELL, JONES v. for the reduction of the national Debt, since no next of kin of the intestate could be found. A claimant came forward as next of kin, & presented a petition in the partnership suit, claiming the money standing to the separate account of the intestate. In that suit nine affidavits were filed. Same claimant presented a petition praying for a transfer of the sums paid to the Comrs. when nineteen affidavits were filed. On this petition the A.-G. appeared, as representing the Crown & the Comrs. Letters of administration were then granted to the Solr. for the Treasury, as nominee of the Crown, & a suit was instituted against him by the representatives of the first claimant, to prove his relationship to the intestate. Another claimant also came forward in this suit, by whom one affidavit was filed. The persons who made the affidavits were all dead:—Held: evidence produced on a former occasion could only be made use of in subsequent proceedings between same parties & upon same issue. When deponent dead.]—Where after a verdict for plff. & cause shown on affidavits against a rule for a new trial, a person who made one of the affidavits for plff. died, it was made a condition of the rule absolute that his affidavit should be received in evidence at the next trial.—GLASS v. COLLEKUT (1840), 3 Ont. Dig. 4852.—CAN.

l. ———.]—The action having been revived in the name of the administrator ad litem of the estate of deceased plff., an order was made, under Rule 263, directing that an affidavit made by directing that an affidavit made by application, should be admitted as evidence, quantum valeat, at the trial, notwithstanding that plff. had not been cross-examined upon it, it appearing that there had been opportunity for doct. to cross-examine, had he so desired.—MACDONALD v. DELON (1911), 17 W. L. R. 614.—CAN.

g. ———.]—By Customs Act, 51 Vict., c. 14, s. 183, it is provided that upon a reference of any matter to the ct. by the Minister of Customs, the ct. shall hear & consider the same upon the papers & evidence referred, & upon any further evidence produced under the direction of the ct. Among the documentary evidence referred in connection with a claim for a refund of duties paid, was an affidavit by a witness, since deceased, testifying to a fact adverse to claimant, & in respect of which no opportunity was afforded claimant to cross-examine the deponent:—Held: while the statements of deponent were not as effective as if he had been examined as a witness in ct., & so subject to cross-examination, yet the affidavit was admissible as evidence under the statute.—R. v. MORRIS (1911), 13 Exch. C. R. 384; 9 E. L. R. 430.—CAN.

h. ———. Affidavit made in same suit but not previously used.]—The affidavit of deceased solr. made & filed in the course of a Ch. suit may be admitted in evidence in conjunction with an order of the ct. made upon a motion in the suit shortly afterwards, although it does not appear on the face of the order that the affidavit was used upon the motion.—*WHALEY v. SUB-SECT. 2.—TITLE.

A. In General.

See, now, R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 2.

5661. Where no cause pending.]—An affidavit ought not to be intitled, unless there be some cause depending in the ct.—R. v. LAURENCE (1755), Say. 218; 96 E. R. 858.

5662. Where two defendants.]—In an action on a recognisance of bail, the bail must be served with process four days before the return of the writ. In an action against two not bailable one deft. may before declaration well style his affidavits in a cause of A. against B. who is sued with C.—MACKENZIE v. MARTIN (1815), 6 Taunt. 286; 128 E. R. 1045.

5663. Where two causes.]—Where an affidavit to set aside a judgment for non prosequitur for irregularity, was intitled as being in two several causes against separate defts., but written on one sheet of paper & with one stamp only:—Held: insufficient. WORLEY v. RYLAND (1823), 8 Moore, C. P. 238.

5664. — To found motion in both causes.]—A motion on behalf of same pltf. in two different actions, upon same ground of application, may be made upon one affidavit intitled in both actions.—PITT v. EVANS, PITT v. JERVIS (1833), 2 Dowl. 223; 3 L. J. Ex. 64.

Annotation:—Mentid. Kilmington v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1854), 9 Exch. 766.

5665. ——An affidavit cannot be intitled in two causes. — HARPER v. MOUNT, — v. MOUNT (1838), 2 Jur. 990.

5666. "A. v. B." not "B. at the suit of A."]—Affidavits must be intitled "A. v. B.," not "B. at suit of A."—RICHARDS v. ISAAC (1834), 2 Dowl. 710; 1 Cr. M. & R. 136; 4 Tyr. 863; 149 E. R. 1026.

5667. Parties must be described as plaintiff & defendant.]—In intitling an affidavit the parties filed.]—The omission to indorse on the affidavit leading to the issue of a garnishee summons a statement showing on whose behalf it was filed is a mere irregularity curable by amendment.—HART v. GURER (No. 2) (1915), 33 W. L. R. 41; 9 W. W. R. 709; CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 11, SUB-SECT. 2.—A.

5668 i. Title must follow that of writ.]—Where an application was made by a sheriff against an attorney, to compel him to pay the sheriff's fees in certain suits in which the writs had not been served by the sheriff, & the affidavits were intitled in the name of the sheriff against the attorney by name:—Held: the affidavits were improperly intitled, there being no such cause in ct.—DRURY v. HOWE (1847), 3 Kerr. 588.—CAN.

5668 i. Unnecessary words treated as surplusage.]—Deponent who was pltf., described himself as "I. A., of S., merchant, deft. in this cause":—

Held: no objection as the latter words may be rejected as surplusage.—ALLAN v. CASWELL (1863), 1 Old. 405.—CAN.

5671 ii. ——A rule nisi for a quo warranto against it, for usurping the office of councillor had been obtained. On showing cause it was contended that the rule must be discharged as K.'s affidavit was improperly intitled "in the matter of an election":—Held: mere surplusage.—Ex p. KEEFE (1877), 1 P. & B. 4.—CAN.

5671 iii. ——It is not a ground for setting aside a writ of habeas corpus that the affidavits on which the fiat for the writ was granted were intitled "In the Supreme Ct., ex p." etc., the words after "Supreme Ct." being mere surplusage.—Re SHAUGHNESSY (1881), 21 N. B. R. 182.—CAN.

5671 iv. ——An affidavit to obtain an order for review of a magistrate's judgment should not be entitled in any ct., but if intitled in a county ct., when the application is made to a judge of that ct., it may be treated as surplusage.—Ex p. McQUARRIE (1884), 24 should be described as "pltf." & "deft."—HARRIS v. GRIFFITH (1835), 4 Dowl. 289; 1 Har. & W. 515.

5668. Title must follow that of writ.]—The title of affidavits in a cause should pursue the writ of summons.—MARSHAL v. ADAMS (1838), 1 Will. Woll. & H. 296; 2 Jur. 944.

5669. ——An affidavit intitled "W. W. carrying on business under the name or style of W. T. & Co., pltf. & C. F. deft."—pltf. having so described himself in the writ, was held sufficient.—WHITE v. FELTHAM (1846), 3 C. B. 658; 16 L. J. C. P. 14; 136 E. R. 263.

Annotation:—Reid. Lomas v. Price (1848), 10 L. T. O. S. 378.

5670. ——Affidavits in a cause must be entitled strictly as the cause itself is entitled.—SUTHERLAND (FALSELY CALLED CROMIE) v. CROMIE (1863), 3 Sw. & Tr. 210; 32 L. J. P. M. & A. 125; 9 L. T. 23; 164 E. R. 1251.

5671. Unnecessary words treated as surplusage.]

(1) If affidavits used on a rule with respect to a matter of arbitration where there is no cause in ct. improperly introduce the words "pltf." & "deft." after the names of the parties in the title of the affidavits, those words may be treated as surplusage.

(2) A compr. need not put his initials opposite an immaterial alteration in an affidavit sworn before him.—Re IMESON & HORNER (1840), 8 Dowl. 651.

5672. After death of plaintiff.]—In a cause of A. v. B., the matter was by rule of ct. referred to the master.. A. died before the master's report was read. The exors. obtained a rule to show cause why they should not be made parties to the first rule:—Held: the second rule, & the affidavit on which it was granted, ought not to be intitled "A. deceased v. B.," & the rule & affidavits being so intitled, the rule was discharged. — BLAND v. DAX (1845), 8 Q. B. 126; 15 L. J. Q. B. 1; 6 L. T. O. S. 170; 10 Jur. 8; 115 E. R. 821.

—A foreigner, whose general residence is abroad, & who only landed here for a temporary purpose, viz. to make an affidavit to hold deft. to bail, may properly describe his place of abode to be in his own country, & not at the place where the affidavit was sworn, within the meaning of the rule of ct.—BOUHER v. KITTOE (1802), 3 East, 154; 102 E. R. 556.

5752. Whether deponent can be presumed to be a party.—From identity of description.]—It cannot be presumed that an affidavit made by a baronet, who is party in a cause in which the affidavit is intitled, is made by the person who is a party, merely from the identity of the name & addition.—DOE d. TAYLOR v. MEERS (1836), 2 Har. & W. 135.

5753. —[.]—An affidavit was sworn by one of the parties in this cause, to whose name the title of elder was not added:—Held: nevertheless, the affidavit must be presumed to be that of the elder.—YOUNG v. YOUNG (1812), 6 Jur. 916.

5754. —[.]—In an affidavit made by deft. in a cause in support of a rule moved for by him, it is not necessary for him expressly to swear that he is deft.; it will be sufficient if it appear, with reasonable certainty, from the language of the affidavit, that he is so.

Where, therefore, on an application for a rule to compel plff. to give security for costs, deponent swore, that, on etc. he was served with a copy of a writ of summons, purporting to be issued out of the ct. at the suit of plff.:—Held: it sufficiently appeared that deponent was deft. in the action.—LOUTHRELL v. PHILIPPE (1846), 1 Saund. & C. 87; 10 Jur. 757.

5755. —[.] (1) The affidavit in support of a suggestion to deprive plff. of costs under the County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), was made by a party of the same Christian & surname as deft., & stated the necessary facts to bring the case within sect. 128 of above Act; but it nowhere expressly stated that deponent was deft. in the action:—Held: sufficient, if a person of ordinary senses reading it candidly, could not doubt that they were one & the same person.

(2) The affidavit in support of a suggestion stated "that the residence of this deponent was at the commencement of this suit, & still is, within the jurisdiction of the county ct., & that no officer of the county ct. was or is a party to this action":—Held: a sufficient averment that no officer was a party, at the time of the commencement of the action.—NIND v. JONES (1850), 1 L. M. & P. 275; 19 L. J. Q. B. 321; 15 L. T. O. S. 117; 15 Jur. 562; 14 J. P. Jo. 320.

The deponent of one affidavit was described as a "gentleman" the other deponent being described as an accountant. Each affidavit described the proposed new trustee as a "gentleman" but also stated that he was a person of independent means:—Held: (1) the description of deponent as a "gentleman" was insufficient; the position in life of deponent ought to be stated, so as to enable this ct. to judge whether his evidence was reliable, & the costs of the affidavit must be disallowed; (2) the other affidavit was sufficient.—Re HORWOOD (1886), 55 L. 5778. — “Director of public companies.”]—In a debenture holders’ action by plffs., S. had been by order of Nov. 27, 1916, appointed receiver & manager of the property & assets of defts. In an affidavit of C., described as a “director of public companies,” he stated that for five years past he had known S., of No. 1, R. street, A., “accountant,” the proposed receiver & manager, that the accountant had carried on business as such for upwards of five years at No. 1 R. street & elsewhere in the City of London & that S. was a person of respectability & a fit & proper person to be appointed receiver & manager of defts.’ property & assets. S. was, according to the evidence, secretary to a political league, & had an office at No. 1, R. street for two months past, & there was no evidence that he had carried on business as an accountant. On motion to discharge S. from the receivership:—Held: “Director of public Cos.” or “merchant” is not a proper description of deponent in an affidavit, & does not conform to the requirements of R. Sect. 11.—Form and contents of affidavit: Sub-sect. 5, H., I., J. & K.]

5855. ————J.—The jurat of an affidavit made by a person who cannot write must state that he affixed his mark to the affidavit. But if it omits that statement it may be amended without re-swearing the affidavit.—WILSON v. BLAKEY (1841), Woll. 126; 5 Jur. 367.

5856. ————Before officer of court.—In the jurat to an answer of an illiterate person, taken before the clerk of inrolments, it is not necessary that it should appear that on the answer being read over to deft., she appeared to understand it; nor that it should appear that her mark was put to it in the presence of the clerk of inrolments; nor that the signature of the clerk of inrolments should be placed at length, nor the description of his office be added. WILTON v. CLIFTON (1843), 2 Haro. 535; 12 L. J. Ch. 425; 7 Jur. 215; 67 E. R. 221.

5857. ————That read over & explained & understood.—The jurat to an affidavit by a marksman must state that it was understood by him as well as that it was read over & explained to him.—ALWORTHY'S BAIL (1815), 2 Chit. 92.

5858. ————J.—If an illiterate person is sworn in ct. or before a comr., the fact of the affidavit being read over to him & his appearing to understand it must be stated in the jurat.—HAYNES v. POWELL (1835), 3 Dowl. 599.

5859. ————J.—WILTON v. CLIFTON, No. 5856, ante.

5860. ————Explanation must be by commissioner.—An affidavit of a marksman which expresses in the jurat that A. B. had been first sworn to the fact that he had read over & explained the affidavit to the marksman & that he understood it, is insufficient; the officer himself ought to explain it. R. v. MIDDLESEX, SHERIFF (1836), 4 Dowl. 765.

5861. ————Explanation in presence of commissioner.—Affidavits made by an illiterate person were sworn with the usual form of jurat not containing the certificate required by R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 13. The managing clerk of deponent's solr. deposed that he had prepared the affidavits from deponent's personal instructions, that he carefully read them over to him before they were sworn, & that deponent appeared perfectly to understand them. It was not, however, deposed that the affidavits were read over in the presence of the comr.: Held: there was no sufficient evidence to satisfy the ct. that the affidavits were read over to & appeared to be perfectly understood by deponent within the meaning of the above rule, & that the affidavits must be taken off the file.—Re LONGSTAFFE, BLENKARN v. LONGSTAFFE (1884), 51 L. J. Ch. 516; 52 L. T. 681.

5862. ————In presence of commissioner.—Where deponent is an illiterate person, or marksman, it should be stated in the jurat that it was read over in the presence of the comr.—ANON. (1822), 1 L. J. O. S. K. B. 50.

5863. ————J.—Semble: the ct. will not grant permission to enter up judgment as an old warrant of attorney executed by a marksman, where it is only sworn that the warrant was duly executed & it is not stated that it was read over to deft.—JAMES v. HARRIS (1837), 6 Dowl. 181.

5864. ————J.—The ct. will hear the petition of a marksman, although the attestation of it is defective in not stating that the petition has been read to him; if petitioner's affidavit, being an echo of the petition, is expressed, in the jurat, to have been read to him.—Re BROWN, Ex p. WASHBROOK (1842), 2 Mont. D. & De G. 490; 6 Jur. 156, Ct. of R.

5865. Effect of omission of jurat.—Where affidavits made by marksmen have been properly read over to them before they made their mark, but the jurat stating that they had been so read had been omitted & the comr. after deponent had made his mark refused to supply the omission; the ct. on the refusal of the clerk of records & writs to file the affidavits without the jurat ordered the affidavits to be filed as they stood.—FERNYHOUGH v. NAYLOR (1875), 23 W. R. 228.

I. Foreigners.

5866. Form of jurat.—(1) It is not necessary, that deft., a foreigner, ignorant of the English language, should put in an answer in his native language. An answer in the English language is sufficient. It is not necessary that such deft. should apply, by motion or petition, for an interpreter. The answer of such a deft. had the following jurat: "Sworn at the office of the clerk of records & writs, by deft. M. M., by the interpretation of B. C.; the interpreter being first sworn that he had truly, distinctly, & audibly interpreted the answer to deft. & will truly interpret the oath about to be administered to him";—Held: this jurat was sufficient.

(2) The signatures of a Moorish Jew, a deft., to an answer, although differing from his name as sufficient.—COTTER v. BROWNELL (1873), 1 Pug. 356.—CAN.

5863iv. ————J.—If the jurat of an affidavit, made by a marksman, states that it was read over to deft. by the comr. it will be presumed that it was so read before being sworn to.—Ex p. McQUARRIE (1884), 24 N. B. R. 287.—CAN.

5863 v. ————J.—Where an affidavit is made by a marksman, the jurat should state that it was read & explained by the comr. to the party before it was sworn by him; & a statement in the margin that the affidavit was read & explained to the party by a third person, is insufficient.—BREDIN v. BREDIN (1845), 7 I. Eq. R. 501.—IR.

5857 i. What should be stated.—That read over & explained & understood.—In the jurat of the affidavit of a marksman, upon which a rule had been obtained, instead of the words "he, or who," seemed perfectly to understand same," were the words "seemed fully to understand same";—Held: sufficient.—Ex p. ALLAIN (1900), 20 C. L. T. 87; 35 N. B. R. 107.—CAN.

5862 i. ————In presence of commissioner.—The jurat to an affidavit for an order for replevin, made by an illiterate person, after the words "sworn, etc.," contained the words, "& I certify that this affidavit was read in the presence of the deponent, & that the said deponent seemed perfectly to understand the same";—Held: the affidavit was bad, being apparently signed by an illiterate person, & there being no certificate that it was subscribed in the presence of the comr.—*KASSOP v. conditions of sale provided that, if any error or mis-statement should appear to have been made to the particulars, the sale should not be annulled, but the purchaser should be entitled to compensation, the amount to be settled by the judge. The summons was taken out on Jan. 18 by the purchaser. On Mar. 19 the summons came on before the chief clerk, with affidavits on both sides, & on Mar. 20 he made a note that the purchaser was entitled to compensation, but at the request of defts. the matter was adjourned into ct. The adjournment was, however, delayed at deft.'s request. On May 15 defts. filed four fresh affidavits by surveyors as to the meaning of the term made up. On May 16 there was another appointment before the chief clerk to dispose of the question whether the matter should be adjourned into ct. The chief clerk refused to read the fresh affidavits, & adjourned the matter into ct. The purchaser then gave the vendor notice that he should read the new affidavits, & the vendor gave notice that he should object. On the summons coming on for hearing:—Held: no time having been fixed for the closing of evidence, the purchaser must be allowed to use the affidavits, but upon the terms of paying the costs of the day, & allowing the summons to stand over to give the vendor an opportunity of filing affidavits in reply.

SUB-SECT. 1.—DISCRETION OF COURT TO

6170. General rule.]—The ground for granting a commission beyond sea to examine witnesses must depend upon the special circumstances of the case. Those circumstances may be disclosed upon affidavit, or else they may arise from the nature of the case itself (LORD HARDWICKE, C.).—JESSUP v. DUPONT (1740), Barn. Ch. 102; 27 E. R. 609, L. 6173. —.]—A commission may be granted under Evidence on Commission Act, 1831 (c. 22), s. 4, to examine a party to a suit, resident abroad, on his own behalf. But the ct. may, in its discretion, refuse such commission, if sufficient ground be not shown for requiring it. The ct. refused a commission where the only specific ground assigned was that the parties were resident, & one carrying on business, in distant places abroad, Leghorn & Constantinople, & that they made the application bonâ fide.—CASTELL v. GROOM (1852), 18 Q. B. 490; 21 L. J. Q. B. 308; 19 L. T. O. S. 121; 16 Jur. 888; 118 E. R. 185.

on behalf of the Crown, to have an affidavit taken off the file of the ct., in order that the deponent may be prosecuted for perjury. Therefore, though the case be such that the application would not be granted in the case of a private prosecutor, it will be granted on the application of the A.-G.—GREENE v. HOGAN (1837), 2 Jo. Ex. r. 573.—IR.

1. — When court will order.]—The ct. would not order an affidavit to be taken off the file on the ground of perjury, when it was only contradicted by the oath of one person, & when it did not appear that there were sufficient materials for a prosecution. Semble: in applications of the kind, a bonâ fide intention to prosecute should be sworn to.—MCARTHY v.

MAULIFFE (1841), 2 Leg. Rep. 138.—IR.

PART VIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

6170 i. General rule.]—It is not imperative upon the ct. to grant a commission to examine witnesses out of the jurisdiction.—MAIR v. ANDERSON (1854), 11 U. C. R. 160.—CAN.

6170 ii. —.]—WASHBURN & MOEN MANUFACTURING CO. v. BROOKS (1885), 2 Man. L. R. 44.—CAN.

6170 iii. —.]—Before a commission is granted to take evidence, extraordinary circumstances must be shown.—GWILLIM v. DAWSON ELECTRIC LIGHT & POWER CO. (1907), 6 W. L. R. 437.—CAN.

6170 iv. —.]—Discretion should be based upon whether the judge thinks that a full & fair examination may be held in a foreign country, with full opportunity to examine the parties.—CLEVELAND v. ABAM (1908), 8 W. L. R. 970.—CAN.

6170 v. —.]—The granting of a commission to examine witnesses abroad is more freely granted in the case of a mere witness than in the case of a party & more freely for the examination of deft. than for that of pltf. The nature of the issue upon which the evidence is to be given is an important consideration, & the ct. may impose conditions.—LAING v. NORTHERN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. (1918), 14 Alta. L. R. 140.—CAN.

6177. —.]—(1) It was said that the matter is one purely for the discretion of the ct. or the judge to whom the application is made & that the exercise of that discretion should not be interfered with by the Ct. of Appeal. In a sense no doubt it is a matter of discretion, & so it is in almost every case where a judge is called upon to give his decision. He must weigh all the circumstances of the case & come to a conclusion upon them. But there being in that sense only a discretion the exercise of it is clearly subject to review (BAGGALLAY, L.J.).
 (2) What, therefore, the ct. or the judge is called upon to consider is whether it appears necessary for the purposes of justice that the commission should be issued. Of course "for the purposes of justice" does not mean in the interest of either party to the litigation, but in the interest of all the parties to the litigation (BAGGALLAY, L.J.).—BERDAN v. ROYAL EXCHANGE SHIPPING Co. (1885), 1 T. L. R. 663, C. A.

6178 i. Review by Court of Appeal.—Where pltf. had a good cause of action against deflt., but was unable to frame his statement of claim unless he could examine deflt. & his employer who was not a party to the suit:—Held:—an order for such examination by a local judge of the High Ct. had been properly made.—GORDON v. PHILLIPS (1886), 11 P. R. 640.—CAN.

6178 ii. —.]—In an action by creditors of deflt. R. to set aside conveyances by him to deflt. G. as fraudulent, pltf. swore that it was necessary to have an examination of deflt. before delivering the statement of claim, in order that it might be framed with proper particularity as to the fraud, of which he had no personal knowledge; a local judge, upon the application of pltf. ex p. made an order for such examination:—Held:—the order should not at any rate have been made ex p.; & in this case the order should not have been made at all, the position of a deflt. resisting a claim as to which he has no personal knowledge, & of a pltf. advancing such a claim, being vastly different.—HOOKY v. GILBERT (1887), 12 P. R. 114.—CAN.

6178 iii. —.]—An order for examination of witnesses is a discretionary one, & where the witnesses have been examined under it, will not be reversed on appeal unless a strong case of error appears.—DELAIR v. CHARLEBOIS (1893), 15 P. R. 142.—CAN.

6178 iv. —.]—Where strong reasons are shown why the commission should not be granted, as failure to exercise due diligence on the part of the party applying or unreasonable delay caused to the opposite party, the discretion of the judge allowing the commission will be reviewed on appeal.—MCLEOD v. INSURANCE COMPANIES (1900), 32 N. S. R. 481.—CAN.

6178 v. —.]—During the progress of the trial, & after a number of witnesses on behalf of pltf. had been examined, deflt.'s counsel applied for a commission for the examination of a witness who was absent in B. C. The witness in question was a son of one of deflt., who was aware of his absence, but the fact was not brought to the attention of deflt.'s counsel until the day on which the trial was commenced. The judge having refused the commission:—Held:—there was no reason for interfering with his discretion.—STARKES v. THOMPSON (1902), 35 N. S. R. 390.—CAN.

6178 vi. —.]—Where, upon an application by deflt. for leave to examine his co-deflt. abroad for the purpose of obtaining evidence for use at the trial, appet. did not show that his co-deflt. could not be induced to come at any other time, or that he would not come to give evidence at the trial, & did not show circumstances which would satisfy the master, to whom the application was made, that the co-deflt. could not be induced to come, or that appet. could not reasonably be expected to produce him at the trial, & where, moreover, it was not shown that it was in the interest of justice that co-deflt. should be examined abroad, but the contrary might be inferred from the circumstances of the case, fraud being charged against deflt. on appeal:—Held:—the order of the master granting the application must be reversed.—MURRAY v. PLUMMER (1913), 24 W. L. R. 371; 4 W. W. R. 717; 11 D. L. R. 764; 6 Sask. L. R. 84.—CAN.

6178 vii. —.]—In an action by nine pltf., all resident in England, each of whom asked for a cancellation of shares & a return of price paid on ground of misrepresentation, an application was made to take their evidence on commission:—Held:—the discretion of the master in ordering the evidence to be taken on commission would not be interfered with on appeal.—KAYE v. BURNSLAND ADDITION, LTD.

6179. —.]—The grant of a commission to take evidence is in some degree a matter of discretion. The master & the judge at chambers exercised their discretion & decided in favour of the application, & the Divisional Ct. upheld their decision. In such a case there ought not to have been an appeal. The appeal, therefore, will be dismissed with costs (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—BUTTERFIELD v. FINANCIAL NEWS (1889), 5 T. L. R. 279, C. A.

6180. —.]—The ct. had to exercise its discretion as to granting a commission, & this ct. [C. A.] would be very unwilling to interfere with the exercise of that discretion by the ct. below. Each case must depend upon its own circumstances & no rule as to the exercise of that discretion could be laid down. The ct. below seemed to have treated the matter as if it was merely a commission to examine witnesses. They seemed to have taken no notice in their judgment that it was a commission to examine deflt. himself. Considering the nature of the case & the fact that deflt. was a Russian subject living in Russia & all the circumstances . . . a commission ought to be ordered to issue (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—EMANUEL v. SOLTYKOFF (1892), 8 T. L. R. 331, C. A.

6181. To grant application ex parte.—The ct. will not grant a rule absolute in the first instance for the examination of a witness, although he be at the point of death.

Seemle: Common Law Procedure Act, 1851 (c. 125), s. 40, does not give the ct. the power of doing so.—THOMAS v. VON STUTTERHEIM (1850), 28 L. T. O. S. 64; 5 W. R. 6.

6198. Mayor's Court, London.—Deft. instructed plff., an attorney, to take proceedings on his behalf to recover a percentage which he claimed to be due to him from underwriters on certain policies of assurance. From the circumstances of the case it was clear that to establish his claim it would be necessary to take the evidence of witnesses at Calcutta. Plff. first wrote letters demanding payment from the underwriters, & this being refused, he issued writs against them in the Mayor's Ct., which ct. he afterwards discovered had no power to issue a commission to examine witnesses & so the proceedings were useless.—Held: plff. had been guilty of such negligence in suing in the Mayor's Ct. without first ascertaining whether that ct. had power to issue a commission, as to disentitle him from recovering his charges.—*COX v. The proper time to apply for such commission is after the account is directed.

If there had been a stated account, & a bill brought, in order to open that account, on particular errors suggested, there might have been reason for granting the commission in question, provided the witness that is beyond sea was the only person that could depose in relation to those errors, but no such stated account is pretended to be in the present case (LORD HARDWICKE, C.).—ADAMS v. PART VIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 5.—A.

a. General rule.]—Every application for a commission must be made in good faith, & the evidence sought to be obtained must be such as to warrant a reasonable belief that it may be material & necessary for the purposes of justice; but it is safer where any injustice to other parties, in the way of delay or expense or otherwise, can be provided against, to favour the granting rather than the refusing of the application. The main considerations are a full & fair trial & the saving of expense.

In this case the order for a commission to take the evidence of pltt. & his son to be granted upon pltt. securing defts. for their costs of the execution of the commission & undertaking to speed the proceedings & not delay the trial. It was contended by defts. that the evidence expected from the witnesses was unnecessary by reason of the implied admissions in the statement of defence.—Held: it was for defts. to make the evidence unquestionably unnecessary, either by amending their pleadings so as to expressly make the admissions or by undertaking to do so at the trial.—ROBINS v. EMPIRE PRINTING & PUBLISHING CO. (1892), 14 P. R. 488.—CAN.

It is no answer to an application for a commission to examine witnesses abroad, supported by the ordinary affidavit, that the opposite party deposes that there are persons in this country, & documents accessible to applt., which would supply him with any information he could obtain from the witnesses he proposes to examine. After a judge has exercised his discretion on such an application, the ct. will not disturb his decision, unless it is manifestly wrong.—ADAMS v. CORFIELD (1858), 28 L. J. Ex. 31.

6241. —.]—Two interlocutory applications were made, one by pltt. for a commission to the United States to take evidence especially as to the circulation in England of American papers & magazines in which pltt. had advertised "Absorbine." This application was granted by the judge, but the order for a commission was on appeal discharged.—CHRISTY & CO. v. TIPPER & SON (1903), as reported in 21 P. C. 97.

6242. Defendant keeping away.]—Upon a question of legitimacy, depending upon a chain of distinct circumstances, in the knowledge of different individuals, & deft., an infant, kept out of the way, an examination de bene esse would have been granted, though not within any of the three cases, viz. witnesses of the age of seventy, or quitting the kingdom, or a fact depending on a single witness.—SHELLEY v. — (1806), 13 Ves. 56; 33 E. 6245. —.]—The ct. refused to disallow a commission for examining pltt.'s witnesses abroad, though there had been great delay on his part, but they referred it to the master to say whether or not the security pltt. had given for costs should be made without unnecessary delay.—JONES v. WILLIAMS (1854), James, 303.—CAN.

6243 ii. —.]—Dft. was father of D., who absconded, having assigned his property to deft. as trustee, who claimed to be a creditor for a large sum. The trial had already been postponed one term, & now deft. applied for a commission to examine his son abroad, alleging that he had not done so before because he did not know where his son was, but this was not positively stated, but left to be inferred argumentatively from the affidavits. He & his attorney admitted having been all along in communication with the son, but through a third person. To grant the commission would cause the trial to be put off for another term.—Held: there was no valid reason for the delay, & the rule must be refused.—UNION BANK v. DAWSON (1868), 1 P. E. I. 79.—CAN.

6253 v. —.—]—Upon an application by ptffs. for a commission to take the evidence of witnesses on their behalf in another province or another country, it must be determined whether or not a particular case is one in which it shall appear necessary for the purposes of justice that an order should be made; & it is not sufficient to consider what ptffs.' case requires. What justice to defts. as well as ptffs. requires must be considered. On such application, an order will not be made in favour of ptffs. unless special circumstances are shown. There must be some good reason why the witnesses cannot be examined within the jurisdiction.—RICHARD BELIVEAU CO. v. TYERMAN (1911), 16 W. L. R. 492; 4 Sask. L. R. 39.—CAN.

6253 viii. —.—]—Deft. is prima facie entitled to have ptff. & her witnesses before the ct. in order that they may be orally cross-examined, & that their demeanour may be observed by the ct. or jury; the burden is on ptff. to show that the purposes of justice will be better served by having the witnesses examined abroad. 6255. —[—]—It is the duty of appet., whether pltf. or deft., for the examination of a witness abroad, when making the application, to bring such evidence as will satisfy the ct. that it is in the interest of justice that the witness should be examined abroad, & inconvenient for him to attend to be examined in this country, or improbable that such attendance could be procured. Pltf. alleged that a witness abroad had been a party to a scheme by which pltf. had been defrauded. A clerk of pltf.'s solrs. deposed that he was informed & believed that the witness abroad was employed by a co. in Chicago, & that he believed he could not come over to England to give evidence at the trial, & that deft. derived his knowledge from letters to his principals written by pltf. from America. Pltf.'s solr. (by affidavit) deposed that the witness was not under the control or influence of pltf., & that it would not be possible by any means so far as deponent was aware, to procure his attendance in England. It was also sworn that the application was made bona fide, & not for the purpose of delay:—Held: this evidence was

There is a great difference between a pltf. & a mere witness as to being examined abroad. If a pltf. wishes to be examined as a witness on his own behalf, unless there are very strong positive reasons for his not coming over here, leave will not be given to examine him abroad, but he must come here (COTTON, L.J.).—LAWSON v. VACUUM BRAKE Co. (1884), 27 Ch. D. 137; 54 L. J. Ch. 10; 51 L. T. 275; 33 W. R. 186, C. A.

6256. Witness in attendance on dying relative.]—The ct. has power under Probate Act, s. 32, to issue a commission to examine a witness who is not prevented by illness or by reason of being without the jurisdiction of the ct. from attending the trial, but who is in attendance on a near relative supposed to be dying, but will not make such an order without the consent of the other side.—JONES v. WILLIAMS (1865), 13 W. R. 696.

6257. Hearing postponed for long time.]—In Apr. 1909, a city corpn. commenced an action against a railway co. to determine rights with regard to the abstraction of water from a river, both pltf's. & defts. being riparian owners. Negotiations for a settlement continued until Dec. 1913, & no step was taken in the action from that time until Mar. 1915. Defts. had, owing to the outbreak of the war, become engaged on important govt. work, & immediately applied for the trial of the action to be postponed until after the declaration of peace. Defts. admitted that they were using water in excess of their rights as riparian owners, but justified themselves on the ground of (a) prescription, & (b) agreement:—Held: the trial must be postponed until after the declaration of peace, with liberty to apply to examine de bene esse any witness who was aged or infirm or who was going abroad.—CARDIFF CORPN. v. BARRY RY. Co. (1916), 85 L. J. Ch. 316; 114 L. T. 229; 80 J. P. 261; 60 Sol. Jo. 354; 14 L. G. R. 535.

B. Materiality.

6258. Evidence must be material.]—In order to obtain a commission to examine an evidence 6253 x. —[—]—An examination of a person as a witness was ordered under Rule 478 of King's Bench Act as necessary for the purposes of justice although he could be called at the trial, it being urged by defts. that, by leaving him to be called as a witness at the trial, they would be at the mercy of what he might swear to & would run risk of not being able to prove their defence, the circumstances of the case & difficulties of the defence being in the ct.'s opinion of such an extraordinary nature as to justify the order.—MANTROSA SECURITIES Co. v. CANADIAN NATIONAL IR. Co., [1921] 2 W. W. R. 585.—CAN.

6253 xii. —[—]—The ct. will make an order for an examination de bene esse whenever the justice of the case may appear to require it.—BLACKWOOD v. HURWOOD (1842), 7 L. & C. 630; 4 L. Eq. R. 609.—IR.

g. Witness acting as agent.—To sign contract.]—When the bill alleged that the contract in question was entered into by the agent of the bank on its behalf, an order was made for his examination.—CONSOLIDATED BANK v. NELSON (1877), 7 P. R. 351.—CAN.

h. —To accept bill of exchange.]—A clerk in a Toronto warehouse accepted a bill of exchange on behalf of his employer, who resided in Philadelphia. In an action on the bill the employer denied the authority of his clerk to accept:—Held: the clerk could not be examined under Rule 285, O. J. Act. Seemle: neither could the Toronto manager of the business be examined under the rule.—ROSENHEIM v. SILLIMAN (1885), 11 P. R. 7.—CAN.

k. Convenience of party applying.]—An order for the examination of a witness before trial will not be made where no greater necessity for it can be shown than the convenience of the party who applies for it in preparing & presenting his case for trial.—CARNegie v. FEDERAL BANK (1883), 10 P. R. 69.—CAN.

l. Two previous commissions.—No new facts alleged.]—In a case which had been twice tried, & was coming on for a third trial, where it appeared that two commissions had already been obtained, & evidence taken under each; that the facts sought to be established had been previously known to, or their existence suspected by, the party applying; where it was not alleged that the evidence sought to be obtained was material & necessary, & that the party could not safely proceed to trial without it, but only that the examination would be effectual; & where no defence based upon the fact sought to be established had been set up, & no application had been made to amend the pleadings so as to enable it to be set up:—Held: the order for the commission must be set aside with costs.—MCLEOD v. INSURANCE COMPANIES (1900), 32 N. S. R. 481; reversd. 29 S. C. R. 449.—CAN.

m. Inability to compel witness to attend trial.—Want of bona fides.]—FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA v. KRUSE (1915), 8 W. W. R. 556; 23 D. L. R. 684; 8 Sask. L. R. 168.—CAN.

n. Application made bona fide.—Evidence material.]—An order was made on behalf of pltf. in an action for false arrest for examination of a witness on commission notwithstanding that it appeared there would be a direct conflict of evidence between such witness & deft.; the ct. being satisfied that the application was made bona fide, that the issue in respect of which the evidence was required was one which the ct. ought to try, that the witness could give material evidence, & that his attendance at the trial could not be procured.—SMITH v. REVELLON WHOLESALE, LTD., [1920] 2 W. W. R. 347.—CAN.

PART VIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 5.—B.

6258 l. Evidence must be material.]—Where the evidence is material, & the abroad, it is sufficient to state the name of the witness, that his evidence is material, & that he is abroad.—OLDHAM v. CARLETON (1792), 4 Bro. C. C. 88; 29 E. R. 792.

Annotation.—Consd. Mendizabel v. Machado (1826), 2 Sim. & St. 483.

6259. —[.]—If the bill had been for relief, you clearly must have moved this upon affidavits of materiality, for a plff. may often have a desire to delay his own suit. The same principle applies to this case (per Cur.).—r.—(1793), 1 Anst. 201; 145 E. R. 844.

6260. —[.]—On a bill for an injunction the ct. will not grant a commission to examine a witness in India without a full affidavit of materiality.—MOODY v. STEELE (1794), 2 Anst. 386; 145 E. R. 911.

Annotation.—Refd. Mendizabel v. Machado (1826), 2 Sim. & St. 483.

6261. —[.]—(1) Affidavit for issuing a commission to examine a witness out of the jurisdiction of the ct., need only state the name of the witness, that he is a material witness, & out of the jurisdiction of the ct.

(2) It is not necessary to show the nature of the attempts which have been made to obtain his attendance.—NORTON v. MELBOURNE (LORD) (1836), 3 Bing. N. C. 67; 2 Hodg. 114; 3 Scott. 308; 5 L. J. C. P. 343; 132 E. R. 335.

6262. —[.]—& necessary.—BADDELEY v. CHILMORE, No. 6301, post.

6263. —[.]—[.]—Upon a motion, on the part of defts., for a commission to examine witnesses abroad, it was required that it should appear, to the satisfaction of the ct., upon an affidavit from their attorney, that the evidence of the witnesses proposed to be examined was material & necessary to the defence of the action.—HEALY v. YOUNG (1846), 2 C. B. 702; 135 E. R. 1122.

6264. —[.]—[.]—AMESON v. LIDYATT (1855), 3 C. L. R. 926, n.

6265. —[.]—(1) The granting of a commission under Evidence on Commission Act, 1831 (c. 22), as well as the costs of such commission, is in the discretion of the ct., & the ct. will exercise that discretion in granting a commission to examine a witness at Paris, though the expense may be greater than the bringing over of the individual to England.

(2) Where an affidavit in support of an application for a commission to examine a witness abroad stated that in the judgment & belief of deponent the witness resided in the family of deft., & was a material & necessary witness, & that deft. could not safely proceed to trial without having previously had the witness examined on interrogatories:—Held: sufficient.—RUCCO v. PEARCE (1830), 3 Jur. 978.

6266. —[.]—& application not made to delay.—[.]—The general rule of practice is not to require the affidavit of the party or of his solr. in support of a motion for a commission to examine witnesses abroad; it is sufficient if it be sworn by the solr.'s clerk. Nor is it necessarily the general rule of practice now in use that the names of the witnesses be set out; it being sufficient merely that it be stated that the evidence of the witnesses out of the jurisdiction is material, & that the application is not made for the purpose of creating delay.—M'HARDY v. HITCHCOCK (1818), 11 Beav. 93; 17 L. J. Ch. 256; 11 L. T. O. S. 170; 12 Jur. 367; 50 E. R. 752.

6267. —[.]—Not probably useful.—[.]—On an application for a commission to examine a party abroad as a witness for deft., it must appear to the ct. that there is a reasonable ground for believing that the evidence will be material on behalf of deft. Where, therefore, it did not appear that there was any defence to the action, or that if there were, the party whom it was proposed to examine would be likely to support it, the ct. refused the application.

It is not enough to entitle a plff. to a mandamus to examine a witness in Australia, to show a mere probability that he can give useful evidence.—LANE v. BAGSHAW (1855), 10 C. B. 576; 3 C. L. R. 919; 139 E. R. 885; sub nom. LAING v. BRADSHAW, 25 L. T. O. S. 182.

6268. —[.]—[.]—L. applied to have a commission to examine M. in America:—Held: if it appeared that the evidence of M. would be material, the commission ought to be granted, there being nothing to show that M. was keeping out of the way to avoid cross-examination. Berdan v. Greenwood (No. 6177, ante) turned on the fact that the ct. was convinced that plff. there was so keeping out of the way. But, on the materials before the ct., the commission was rightly refused, there being nothing to show that M. had taken such part in the negotiations as to make his evidence material. The ct., however, as an indulgence, gave plff. an opportunity of adducing evidence to show that M. could give material evidence.—LANGEN v. TATIE witness is out of the jurisdiction & cannot be compelled to attend the trial, the commission must issue unless the other side satisfy him that the witness will be present.—WILLIAMS v. MUTUAL LIFE ASSOCN. OF AUSTRALIA (1904), 4 S. R. N. S. W. 677; 21 N. S. W. W. N. 277.—AUS.

6268 ii. —[.]—Re ATTORNEYS (1876), 7 P. R. 2.—CAN.

6268 iii. —[.]—In an action for a commission on the sale of land:—Held: plff.'s affidavit, stating that certain named persons, residing in the United States of America, were material & necessary witnesses on his behalf, & without their testimony he could not safely proceed to trial, & that they could prove facts & circumstances which would show that the sale of the land was made through plff.'s instrumentality, was sufficient to show the materiality of the evidence sought; & an order for a foreign commission was properly granted.—SMITH v. MURRAY (1912), 20 W. L. R. 9; 1 W. W. R. 764.—CAN.

6268 iv. —[.]—R. v. MURRAY (1912), 21 O. W. R. 544; 3 O. W. N. 734; 2 D. L. R. 113.—CAN.

6268 v. —[.]—[.]—In an action upon a written contract for the sale of rice, plffs. sought to show a custom of the trade at variance with the provision in the contract as to the date of shipment, & with that object applied for leave to take the evidence on commission of certain persons alleged to be familiar with the trade customs of such business:—Held: the material filed was insufficient to justify the making of the order; & that the evidence sought to be obtained was immaterial & inadmissible.—IMPERIAL GRAIN & MILLING CO. v. SLOBINSKY BROTHERS & SONS, [1922] 1 W. W. R. 1246; 86 D. L. R. 765; 32 Man. L. R. 91.—CAN.

6268 vi. —[.]—[.]—To obtain an order for commission in aid of an inquiry in relation to a receiver's securities, there must be an affidavit that the witnesses intended to be examined were expected to give material evidence.—DONOVAN v. THOMPSON (1824), 1 Hog. 150.—IR.

sion to take his own evidence & that of other witnesses in England where he & they lived. Plff.'s affidavit stated only that the witnesses were material & necessary for him on the trial of the action & that he was advised & verily believed that he could not safely proceed to trial without their evidence:—Held: sufficient to entitle plff. prima facie to a commission.—ROBINSON v. EMPIRE PRINTING & PUBLISHING CO. (1892), 14 P. R. 488.—CAN.

6268 iii. —[.]—[.]—Where issue had been joined two months before the sittings for which plff. gave notice of trial, & deft. applied five days before the sittings for a commission to examine a foreign witness, upon an affidavit simply stating that the witness was necessary & material, & he was advised & believed he could not safely proceed to trial without his evidence, a judge in chambers refused to interfere with a master's order for a commission & a stay of the trial, except by directing that the trial should take place, on the return of commission, in an adjoining county.—MORROW v. EHLMANN, [1896] 2 Ch. 611; 65 L. J. Ch. 745; 75 L. T. 37; 45 W. R. 149; 40 Sol. Jo. 635, C. A.

o. As to foreign marriage.]—Pltf.,

E. W., brought an action against deft. co. claiming damages in respect of the death of her son, who was killed in a collision between two of deft. co.'s cars. Amongst other defences to the action deft. co. pleaded that pltf. was not the mother of the person killed, within Deaths by Accident Compensation Act, 1908. Pltf. admitted in answer to interrogatories, that the first wife of G. W., the father of the person killed, was pltf.'s sister, & that after the latter's death she went through a ceremony of marriage with G. W., on June 10, 1855, at the office of the Registrar of Marriages in Middlesex, near London; that she came with him to New Zealand in whose interest in an action was comparatively small, were resident abroad, & they were unwilling to prosecute their claim, the et., on the application of the substantial pltf., appointed a special examiner to take their evidence abroad.—*BANQUE FRANCO-EGYPTIENNE v. 6290. — Subject to being required to attend trial.]—Pltf. residing in New Zealand brought an action for redemption, alleging himself to be heir-at-law of a person who had died intestate entitled to a remainder in fee in the equity of redemption which had fallen into possession since his death. Pltf. applied for a commission to examine himself, two persons named, & others residing in New Zealand. KAY, J., made the order, & directed that the depositions might be given in evidence at the trial without prejudice to the right of deft. to cross-examine pltf. at the trial in the presence of witnesses in England who could speak to his identity:—Held: (1) there was jurisdiction to appoint examiners for the examination of a party to the cause as well as of a mere witness; (2) the deposition of pltf. ought not to be admitted at the trial if deft. required him to appear at the trial to be examined & cross-examined, it not being shown that there was any practical impossibility of his attending; (3) the order need not be confined to witnesses mentioned in it by name, but pltf. must give notice to the other side in New Zealand of the witnesses he proposed to call. *NADIN v. but where deft. was served with the bill in the Colony & before leaving put in his answer but left the Colony after express notice from pltf., that any application for a commission to examine him abroad would be opposed:

Held: such deft. was not entitled to a commission to examine him in England as a witness on his own behalf. BUTTE v. LUDAR (1869), 6 W. W. & A. 240. AUS.

q. —[.] Deft. about to leave the province may be examined de bene esse. BARKLEY v. FAIR (1858), 2 Thom. 231. CAN.

r. —[.]—Defts., a solr. practising his profession in Ontario & his wife, were still in Ontario when two actions were brought, one against both of them by a former client of the husband, & the other against the husband alone. Shortly afterwards they removed to the North-West Territories to take up their permanent residence there. The actions were respectively for an account of money entrusted to the solr. for investment & to set aside assignments of life insurance policies:—Held: defts. should be allowed to have their evidence taken on commission in the Territories, as witnesses on their own behalf, for use at the trial of the actions, but upon terms advantageous to pltf. as to the expense of executing the commission.—*FERGUSON v. g. General rule.—[Where on an application for a commission to examine a witness abroad, the judge is satisfied that the evidence is material, that the witness is out of the jurisdiction, & cannot be compelled to attend the trial, he is bound to direct the commission to issue unless the other side satisfying him that the witness will be present.—*WILLIAMS v. 6338 1. Witness in ill-health—& unable to be present.—Plf. applied for a commission to issue for the examination of a female witness at her residence. The ground upon which he based his application was that she was fifty-eight years of age & sickly & physically unable to attend the ct. Held: the circumstances alleged were not such as to justify the issue of a commission.—RUSTOMJI FRANJI v. BANCONAI (1890), 1 L. R. 14 Dom. 581.—IND.

6338 2. ———.]—An affidavit to ground an order for a commission to examine a witness resident out of the jurisdiction, for the reason that the party whose evidence is required is unable to attend in consequence of ill-health, must be positive; & one on information & belief is insufficient.—BOYCE v. ROSEBOROUGH (1857), 7 L. C. L. R. 17.—IR.

6347. ———.]—In an action for replacement of railway stock alleged to have been transferred from the name of plff. by means of a forged transfer, an attesting witness of the execution of the transfer was dangerously ill. On motion for leave to examine the witness de bene esse, & for the appointment of a special examiner:—Held: (1) it was a proper case to make the order; (2) at the trial of the action, before leave to use the evidence was given, it would be necessary to prove that the witness was not capable of being examined.

The ct. refused to appoint a special examiner, holding that the matter must go to the examiner in rotation.—BARTON v. NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE RY. CO., BARTON v. NORTH-EASTERN RY. CO. (1887), 56 L. T. 601.

6348. Pregnancy of witness.—Qu.: whether pregnancy & imminent delivery be a cause for the examination of a witness by the prothonotary, under Evidence on Commission Act, 1830 (c. 22). If so, it must be shown by affidavits of competent persons, that the delivery will probably happen about the time fixed for the trial of the cause.—ABRAHAM v. NEWTON (OR NORTON) (1832), 8 Bing. 274; 1 Dowl. 266; 1 Moo. & S. 381; 1 L. J. C. P. 91; 131 E. R. 407.

6350. Old age of witness—Witness of seventy or over.—Rule relaxed if witnesses abroad.—Rule for examination of witnesses de bene esse, dispensed with, on account of parties living in Virginia.

The rule is that the witness must be seventy years old, but the parties living in Virginia is a favourable circumstance (LORD HARDWICKE, C.).—FITZTHUM v. LEE (1740), Amb. 65; 27 E. R. 38, L. C.

-An application by plffs., an incorporated co., for a commission to take the evidence of their general manager at Toronto, where he resided, & plffs. works were situated, was refused although it was sworn that the manager was a material witness on behalf of plffs. to prove the account sued on & to disprove the various defences, & that it would entail great loss & expense for him to attend a trial at Winnipeg, as his duties as manager required his continued presence in Toronto: -Held: defts. had the right to have this witness present at the trial, in order that the usual tests of demeanour & cross-examination in presence of the ct. might be applied. Even if interference with plffs. business by the manager's absence would be a proper subject for consideration, a mere general statement, unsupported by any facts, that great loss & expense would ensue, was not convincing. -TORONTO MANUFACTURING CO. v. The affidavit of the solr. for deft. will be received in support of such a motion; & it will be sufficient if he swear, that he is informed of & believes the statements in the bill, if he also add, that his belief is founded on documents in his possession, & that, from the nature of the defence involving the question of what country the ship belongs to, he considers the commission necessary.—*LARAGOTTY v. PART VIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 6.—B. (a).

r. General rule.]—There is no doubt as to the prima facie right of a party to have the witnesses who are to give evidence against him present in ct.; the burden lies upon the party asking any indulgence in the way of commission & for special terms to suit the case, to justify the ct. in departing from the usual rule that the witnesses should attend in person.—*STEARNS v. 6468. Authority of examiner—To adjourn de die in diem.] By the old practice, the comr. was limited to the examination of the witnesses on the interrogatories "now," that is, at the time of taking the oath produced & left with him. He could not, therefore, examine on new interrogatories exhibited during the execution of the commission without a new commission or special order of the ct. According to the new practice, the word "now" is omitted in the comr.'s oath, & accordingly it has been held that new interrogatories may be exhibited & examined on by the comr. without any special application to the ct. There is no such thing now as joining in a commission issued, it being for the benefit of all parties, & the execution of it being continued de die in diem till every party has exhausted his interrogatories. —*LANCASHIRE v. Plffs. & defts. applied to the master for a certificate for a commission to examine witnesses abroad, & they produced to him the proposed interrogatories. He certified, in both cases, that a commission was necessary to examine witnesses under the said interrogatories, & orders were made accordingly. The parties afterwards, by consent, obtained an order for a single commission, directed to a sole comr. Plffs. examined on fresh interrogatories:—Held: (1) under the first orders the proceeding of plffs. was irregular; (2) it was equally so under the consent order; (3) the ct., however, refused to suppress the depositions, but made plffs. pay the costs of the application, & gave leave to defts. to apply to be put on a footing of equality with plffs.—*NELSON (EARL) v. B. Notice of Commission.

6514. Notice of execution of commission—To whom given—In interpleader.]—Notice of the execution of a commission to examine witnesses, was given to plff., in an interpleading bill, & not to deft.:—Held: this was good.—DUNCANNON v. CAMPBELL (1785), 2 Dick. 618; 21 E. R. 123, L. C.

6515. ———.]—In the course of the proceedings on a bill of interpleader a commission issued on the part of one deft. for the examination of witnesses of which notice was given to plff. but not to the other deft.:—Held: this practice, though it might be inconvenient, was not irregular. —BRYMER v. BUCHANAN (1788), 1 Cox, Eq. Cas. 425; 29 E. R. 1232, L. C.

6516. ——— To opposite party.]—General Ord., Feb. 5, 1861, r. 22, does not require forty-eight hours' notice of intention to examine to be given to the witness, but to the "opposite party" in the cause or matter. The witness is entitled to reasonable notice, having regard to the circumstances of the case.—Re NORTH WHEAT EXMOUTH MINING CO. (1862), 31 Beav. 628; 1 New Rep. 42; 7 L. T. 306; 8 Jur. N. 6517. ——— Execution abroad.]—Ord., Feb. 5, 1861, r. 22, requiring a party summoning a witness to give to the opposite party "forty-eight hours' notice at least of his intention to examine or cross-examine such witness," will not be applied strictly in the case of an examina-

by Crown.]—On an application by deft. in a case wherein the Crown was plff. for the issue of a commission to examine material witnesses whose evidence could not otherwise, without considerable difficulties, be procured:—Held: the Crown had of right a discretion in the matter, & without the consent of the Crown, the ct. could not exercise its jurisdiction.—*A-G. v. The comrs. gave notice to J. of their intention to execute a commission to examine witnesses, & thereupon executed the commission as to one deft.:—Held: the execution was good, inasmuch as J. could not be deceived by the notice.

Under a commission to take the answer of two defts., the comrs. may take the answer of one deft. only.—HALL v. CONNELL (1839), 3 Y. & C. Ex. 528; 160 E. R. 811.

6521. ——— Where no stipulation as to notice.—On May 12, 1858, a commission issued, on pltf.'s application, to take evidence at New York. On May 28 pltf.'s attorney wrote to deft.'s attorney to inform him that he had sent out the commission. In reply, deft.'s attorney complained he had not had time to instruct his agent at New York. On June 28 the commission was returned. On the trial, at the sittings after Hilary Term, 1859, deft. objected to the reception of the evidence taken under the commission, on the ground that he had received no notice of the time of taking the evidence at New York:—Held: the evidence was properly received, & unless the commission contained a special stipulation as to notice, none was required.—WHITE v. HALLET (1859), 33 L. T. O. S. 94; 7 W. R. 408.

(2) The names of such comrs. as the parties agree upon may be inserted in the commission.

(3) The commission need not be tested in term.—NICOL v. ALISON (1848), 11 Q. B. 1006; 3 New Pract. Cas. 14; 10 L. T. O. S. 481; 116 E. R. 749; sub nom. NICOL v. ALISON, 17 L. J. Q. B. 355; 12 Jur. 598.

6532. Variance between order & commission—Clause in order directory.—A judge's order, under Evidence on Commission Act, 1831 (c. 22), s. 4, ordering a commission to issue for the examination of witnesses abroad, contained a clause that "the depositions of every witness be signed by him & the comr." The writ of commission contained no such clause. The commission was duly executed, & the depositions returned without the signature of the witnesses:—Held: the clause in the order was merely directory, & a non-compliance with it did not render the depositions inadmissible in evidence under sect. 10 against deft., who had refused to join in the commission. HODGES v. COBB (1867), L. R. 2 Q. B. 652; 3 B. & S. 583; 36 L. J. Q. B. 265; 16 L. T. 702; 15 W. R. 1038.

6534. Form in cross-suits.]—Where the same issues are raised in cross-suits, made necessary by the imperfect powers granted by the Legislature to the ct., the ct. will, as a general rule, stay one, & that without reference to their relative positions in the cause list. In such a case, if a commission to examine witnesses is granted, it will be drawn in such a form as that the evidence shall be available in the stayed suit, should that come to a hearing. —OSBORNE v. OSBORNE, OSBORNE v. OSBORNE & MARTELLA (1863), 3 Sw. & Tr. 327; 33 L. J. P. M. & A. 38; 9 L. T. 156; 10 Jur. N. S. 80.

6535. What must be inserted — Commission to judge of Indian Supreme Court—Pleadings at length.] A commission to examine witnesses, awarded to the judges of one of the Supreme Cts. in India, under 13 Geo. 3, c. 63, s. 44, ought to recite the pleadings at length. —MURRAY v. LAW-FORD (1831), 7 Sim. 139; 58 E. R. 780.

6536. — Direction that commissioners be sworn — Omitted when directed to foreign judge.] — The ct. will grant a commission to examine witnesses, without the clause requiring the comrs. to take an oath, if, from the circumstances, it appears that the commission cannot be made available unless that clause be omitted. Thus, where a commission to examine witnesses had issued, directed to certain individuals at Hamburg, who were unable to enforce the attendance of some material witnesses; & it was stated, on affidavit, that if a commission was directed to the judges of the Ct. of Commerce there, without such a clause, they, in all probability, would act, & would exercise their power to compel the witnesses to attend & give evidence upon oath: — Held: the commission would be granted without the clause requiring the comrs. to be sworn. —CLAY v. This action [by a comr. for his labour] well lies upon this matter; for though a comr. is an officer of the ct., yet they cannot compel him to attend against his will, & therefore the parties are to take care to name such persons who will serve therein; & it is reasonable that it should be at the charge of him for whom he officiates (per Cur.)—STOKELD v. I., with liberty to pltf.'s comr. to proceed ex pte. If the other neglected or refused to attend. Both comrs. attended the examination, & deft.'s nominee cross-examined the witness but refused to certify to the return which was sent back to the ct. signed by one comr. only. Some of the interrogatories & cross-interrogatories were put to the witnesses by the comrs.:—Held: the failure to administer the interrogatories according to the terms of the commission was a substantial objection, & rendered the evidence incapable of being received.—MILLVILLE MUTUAL MARINE & FIRE INSURANCE CO. v. DRISCOLL (1884), 11 S. C. R. 183.—CAN.

g. —.]—The return to a commission issued for the taking of depositions in a foreign country did not show, in a number of respects, that the directions of the commission had been complied with. Pltf. having given notice, applied, at the opening of the trial, to suppress the depositions. As in the opinion of the Court, the objections were based only on "irregularities," & not on "matters of substance," & it did not appear that any harm had been or might be done by the non-compliance with the directions of the commission, & the delay in moving to suppress was unreasonable, it was held, that the depositions were admissible.—DECEAN v. without the sanction of the ct., made an alteration in the depositions, by erasing the name, subscribed thereto.—NASH v. COCHRANE (1837), 1 Jur. 70.

6600. — Variance in titles of commission & depositions.—An order for commission to examine witnesses was made, on the application of plffs., in a cause in which B. & another were plffs., & C. & others were defts., by original & amended bill, & in which B. & another were plffs., & Lady B. & others were defts., by bill of revivor & supplement. The commission was made out in a cause in which B. & another were plffs., & C. & others were defts., by original bill & bill of revivor & supplement. In the title to depositions taken under that commission, both the original & amended bill & the bill of revivor & supplement were mentioned, & the names of the parties to each bill were set forth at length. A motion by defts. to suppress the depositions, grounded on the variance between the title of the commission & the title of the depositions, was refused.

Although it is usual to express in the title to depositions, that they have been taken by virtue of a commission, "to us (naming only the acting comrs.) & others directed," yet, if the names of all the comrs. are inserted, the depositions will not be suppressed because they are not signed by all the comrs. provided they are signed by those who acted.—BRYDOES v. BRANFILL (1841), 12 Sim. 331; 11 L. J. Ch. 12; 59 E. R. 1160.

6601. ——Depositions were taken on the part of pltf. in a cause, in which it was alleged that K. was pltf., as next friend to other plffs. who were infants, whereas the fact was, that K. was then dead. Defts. joined in the commission for the examination of witnesses, but made no objection to the alleged irregularity till after publication had passed. On application by defts. to suppress the depositions taken on the part of plffs., the ct. refused the motion.—LINCOLN v. WRIGHT (1841), 4 Beav. 166; 10 L. J. Ch. 331; 49 E. R. 302.

6602. ——In the title of a commission to examine witnesses, the names of all the persons who had been made parties to the cause, whether by original bill or bill of revivor, were inserted. In the title of the interrogatories the names of those persons only who were then parties to the cause were inserted. A motion to suppress the depositions for irregularity, on the ground of variance between the title of the commission & the title of the interrogatories, was refused with costs.—JONES v. SMITH (1843), 12 L. J. Ch. 432; 7 Jur. 500, L. C.

k. — Deposition dealing with matters not raised.—On a commission to examine witnesses, if the answer to an interrogatory extends to matters not inquired of & which the opposite party could not have anticipated, & therefore, did not file a cross interrogatory, the answer will be suppressed.—*BARNOUR v. 6604. — Evidence taken vivâ voce & not on written interrogatories.—It is no objection to the admissibility of depositions taken under a commission, that the comr. did not put any of the written interrogatories or cross-interrogatories which were sent out with the commission, but took the evidence of the witnesses under a vivâ voce examination.—*GRILL v. m. — Commissioner wrongly named.—A commission was addressed to S. B. Henry, & G., of Philadelphia, jointly & severally. G. took no part in executing it, but all was done by one S. B. B. Henry in Philadelphia, but that the Huey before whom the depositions were taken, was the person intended. This objection was not taken to the commission at the trial, though others were, & the evidence of witnesses on both sides

6616. Failure to examine witnesses.—Through mistake of law.]—Under an impression that the Tithe Comrs. had power to determine the matters in issue, defts. had neglected to examine witnesses under a commission from this ct.; on the motion of defts., supported by an affidavit of facts:—Held: a new commission would be granted on payment of the costs of suing out thereof.—WETHERELL v. BELLWOOD (1838), 3 Y. & C. Ex. 319; 8 L. J. Ex. Eq. 65; 160 E. R. 724.

6617. Inability to cross-examine witnesses.]—Commission to examine witnesses abroad was executed & returned; deft., who had not interrogatories prepared, had not the opportunity of cross-examining:—Held: a new commission would be granted for that purpose, deft. to state whom he wished & undertook to cross-examine, but pltf.'s depositions would not be suppressed.—CAMPBELL v. 6623. Some witnesses not examined.]—Where pltf. by his conduct renders it impossible to examine all the witnesses under the first commission, & afterwards applies for a second commission, the ct. will order him to pay the extra costs occasioned by the second commission, as well as deft.'s costs of the motion, & will likewise put him under terms with respect to the time & mode of executing the second commission.—MORRIS v. DAVIES (1823), 1 L. J. O. S. Ch. 220.

6624. —.]—Under a commission for the examination of witnesses abroad, the comrs. examined the witnesses for pltf.; & under an impression that deft. had no witnesses to examine, whether he had or had not given notice of his intention to examine witnesses was disputed, they closed the commission, & returned it to England. After the commission had been sent off, deft. examined his witness before some of the comrs.; & the depositions of those witnesses, & the interrogatories upon which they were taken, were sealed up & forwarded to England. On motion to annex the last-mentioned depositions & interrogatories to the commission & the depositions on the part of pltf., the ct. expressed an inclination to grant deft. a new commission, unless pltf. would consent to the motion; & upon such consent being given:—Held: the order would be made.

When a commission to examine witnesses is returned it is opened by the junior sworn clerk, for the purpose of entering the names of the acting comrs. in the commission-book & the commission is then kept under lock & key until the publication is passed.—IRVING v. VIANA (1827), 1 Y. & J. 416; 148 E. R. 733.

6625. Amendment of bill. Old commission resealed.]—A commission to examine witnesses was issued by deft.; pltf. joined in the commission & named comrs. Pltf., afterwards, with leave of the ct., withdrew his replication, & amended the bill, to which an answer was put in, & a replication filed thereto, & then the commission was resealed:—Held: it was not necessary to issue a new commission, & if the comrs. named by pltf., on the

r. Failure to examine witnesses.—Through oversight.]—On an application for a second commission on the ground of oversight:—Held: though it was unusual to grant a second commission, as deft. had not appeared at the trial & the cost of bringing the witness to ct. would be very heavy, the commission would be granted, as it was in the interests of all parties, on pltf. paying costs.—CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE v. MATTHEWSON (1908), 8 W. L. R. 972.—CAN.

a. First commission unable to be executed by law of foreign country.—New commission granted on terms.]—A commission to examine witnesses in H., in which pltf. & deft. joined, lapsed by reason of the law there not permitting oaths to be administered except by the ct. An injunction had been granted against deft. until the hearing or further order. The primary judge in chambers refused an application by pltf. for a new commission, except upon the terms of dissolving the injunction. Upon appeal the order for a new commission was made, upon the terms of pltf. paying the costs of the abortive commission, & giving an undertaking to answer damages to deft. if the injunction were dissolved at the hearing.—WOLFE v. HART (1879), 5 V. L. R. 52.—AUS.

t. Witness not fully examined.]—Where a commission to examine a witness abroad has been executed & first issuing of the commission were now unable to attend, they ought to make a special application, & a motion by pltf. to discharge the commission for irregularity, would be refused with costs.—PAGE v. FLETCHER (1831), 1 You. 271; 159 E. R. 991.

6626. Agreement between parties.]—Pltfs. & defts. agreed that a new commission should issue for the examination of witnesses:—Held: an order would be made that both pltfs. & defts. should have liberty to exhibit fresh interrogatories in chief, & also to lodge cross-interrogatories from time to time.—TURNER v. TRELAWNEY (1838), 2 Jur. 78; subsequent proceedings, 2 Jur. 818; (1839), 9 Sim. 453.

6627. Discovery of fresh material.]—(1) New commission was granted to cross-examine pltf.'s witnesses abroad, upon subsequent discovery of matter material for such examination:—Held: pltf. could only be allowed to re-examine on a special case being made, & then only as to matters not comprised in the former interrogatories.

(2) On the examination of witnesses before the examiner, new interrogatories may be, from time to time, exhibited, for the examination of the same or other witnesses; but secus in an examination before comrs., except by leave of the ct.—*HANOVER (King) v. 6628. First depositions inadmissible—Error in name of cause.]—Where an error in the name of a cause has been made in the pleadings, & a commission for the examination of witnesses has been taken out in a cause thus wrongly described, the depositions sworn under that commission cannot be received as evidence; & a new commission must issue, either to re-examine the witnesses, or to repeat their testimony to them.—KETTLEWELL v. RANDALL (1844), 3 Notes of Cases 72; 3 L. T. O. S. 141; 8 J. P. 362.

6630. First commission unable to be executed by law of foreign country.]—A commission, under Evidence on Commission Act, 1831 (c. 22), s. 4, issued at the instance of deft., was directed to an English barrister, to examine witnesses in Germany. The witness, a Prussian subject, being at Berlin, the comr. went thither, but learned that, by the Prussian law, an oath could be administered to a Prussian subject only by a Prussian judge, or some one authorised by a Prussian ct. On the petition of the comr., a Prussian ct. authorised D., a Prussian, to administer the oath. On the commission being opened, D. insisted on assuming the control of the whole examination, & rejected a question put conformably to the English law, on the ground that it could not be put conformably to the Prussian law. The parties then refused to act further under the commission. The comr. returned these facts; & application was then made, by deft., for a new commission, to be directed to a Prussian ct. or judge, without the clause requiring the comr. to be sworn. From the affidavit in support of the rule, the above facts appeared; & it appeared, further, from the opinion of a Prussian lawyer, that the Prussian rules of evidence were different from the English, especially that examination & cross-examination by counsel was not permitted:—Held: on payment of the costs of the first commission by deft., a commission should be directed to a Prussian judge, as an individual, & it ought not to be assumed that the evidence would be taken improperly, & in the event of such impropriety occurring, an objection might be made at nisi prius, especially as, by this course, an opportunity would be given of raising, by error upon bill of exceptions, the question whether the issuing of such commission was within the power of this ct.—LUMLEY v. GYE (1854), 3 E. & B. 114; 2 C. L. R. 936; 23 L. J. Q. B. 112; 22 L. T. O. S. 220; 18 Jur. 466; 118 E. R. 1083.

L. Discharge of Order.

6631. On ground of delay.]—An order of the Ct. of Ch. directed the new trial of an issue, & a commission for examination of witnesses abroad; & that the trial of the issue should be stayed until the return of the commission. The parties having improperly delayed the execution & return of the commission, upon application to the ct. the whole of the original order was discharged. But upon appeal:—Held: the laches as to the commission ought not to affect the right to proceed to a new trial of the issue, & as regard this last point, the order would be reversed, with special directions.—COLVIN v. CAMPION (1831), 8 Bli. N. S. 523; 5 E. R. 1037, H. L.

6632. Rule absolute in first instance—If order originally obtained by applicant.]—The ct. will grant a rule absolute in the first instance, for quashing a commission to examine witnesses pursuant to Evidence on Commission Act, 1831 (c. 22), s. 4, where the commission has been granted, & the application is made at the instance of pltf.—HODGES v. DALY (1840), 8 Dowl. 308; 4 Jur. 988.

A. In General.

See, now, R. S. C., Ord. 37, rr. 10–12.

6633. When witness examined before examiner—Commission not appointed.]—The general rule is that witnesses resident in London or its neighbourhood ought to be examined before the examiner, & not under a commission.

Semble: the rule is not inflexible.—SOWDON v. MAIRIOTT (1846), 2 Coll. 578; 63 E. R. 869.

B. The Application.

6634. Contents of—Name of proposed examiner.]—On an application under Evidence on Com-returned, another commission to examine the same witness on matters not gone into on the first commission, can only be granted in very peculiar circumstances, & the necessity of it must be clearly shown by affidavit. The second commission should be limited in its terms.—LIGHT v. ABEL (1865), N. B. Dig. 355.—CAN.

6638. Order expressed generally Where all witnesses & parties resident in country.—Where a special examiner is appointed in the country, & the examiner, solr., & parties there, the ct. will order the examination & cross-examination of witnesses generally there, on the assumption that it shall apply to witnesses on both sides.—Re FORSTER'S TRUSTS (1851), 2 W. R. 679.

6639. Should not state liberty to give depositions in evidence.—An order to take the examination of a witness de bene esse ought not to state that the party is to be at liberty to give such depositions in evidence at the trial, as it may be that the witness will then be capable of being examined, & his incapacity will have to be shown before leave will be given at the trial to use the evidence.

The examination would be taken not by a special examiner, but before the examiner in rotation.—BURTON v. NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE RY. CO. (1887), 35 W. R. 536.

6642. Omission to sign deposition—Whether receivable.—The omission by an examiner to sign his name to the depositions of a witness, taken by him & returned to the Record & Writ Clerk's Office, is not such an irregularity as to prevent the ct. from directing them to be filed, on terms; but where, in a suit at issue before the new practice came into operation, a special examiner had been appointed by order of the ct., but no commission had been issued according to the old practice, & witnesses were examined upon interrogatories & not orally, & there had been great delay, the ct.

refused to order the depositions to be filed.—STEPHENS v. WANKLIN, STEPHENS v. SALWAY (1854), 19 Beav. 585; 52 E. R. 478.

6644. ———.]—The examiner to the ct., before whom a witness had been examined, died without having signed the deposition:—Held: the deposition was ordered to be filed without any signature.—FELTHOUSE v. BAILEY (1866), 11 W. R. 827.

E. Remuneration of Examiner.

6645. By whom payable — Party obtaining order.—

The party who obtains an order for the examination of witnesses before an examiner, which gives liberty to the other parties to examine witnesses, may properly be ordered under R. S. C., Ord. 37, r. 50, to pay to the examiner all his fees & expenses of the examination including those on account of the examination of witnesses on behalf of the other party.—*LINLEY v. 6647. ———.]—The ct. will not grant a mandamus to examine witnesses abroad, unless it be perfectly clear that the same object cannot be obtained by issuing a commission.—FARNWORTH v. HYDE (1863), 14 C. B. N. S. 719; 2 New Rep. 279; 11 W. R. 783; 113 E. R. 627.

6648. Not refused on ground of expense.—Distance & the smallness of the amount of pltf.'s claim form no ground for refusing a writ in the nature of a mandamus for the examination of witnesses abroad on behalf of deft. under Evidence on Commission Act, 1831 (c. 22).—*DYE v. D. Costs.

See, generally, Sect. 5, post.

6659. General rule—Costs costs in cause.—(1) A mandamus was granted to examine deft. in India, on his own behalf, he being an officer who had left England after action brought to rejoin his regiment.

(2) The costs in such cases will be costs in the cause, except under special circumstances.—BRUNTON v. HARDY (1862), 10 W. R. 562.

6660. Discretion of judge trying cause.—Upon application for a mandamus to examine witnesses in India, with a view to prove, on behalf of pltf., who moved for the commission, a retainer as his attorney by deft., the ct. left the question of costs to the discretion of the judge at nisi prius.—WRIGHT v. CAPE (1843), 7 Jur. 374.

A. In General.

See, now, R. S. C., Ord. 37, r. 6A, B, C, Appendix K, Forms 37A., 37B., 37CCC.

6662. May be issued—In addition to order for examination abroad before special examiner.—An examination of witnesses abroad before a special examiner, ordered under R. S. C., Ord. 37, r. 5, is not an ordinary commission so as to prevent the issuing of letters of request in addition thereto under r. 6 A of the same order.—MASON & BARRY, LTD. v. COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE (1890), 38 W. R. 685, D. C.

6663. Purpose of issue—Examination of witnesses—Not production of documents alone.—An order for letters of request to issue to a foreign ct., under R. S. C., Ord. 37, r. 6 A, can only be made where it is sought to examine witnesses under the order, & the ct. has no jurisdiction to make such an order where production of documents alone is asked for.—CAPE COPPER CO. v. 6664. To British colony.—Where witnesses are resident in a colony, & it is desired that they should be examined, the order for their examination may take the form of a request to the judge of the colony to examine them.—FRASER v. NEVINS, WELSH & CO. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 448, C. A.

6665. —.—South Africa.]—A co., who were manufacturers of lime juice, commenced an action against another co. for infringement of pltf.'s trade marks & for passing off their lime juice as pltf.'s lime juice. Pltfs. alleged that they owned certain trade marks & that they sold their lime juice in bottles which were moulded with representations of their trade marks, & they alleged that the moulding on deft.'s bottles was calculated to deceive. Both pltfs. & defts. put labels on their bottles, but pltfs. alleged that such labels frequently got rubbed off. Both firms exported their lime juice to other countries, including South Africa. Pltfs. made an application for a commission to take evidence in South Africa or alternatively for letters of request to issue. They stated that they wished to obtain evidence as to the circumstances & conditions of the trade in South Africa. The application came before ASTBURY, J., in chambers, to whom certain proofs of the proposed witnesses were submitted by pltfs., & an order was made for letters of request to issue. Leave was given to defts. to appeal, & they appealed:—Held: the order made was right, & the appeal would be dismissed with costs.—ROSE (L.) & CO., LTD. v. RIDDLE (ALEXANDER) & CO., LTD. 6671. — What amounts to.—(1) A judge's order directed a commission to issue to four comrs. at Newfoundland. The commission directed the comrs. to summon the witnesses, at a certain day & place, to be appointed by them for that purpose, in Newfoundland, & then & there examine them apart, & visd voce. The commission also directed the commission & depositions to be returned, sealed up. At the trial it was proved that a packet of papers had been brought to the master's office, sealed up, by some person unknown, containing a commission, which was identified as that issued under the order, & also returns, proved to be in the handwriting of the persons named in the commission. It was also proved that the persons so named lived in Newfoundland:—Held: the return of the commission was sufficiently proved.

(2) The examinations did not purport to be taken apart:—Held: it must be presumed they were duly taken.—SIMMS v. HENDERSON, HENDERSON v. HENDERSON (1848), 11 Q. B. 1015; 3 New Pract. Cas. 1349B; 17 L. J. Q. B. 209; 11 L. T. O. S. 513; 12 Jur. 773; 116 E. R. 752.

PART VIII. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.

6679. 1. Presumption that directions complied with—That oath taken by commissioners.—Depositions taken abroad under a commission & returned with the commission, are admissible in evidence without proof that the comrs. had taken the oath prescribed by the commission, or return by them to that effect. Such oath is required to be taken, but the ct. will presume that this has been done, nothing appearing to the contrary.—WILMOT v. HAWES (1841), 1 Kerr. 351.—CAN.

a. — As to sealing.—Where depositions taken under a commission are returned to the ct. enclosed in an envelope, addressed as directed by the statute & sealed up, it will be presumed that the seal is that of the comr. who took the deposition.—DOR d. HEATHCOTE v. HUGHES (1878), 2 P. & B. 296.—CAN.

f. Return not under seal.—Where the execution of a commission to examine witnesses in U.S.A. was proved by the affidavit of the comr. named therein, & the return thereof made under his hand, without his seal:—Held: under the Provincial statute 2 Geo. IV. c. 1, the execution was sufficiently authenticated.—BEACH v. ODELL (1834), 4 O. S. 8.—CAN.

g. Affidavit of execution.—Certificate signed by a comr., certifying that the sheets of paper annexed were furnished to him by the stenographer as containing a transcript of his notes of evidence, followed by the type-written evidence, is a sufficient compliance with Ord. 37, r. 16, requiring the deposition to be authenticated by the signature of the comr. & with the commission requiring the deposition to be signed by the comr.—SIMPSON v. MALCOLM (1914), 43 N. B. R. 79.—CAN.

h. — Absence of.—Where a commission to a foreign country has been executed & returned, & remains unopened, & it is supposed that there is no proper affidavit of the execution attached, the ct. will order it to be returned to the comrs.—DOR d. HAY v. HUNT (1851), 1 P. R. 44.—CAN.

k. — — — — ——At the commencement of the trial, the counsel for deft. not being present, the counsel for plff. opened his case, & while he was reading evidence taken under a commission at Montreal, the counsel for deft. appeared & objected to the commission, as the envelope enclosing it was not under the hand & seal of the comr., & there was no affidavit of the due taking:—Held: the objection was fatal, & taken in time.—KEFFORD v. McDONALD (1864), 14 C. P. 150.—CAN.

l. — Signature of deponent.—The affidavit of the due taking of the commission need not be signed by deponent.—WILMOT v. WADSWORTH (1853), 10 U. C. R. 594.—CAN.

m. — Form of.—It is no objection to an affidavit of execution of a commission to take evidence abroad, that the contractions "plff." & "deft." were used in the intituling of it,—

6673. Directions for return must be complied with—Copy examinations sent instead of original.—CLAY v. STEPHENSON, No. 6491, ante.

6674. — What amounts to sealing.—A return of the examination of a witness with the signature of the comr. appended thereto in a sealed envelope, is a good compliance with the judge's order, which requires the examination to be returned under the hand & seal of the comr., although the seal on the envelope is the only one connected with the return.—DOE d. BAKER v. WINCHESTER (1850), 15 L. T. O. S. 68.

6675. — Mode of examination.—A requisition with interrogatories & cross-interrogatories annexed to it, issued to a French ct. to examine a witness resident in France. The judge of the French ct. having the interrogatories & cross-interrogatories before him, examined the witness by putting to him such questions as he deemed convenient, & no questions were put or suggested by the counsel & agent of the parties who were present at the examination. The ct. doubted whether the depositions so taken & returned under the requisition by the French ct. was admissible in evidence, but declined to reject it.—HITCHINS v. HITCHINS (1866), L. R. 1 P. & D. 153; 35 L. J. P. & M. 62; 14 L. T. 258.

On the commission was indorsed the following return: "The return of the within written commission will appear by the depositions, affidavits, & papers thereunto annexed."—Held: the examination or depositions, which were in effect held to be synonymous terms, was, or were, fully identified as the

SUB-SECT. 2.—ADMISSIBILITY IN EVIDENCE.

A. In General.

6681. Objection must be taken at examination.—Under a commission to take evidence abroad in an examination of the witness under & annexed to the commission.—MUCKLE v. LUDLOW (1866), 16 C. P. 420.—CAN.

p. Return to wrong office.—An objection taken at Nisi Prius to the admission of evidence taken under a commission, on the ground that the commission was not returned to the office of the Deputy Clerk of the Crown pursuant to the Judge's order:—Held: bad.—STEVENSON v. RAE (1853), 2 C. P. 406.—CAN.

q. Necessity for diligence to obtain return.—Postponement of trial.—Def't., in order to obtain a continuance on the ground of a commission not being returned, must show that he has used due diligence to obtain its return in time.—LANDRY v. JONES (1854), James, 3 H.—CAN.

s. Annexing papers.—Papers enclosed & returned with a commission to examine witnesses, & referred to by the witnesses, need not be annexed to the depositions, if sufficiently identified. It will be presumed that a commission produced in ct. is in the same state as it came from the comrs., & that the exhibits enclosed are those referred to in the depositions.—LAWTON v. TARBATT (1858), 4 All. 1.—CAN.

t. Form of Witness's full name not given.—Upon a commission the name of one witness was stated to be William Lansing Flynn, & in the return of the comrs., they stated they had reduced to writing the answers of William L. Flynn:—Held: not to vitiate the commission.—COMSTOCK v. TYRRELL (1862), 12 C. P. 173.—CAN.

u. Opening.—Of return.—No order is necessary for leave to open a foreign commission duly returned. The proper practice is to open it without order, in the presence of all parties.—CHALMERS v. PIGOTT (circa 1863), 1 Ch. Ch. 282.—CAN.

v. ——— In envelope.—A commission enclosed in an envelope, which came to hand with an opening not large enough to allow of the escape of the papers contained therein is sufficiently close to render it admissible. Such commission need not be endorsed with the style of the cause in which it is issued.—FRANK v. CARSON (1865), 15 C. P. 135.—CAN.

w. ——— Time for.—A judge has no power, without consent of parties, to open the commission before the jury are sworn.—BURPER v. CARVILL (1875), 3 P.ug. 141.—CAN.

x. ——— Effect of.—Where a foreign commission had been opened before trial for the convenience of parties, it is too late at the trial to object to the mode of its execution.—WALTON v. APOHIN (1884), 5 O. R. 65.—CAN.

y. ——— Using evidence before trial.—The ct. in permitting a foreign commission to be opened before the trial, will not impose restrictions as to the use to be made of the knowledge of the evidence which would be acquired by the solrs. by such opening.—SMITH v. GREY (1886), 11 P. R. 238.—CAN.

z. ———.—A commission produced at the trial in an envelope open at both ends, though otherwise well secured, & under the hand & seal of the comr., is properly admitted in evidence.—GRAHAM v. STEWART (1865), 15 C. P. 169.—CAN.

aa. Waiver of objections.—Formalities prescribed by statute.—A party who joins in acting under a commission, which contains specific directions as to the mode of return, cannot afterwards object that certain formalities prescribed by the statute, but not by the commission, have been omitted.—FRANK v. CARSON (1865), 15 C. P. 135.—CAN.

bb. Return by one of two commissioners.—Where a commission issues to two comrs. for the examination of witnesses & some evidence is properly taken before both, one comr. may return the commission & is not bound to wait an indefinite time to permit other witnesses to be examined.—BURPER v. CARVILL (1875), 3 P.ug. 141.—CAN.

cc. Endorsement on envelope enclosing.—BANQUE VILLE MARIE v. LORDLY (1881), 21 N. B. R. 273.—CAN.

dd. Refusal of one commissioner to sign.—The refusal of one of two comrs. to sign the return does not vitiate it.—MILLVILLE MUTUAL MARINE & FIRE INSURANCE CO. v. DRISCOLL (1884), 11 S. C. R. 183.—CAN.

ee. Whether return should show.—How commissioners were sworn.—A commission directed that before proceeding to examine witnesses the comrs. should take an oath in the form indorsed on the commission. The return stated that the comrs. were severally duly sworn, & that all things were had, done, taken, & performed by them as required by the commission:—Held: sufficient.—HARBOUR v. ROBERTS (1884), 24 N. B. R. 211.—CAN.

ff. Preventing return.—HEESE v. ST. JOHN RY. CO. (1899), 20 C. L. T. 113; 30 S. C. R. 218.—CAN.

gg. Return not under cover.—Examination sealed.—At the trial ptf.'s counsel tendered the depositions of witnesses taken under the order as evidence upon an issue joined between them & def't. as to the ownership of the subject-matter of the action, the depositions relating solely to that question & that def't.'s counsel objected to their admission since they had been found not under cover:—Held: as action, copies of certain documents & answers of witnesses with regard to the contents of such documents were received by the comrs. in e on behalf of ptf., without objection on the part of def't., who joined in the commission. The copy documents were appended to the depositions & returned by the comrs.:—Held: the secondary evidence of the documents having been taken under the commission, without objection on the part of def't., was receivable before an arbitrator to whom the action was referred, & it was too late then to take objection on the ground that the original documents were not produced.—ROBINSON v. DAVIES (1879), 5 Q. B. D. 26; 49 L. J. Q. B. 218; 28 W. R. 255, D. C.

6682. ———.—A commission was issued abroad for the purpose of taking the evidence of a witness touching certain matters relating to an action brought by ptfs. against def't. The witness they were under the examiner's seal they should be admitted.—CRAMER v. BELL (1907), 6 W. L. R. 382.—CAN.

aa. Irregularities in return.—Delay in moving to suppress.—The return to a commission issued for the taking of depositions in a foreign country did not show, in a number of respects, that the directions of the commission had been complied with. Ptff., having given notice, applied, at the opening of the trial, to suppress the depositions. As in the opinion of the ct., the objections were based only on "irregularities," & not on "matters of substance," & it did not appear that any harm had been or might be done by the non-compliance with the directions of the commission, & the delay in moving to suppress was unreasonable:—Held: the depositions were admissible.—DECREAN v. VANCANNEY (1913), 25 W. L. R. 27; 6 Alta. L. R. 384.—CAN.

PART VIII. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 2.—A.

6681 i. Objection must be taken at examination.—The proper time to strike inadmissible evidence out of a commission is at the hearing, & not in chambers before the hearing.—BELL v. CLARKE (1881), 10 V. L. R. 283.—AUS.

6681 ii. ———.—Def't. having made one objection to the evidence which was overruled, allowed it to be read, & commented upon it:—Held: he was precluded from taking any further exceptions.—FARREL v. STEPHENS (1859), 17 U. C. R. 250.—CAN.

6681 iii. ———.—A commission, in which def't. joined, was addressed to two comrs., with power to either of them to act. One comr. only, acted, & took the depositions of the witnesses produced by ptff., def't. not being present or represented by counsel. Some of the evidence given by ptff.'s witnesses was legally inadmissible, & when offered on the trial def't.'s counsel objected to its reception, but the presiding judge admitted it:—Held: the fact of the evidence not having been objected to on behalf of def't. at the time the witnesses were examined before the comrs. did not preclude def't. from objecting to it on the trial, & it should have been rejected.—BOSTON BELTING CO. v. GABEL (1880), 20 N. B. R. 347.—CAN.

6681 v. ———.—Documents attached to the return of a commission & identified with the documents referred to in objected to be sworn & was allowed by the comr. to affirm. His evidence was then taken. The deposition was regular upon the face of it, & was returned by the comr. in the following terms: "Affirmed before me, the witness objecting to an oath." Pltfs. were represented at the commission, but took no objection at the time to the evidence being given upon affirmation; subsequently, however, they applied at chambers to have the deposition taken off the file on affidavits showing that the witness was not a person who was entitled to affirm:—Held: the objection should have been taken at the time, & ought not now to be entertained, there being nothing on the face of the deposition itself to show that it was not properly taken.—RICHARDS, TWEEDY & Co. v. HOUGH (1882), 51 L. J. Q. B. 361; sub nom. RICKARDS v. HOUGH, 30 W. R. 676, D. C.

6684. —.]—It is no objection at nisi prius to the reception of depositions taken on interrogatories, that there was an alleged breach of faith on the part of deft. in examining witnesses on interrogatories at all. But if there was any irregularity in proceeding with the commission, as, for instance, if it were executed without any notice to pltf. to enable him, if he pleased, to put cross-interrogatories, such irregularity is a good objection to the admissibility of the depositions, & the ct., if they have been received at nisi prius, will grant a new trial, & direct a fresh commission to be issued.

To enable a witness to use a paper written by himself for the purpose of refreshing his memory, it must be shown that the paper was written, contemporaneously with the transaction it refers to. A witness, who had been examined on interrogatories in a foreign country, stated in one of his answers, the contents of a letter which was not produced. On the trial of the cause in England:—Held: so much of the answer as related to the contents of the letter was not receivable in evidence, although it was urged in support of its admissibility that there were no means, as the witness was out of the jurisdiction of the English Cts., of compelling the production of the letter.—STEINKELLER v. NEWTON (1838), 9 C. & P. 313, the evidence, may be read at the hearing of the suit in which the commission issued, unless they have been objected to on being tendered in evidence before the comr. Objections to the admissibility of such documents cannot be taken at the hearing of the suit.—STRUTHERS v. WHEELER (1880), 6 C. L. R. 109.—IND.

q. —.]—Fresh objection at trial.—If, when evidence is taken before comr., a document is tendered & objected to on any ground, the opposite party is not precluded from objecting to the document at the trial on any other ground. It is not necessary to state all the objections to the admissibility of a document when it is first tendered, but the party objecting is at liberty to take any fresh objection whenever the party producing the document tenders it in evidence.—*RALLI v. 6685. —.]—Pltf. obtained a judge's order for a commission to examine witnesses. The parties having agreed upon A. & B. as comrs., pltf. obtained another order to examine witnesses upon interrogatories before A. & B., without describing them as comrs., & without referring to any commission. Deft. afterwards withdrew the name of B., his comr., & declined to proceed with the examination, upon the ground that the second order was informal. Pltf. then obtained a further order to examine witnesses before A. on interrogatories, ex p.:—Held: the examinations taken under the last order were admissible in evidence, although deft. had received no notice of the time & place of taking the examinations.—M'COMBIE v. ANTON (1843), 6 Man. & G. 27; 6 Scott, N. R. 923; 1 L. T. O. S. 230; 134 E. R. 795.

6686. —.]—By a judge's order of June 11, 1838, a commission issued to examine witnesses in Scotland, & one of the terms was, that pltf. should furnish deft. with the names of the witnesses ten days before the issuing of the commission. Upon an affidavit that S., one of the witnesses, was about to proceed to America, an order of June 19 authorised the issuing of the commission forthwith, & it was issued the next day. The second order provided, that, as to the witnesses other than S., deft. was to have a copy of the interrogatories & notice of their examination twenty days before the first appointment. No list of witnesses was delivered to deft., nor was the name of any witness communicated to him, except that of S.:—Held: this omission rendered their depositions inadmissible.

By the Order of June 19, a copy of the interrogatories on which S. was to be examined was to be delivered to deft. on that day, & he was to have six days' notice of his examination:—Held: a notice by the opposite party, not signed or directed by the comrs., was sufficient. *SCOTT v. Pltf. in opening his case claimed the right to refer to the evidence taken on commission as part of the record of the suit. r. Alleged refusal to answer questions.]—It was objected that on plff.'s examination under commission he had refused to answer some questions. From the shorthand notes it appeared that counsel for plff. at the examination interposed some objections, & told plff. that he need not answer certain questions. There was nothing to show that deff.'s counsel pressed for an answer:—Held: the questions had been abandoned & the evidence could be read.—ALLAN v. INTER-OCEAN PRESSD BRICK CO. (1909), 11 W. L. R. 393.—CAN.

The comrs. examined witnesses, & took down their depositions in writing, & afterwards communicated the effect of them to the party sought to be affected by the proceedings, but who had no opportunity of being present at the examination, or of cross-examining the witnesses. On a subsequent reference to arbn. of these accounts:—Held: the arbitrators could not receive, as evidence, the depositions taken before the comrs.

In order to render depositions taken under judicial proceedings evidence against a party, he must have had an opportunity to be present at the examination, & to cross-examine the witnesses.—A. G. v. DAVISON (1825), McCle. & Yo. 160; 148 E. R. 366, Ex. Ch.

t. Satisfactory cross-examination only to be had at trial.]—Plffs. sued deff. upon a promissory note, made by deff. to M., & purchased by plffs. Plffs. & M. were both out of the jurisdiction. Deff. alleged that the note was procured by fraud, in respect of which he had recovered unsatisfied judgment against M., & that plffs. were really suing for the benefit of M. M. was liable to plffs. as indorser, & was financially good for payment. Plffs. had been granted an order to take the deposition of their president in Missouri, but the deposition was not to be used at the trial unless a judge should so order. In view of the allegations in the statement of defence & the fact that a number of similar cases had been before the ct. previously with respect to notes given to M., plff.'s application for leave to use the deposition at the trial was refused; it was considered that the witness could not be satisfactorily cross-examined except at the trial.—*FIDELITY TRUST CO. v. At the trial, pltf.'s counsel abandoned that part of his case to which the evidence under the commission applied, & deft. had a verdict on that issue:—Held: deft. was entitled to the costs of the commission.—JEWELL v. PARR (1856), 17 C. B. 636; 25 L. J. C. P. 179; 139 E. R. 1226; subsequent proceedings (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 809.

6743. — Where evidence not used at trial.—In the taxation of the costs of an action in which the examination of a witness under the common order before trial has not been used at the trial for some reason, such as the attendance of the witness at the trial or the taking of a judgment by consent, the costs of the examination should not be disallowed under R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (29), merely on the ground that the use of the examination had become unnecessary. The true test in exercising the discretion given to the taxing master by the rule is whether the costs of the examination were "necessary or proper for the attainment of justice" under the circumstances existing at the time the examination was ordered, irrespective of the eventual state of circumstances at the trial.

There is no hard & fast rule of taxation that the costs of a proceeding should not be allowed unless it has been actually used for some purpose.—BARTLETT v. HIGGINS, [1901] 2 K. B. 230; 70 L. J. K. B. 621; 84 L. T. 509; 49 W. R. 449, C. A.

6744. What costs will be allowed—Expenses of bringing witnesses to place named for examination.—If the rule of ct. for the examination of witnesses by commission express that the depositions of witnesses at H. & L. are to be taken, & the commission is directed to persons at H., the expenses of bringing witnesses from L. to H. ought to be allowed upon taxation.—MULLER v. HARTSHORNE (1803), 3 Bos. & P. 556; 127 E. R. 300.

q. — Evidence not establishing claim on which successful.—Where a commission is issued apparently to obtain evidence to establish a particular average loss, & some slight evidence is obtained tending to show a general average loss, & pltf. succeeds in establishing the latter, but fails to make out the former claim, he is not entitled to the costs of the commission.—SEARLE v. NEW ZEALAND INSURANCE CO. (1885), 4 N. Z. L. R. 48.—N.Z.

r. — Witness afterwards examined at trial.—The evidence of a witness was taken on commission, on behalf of a pursuer, on Mar. 1. The witness attended the trial on Mar. 31, & was examined as a witness. The unsuccessful defenders having objected to the auditor's report on pursuer's account of expenses, in so far as it allowed the expenses of taking the evidence of the witness on commission:—Held: the execution of the commission was not reasonably necessary, & objection sustained.—SPRIN v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO., [1921] S. C. 889; 58 Sc. L. R. 573.—SCOT.

s. — *Commission on first trial of action—Depositions read on new trial—& witness examined videlicet.*—In an action for libel a new trial was ordered; after which it was consented that the deposition of the witnesses, taken under a commission obtained by pltf., & made use of in evidence, might be used again on the next trial, whereat the witness himself appeared, & was examined for pltf. videlicet;

6743 iv. — — — — —. — *In an action for libel defts. obtained a commission & had the evidence of certain witnesses out of the jurisdiction taken thereunder for use at the trial. The evidence, however, was not used:—Held: defts. were entitled to tax against pltf. the costs of executing the commission.*—RONDOT v. MONETARY TIMES PRINTING CO. (1898), 18 P. R. 141.—CAN.

6743 vii. — — — — —. — *When a commission to take evidence abroad is taken out bond fide, the ct. will allow the costs of same to the successful party notwithstanding that the witness has returned previous to the trial & that the evidence so taken abroad has not been used at the trial.*—MORRISON v. HOGAN (1857), 4 Nfld. L. R. 180.—NFLD.

p. — Plaintiff not proceeding to trial.—Notice of trial was given & duly countermanded. Deft. obtained a judgment as in case of nonsuit, pltf. not having proceeded to trial according to the practice, & claimed costs of a commission to examine witnesses in the U.S.:—Held: the costs of the commission should be allowed, notwithstanding the countermand.—FRAS trial, on terms that a witness going abroad should be examined on interrogatories:—Held: pltf., having detained the witness until the trial, after he had been examined on interrogatories & cross-examined by deft., was entitled to the costs of the detention, but deft. was entitled to have his costs of the cross-examination interrogatories deducted.—PATTERSON v. EVANS (1819), 1 Chit. 89.

6746. — Attendance of attorney.—The ct. will not interfere with the discretion of the master as to the costs of an attorney for going abroad to attend a commission for the examination of a witness.—CORNET v. DEMPSEY (1841), 1 Dowl. N. S. 422.

Annotation:—Reld. Le Cocq v. S. E. Ry. (1866), 7 B. & S. 415.

6747. — ——The costs of a London attorney attending the execution of a commission for the examination of witnesses in the country may, under special circumstances, be allowed on taxation of costs between party & party.

Under particular circumstances the ct. allowed the comr. a small fee for perusing the pleadings.—HOWELL v. TYLER (1843), 2 Y. & C. Ch. Cas. 284; 12 L. J. Ch. 223; 7 Jur. 525; 63 E. R. 125.

6748. — Attendance of counsel abroad.—To entitle the successful party in an action to the costs of the attendance of counsel on a commission to examine witnesses abroad, it must be shown that the attendance of counsel was necessary for the conduct of the commission.—Le Cocq v. SOUTH EASTERN RY. CO. (1866), 7 B. & S. 415; 14 L. T. 401; 14 W. R. 649.

6749. — Attendance of one counsel before examiner.—The costs of more than one counsel attending the examination of witnesses before an examiner will not be allowed on taxation.—HALLOWS v. FERNIE (1867), 17 L. T. 347; 16 W. R. 175.

6750. — Costs of shorthand writer.—On a taxation of a solr.'s bill of great complexity it became necessary to examine witnesses orally before the taxing master, who, before the examination, stated his opinion to be that a shorthand writer ought to be employed. Neither party objected, each employed a shorthand writer, & the taxing master stated that he should rely on the notes. More than one-sixth having been taxed off, he allowed against the solr. half the costs of the shorthand notes of the evidence, on the ground that the parties ought to have employed one shorthand writer. The solr. objected to the allowance of any part of the expense of the shorthand notes:—Held: neither a judge nor taxing master had jurisdiction to order a shorthand note of evidence to be taken, but as neither party had objected to having it taken, but had acceded to the taxing master's view, the allowance to the successful party of the same costs as if they had agreed on one shorthand writer ought not to be disturbed.—Re HILLEARY & TAYLOR (1887), 36 Ch. D. 262; 56 L. J. Ch. 758; 56 L. T. 867; 35 W. R. 705; 3 T. L. R. 642, C. A.

6751. On what scale allowed—Scale allowed in country where evidence taken.—In the course of a suit in this country, special examiners were appointed to take evidence in Sydney. That evidence was duly taken. The costs of taking it, which were very heavy, were taxed as between solr. & client, at Sydney, & paid by defts. The scale of taxation there was larger than here. The bill in the suit was dismissed by the Master of the Rolls at the hearing, & ultimately on appeal by the House of Lords. Upon the question what was the proper course to adopt with reference to the final taxation of the costs of taking the evidence at Sydney:—Held: the bill of costs ought to be finally taxed in this country on the same scale as it would have been taxed in Australia, & if the taxing master here felt any difficulty, he must refer to Sydney for information to guide him.—WENTWORTH v. LLOYD (1865), 31 Beav. 455; 12 L. T. 226; 13 W. R. 486; 55 E. R. 711.

after which his depositions under the commission were put in & read with the consent of all parties:—Held: the taxing officer was right in disallowing the expenses of the commission.—ANDREWS v. WILSON (1846), 3 Kerr. 127.—CAN.

t. — Examination of plaintiff not completed.—Owing to ill-health—Used by defendant.—An order was obtained by pltf., who sued for damages for bodily injuries sustained, for his own examination de bene esse before the trial, but owing to the state of his health his examination was not completed:—Held: the examination of pltf. de bene esse was a proper & reasonable proceeding, & as the failure to complete it was through no fault of pltf. or his solr., & as it was not without use to defts., the costs of it should have been taxed to pltf. as part of the costs of the action.—CARTY v. LONDON (CITY) (1889), 13 P. R. 285.—CAN.

6748 i. What costs will be allowed—Attendance of counsel abroad.—The ct. will not usually give the successful party the costs of counsel attending a commission to examine witnesses abroad, even though the opposite side employed counsel. It must be shown there was something special in the case necessitating such employment. The ct. will rarely interfere with the discretion of the taxing master.—MONROE v. FALLE (1882), 6 Nfld. L. R. 407.—NFLD.

b. — ——Where a judge's order ordering a commission to issue for the examination of witnesses stated that the costs of the order, of the examination, & of the proceedings incidental to it were to be taxed & be costs in the cause, the costs of the solr. of the successful party who attended the commission were restricted to such reasonable costs as would have been allowed for an agent residing in the place where the commission was held.—BANK OF NEW ZEALAND v. PITT (1890), 8 N. Z. L. R. 496.—N.Z.

c. — Fees of physician attending party during examination.—Amount already included in verdict.—Pltf.'s own physician attended on him during an examination de bene esse, & was called as a witness at the trial, when he stated what his charges for attendance on the pltf. would amount to:—Held: there being nothing to show that he did not include in his statement the charges for attendance at the examination, they must be taken to have been included in the verdict, & could not be taxed to pltf. as part of the costs of the action.—CARTY v. LONDON (CITY) (1889), 13 P. R. 285.—CAN.

d. Principle of taxation.—Where, in a suit in India, a commission to take evidence has been issued to England, the bill of costs with respect to such commission is to be taxed by the taxing master of the ct. in India, & not in England. It is to be taxed on the same scale & on the same principle as would be adopted in England, & if the taxing master finds any difficulty, he must refer to England for information.—GOULDAS BULARDAS MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. v. SCOTT (1890), 1 L. R. 15 Bom. 209.—IND.

e. Commission sued out unnecessarily.—Any party to an inquiry who unnecessarily sues out a commission must pay the costs of it in any event.—DONOVAN v. THOMPSON (1824), 1 Hog. 150.—IR.

f. Commission sued out at party's own expense.—Costs of cross-examination by opponent.—A party who sues out a commission at his own expense must pay the costs of cross-examination of his witnesses by his opponent.—O'HARA v. O'HARA (1825), 1 Hog. 234.—IR.

6754. Form of bill.]—HUNT v. WHITE (1598), Calendars of Chancery Proceedings temp. Queen Elizabeth, Vol. I., p. cxlvii.

6755. Extent of powers.]—It was not intended by 5 & 6 Vict., c. 69, to give to the person who wished to perpetuate testimony, as against the person with whom he contemplated a future litigation rights of any stronger character than those which would be possessed by him in a suit actually commenced; & it is of course that, when parties are in immediate litigation, they cannot investigate the title deeds of the opponent.

6759. Distinguished from bill of discovery.]—(1) The distinctions between a bill to perpetuate testimony & a bill of discovery are: that the former is not a bill of discovery in the strict technical sense of the term; that a bill of discovery must be in aid of proceedings pending or about to be instituted but the existence of such proceedings would be fatal to a bill to perpetuate testimony; that a bill to perpetuate testimony cannot, by amendment be converted into a bill of discovery.

SUB-SECT. 2.—THAT PLAINTIFF HAS AN INTEREST.

6789. General rule—Any interest however slight.—(1) A bill was filed to perpetuate testimony of the legitimacy of plffs., entitled in remainder in tail after an estate for life. On demurrer by the seventh & eighth in remainder after plffs. & the other defts., all being infants:—Held: as any interest, however slight, was sufficient, this would be overruled.

(2) The ct. will not perpetuate testimony of a right, which may be immediately barred by deft.—DURSLEY (LORD) v. FITZHARDINGE BERKELEY (1801), 6 Ves. 251; 31 E. R. 1036, L. 6790. —[.]—To support a bill to perpetuate testimony plff. must have an interest, but the minuteness or remoteness of it is no objection. A mere contingency, however near & valuable, with the exception of the case of a wager, the expectation of issue in tail, heir apparent, or next of kin of a lunatic, is not sufficient. Therefore on demurrer to a bill by tenant in tail in remainder & his issue to perpetuate testimony of the validity of his marriage:—Held: it would be allowed.

Deft. put in a voluntary answer, whereby he deposed that it was not true that pltf. was in possession, but, on the contrary, that he, deft., was in possession. Pltf. replied. Thereupon, deft. did not plead, but moved to dismiss pltf.'s bill on the ground that a pltf. out of possession could not bring a bill of this nature without alleging that he could not immediately bring an action of ejectment:—Held: the motion must stand over, with liberty to either party to examine such witnesses as he might be advised to prove that he was in possession, & no costs would be ordered.—*BRISTOCKE v. On the examination & cross-examination of an aged & infirm witness labouring under deafness the questions were put, & answers received, through the medium of the daughter of the witness; & the examiner certified that the state of the witness did not permit the examination to be proceeded with without danger to her life; & that much of the cross-examination, & all the re-examination, had been pretermitted. — Evidence given in former proceedings.—See, generally, Part II., Sect. 10, ante.

6838. — Admissions for purposes of former trial.—Previously to the trial of an ejectment deft.'s then attorney signed admissions commencing: "We hereby agree to admit on the trial of this cause," etc. On the trial the admissions were read. The Ct. of King's Bench afterwards granted a new trial, & the attorney for deft. died. The second trial took place on Feb. 11, & on Feb. 7, deft.'s then attorney gave notice to the attorney of the lessor of plff. that he should make no admissions, & the latter sent back an answer stating that the admissions already made were binding:—Held: on the second trial these admissions were receivable in evidence.—DOE d. WETHERELL v. BIRD (1835), 7 C. & P. 6, N. P.

6839. — Execution of instrument.—An agreement by the attorneys to admit on the trial of a cause the execution of an instrument, is evidence on every trial of the cause, though not renewed after the first trial.—ELTON v. LARKINS (1832), 5 C. & P. 385; 1 Mood. & R. 190, N. P.

6840. — Admission of handwriting—Under judge's order.—In an action on a bond, to which deft. had pleaded non est factum, the judge made it one of the terms of an order to change the venue, that deft. should admit the handwriting of the attesting witness on the trial of the cause. The cause was tried, & plff. obtained a verdict, which the ct. afterwards set aside & granted a new trial on payment of costs, giving deft. leave to amend the offer & set out the condition more fully, which was accordingly done, & deft. then pleaded a special plea, alleging that the condition had been altered since the execution of the bond:—Held: plff. was entitled to use the admission contained in the judge's order on the second trial, & it was binding on deft. —LANGLEY v. OXFORD (EARI.) (1836), 1 M. & W. 508; 2 Gale, 63; Tyr. & Gr. 808; 5 L. J. Ex. 166; 150 E. R. 535.

SECT. 2.—HOW FAR JUDICIALLY NOTICED.

Judicial notice, generally, see Part III., Sect. 5, ante.

6850. By House of Lords—English law—In Scottish appeal.]—The rules of English law are matters of evidence in Scottish cts., but the House of Lords, sitting as a ct. of appeal from the decision of a Scottish ct., is equally an English as a Scottish ct., & will act on its own knowledge of English law, & not be bound by the report of that law made by English lawyers to the Scottish cts.—DOUGLAS v. BROWN (1831), 2 Dow. & Cl. 171; Mont. 93; 6 F. R. 692, H. L.

6851. ——— Prevalence of English law in Ireland—In Scottish appeal.]—Appl't., the widow of a domiciled Scotsman, brought an action in the Ct. of Session for the reduction of an ante-nuptial contract, by which, in consideration of a provision made by her husband, she purported to discharge her legal rights of terce & jus relicte. The contract was executed in Ireland by appl't., who was then an infant domiciled in Ireland, but it was contemplated that she & her husband should reside, & they actually resided, during their married life, in Scotland. The grounds upon which appl't. sought to obtain reduction of the contract were, that being an infant she was incapable of contracting by the law of Ireland, & minority & lesion according to the law of Scotland, but no evidence was adduced before the Ct. of Session as to the Irish or English law with regard to the capacity of an infant to enter into contracts:—Held: notwithstanding the absence of such evidence in the ct. below, the wife's incapacity according to Irish law being a substantial ground of reduction on the record, it was competent for the House on appeal to take judicial notice of the English law prevailing in Ireland.—COOPER v. COOPER (1888), 13 App. Cas. 88; 59 L. T. 1, H. L.

6852. ——— Scottish law—In English appeal.]—Scottish parish registers or certified extracts from them, receivable in Scottish cts. as kept under the sanction of public authority, are receivable in English cts. as to matters properly & regularly recorded in them.

Certified extracts from Scottish parochial registers have been produced in this case from the General Register Office in Scotland, where they are now kept under Registration of Births, Deaths & Marriages (Scotland) Acts, 1854 (c. 80); 1855 (c. 29); 1860 (c. 85). Those statutes do not make anything evidence, either here or in Scotland, which without them would not have been so. But, may be called although not called at trial.—MALKIN v. TOBIN (1900), 7 B. C. R. 386.—CAN.

1. ——— Appeal from judge sitting alone.—On an appeal from a judgment by a trial judge sitting alone, the hearing of the appeal is a rehearing of the cause.—VOIGHT v. GROVES (1905), 12 B. C. R. 170; 3 W. L. R. 428.—CAN.

PART XI. SECT. 1.

6847 i. Reference to master for report.]—When a question arises, in consequence of estates in Scotland being devised to a specified person, the ct. will not adjudicate thereon until it has ascertained, by a reference to the Master, whether the estate did pass by the Scottish Law.—M'CALL v. M'CALL (1843), 2 Con. & Law. 184.—IR.

PART XI. SECT. 2.

m. Victorian courts—Law of Tasmania.]—The ct. can take judicial notice that Tasmania is a British Colony so acquired, that no previous law of succession would be operative in it; & will assume that its law is British, until a change be shown.—DRYDEN v. DRYDEN (1876), 2 V. L. R. 153.—AUS.

n. By Supreme Court of Canada

if your Lordships may act upon that judicial knowledge of Scottish law which you possess, as the ct. of ultimate appeal from all parts of the United Kingdom, & within my experience you have so acted upon your knowledge of English law, when questions of English law have arisen in Scottish appeals, it is certain that these registers would be receivable in Scotland, subject to just exceptions as to particular entries in them, as parochial registers kept under the sanction of public authority, for whatever they may be worth; anything imperfect or unsatisfactory, in the way in which they were generally kept, affecting only their weight in re dubia, & not their admissibility (LORD SELBORNE).—LYELL v. KENNEDY, KENNEDY v. LYELL (1880), 14 App. Cas. 437; 59 L. J. Q. B. 268; 62 L. T. 77; 38 W. R. 353. H. L.

Act, 1828 (c. 83), s. 24. Semble: if the law of a foreign country, or of a colony, be stated in any pleading, the allegation may be traversed as matter of fact; but where the allegation is that certain transactions took place abroad, by virtue of which the party pleading acquired certain rights, the virtute cuius is matter of law, & cannot be traversed.—ASTLEY v. law same as English.—The master of a French ship undertook by charterparty to convey cargo belonging to plff. from the West Indies to Liverpool. The vessel put into Fayal in distress, where the master hypothecated the vessel for repairs. On her arrival in this country proceedings were had in the Admiralty Ct. on the bottomry bond, & plff. was obliged to pay money to release the cargo. To an action on an implied promise to indemnify plff., defts. pleaded that the ship was a French ship, & defts. French subjects domiciled in France, & that by the laws of France the owners of any French ship may in all cases free themselves from the acts & engagements of the master by the abandonment of the ship & freight, & that they had done so. Plff. demurred in this plea, & also replied that he had elected that his goods should be carried to England, & that the law of the country where the charterparty was made & where the bottomry bond was given, was similar to the law of England, & not to that of France:—

6891. ———.]—It is not a mere canon of English municipal law, but a great & broad principle, which must be taken, in the absence of proof to the contrary, as part of any given system of jurisprudence, that the governing body of a corp'n. which is a trading partnership, that is to say, the ultimate authority within the society itself, cannot, in general, use the funds of the community for any purpose other than those for which they were contributed. Therefore the special powers given to such ultimate authority, whether it be the directors, or a general council, or a majority at a general meeting, by the statutes or other constituent documents of the assocn., however absolute in terms, are always to be construed as subject to a paramount & inherent restriction that they are to be exercised in subjection to the special purposes of the original bond of assocn.

English directors of a foreign railway co., which was subject to Turkish law, as to which there was no evidence before the ct., were restrained from applying the funds of the co. in the further payment of the costs of a prosecution for libel brought by them against a person who had acted as secretary to a committee of the co.; but were not, in the circumstances of the case, ordered to repay the amount of certain of the costs already so satisfied by them.—*PICKERING v. that Belgian law is the same as English law (HAMILTON, J.).

I am far from saying that it would be unreasonable for a Belgian subject or merchant domiciled in Belgium to take advantage of the Belgian law, which appears to have enabled the present pl'ts. to get the captain whose ship was in Antwerp placed in such a position that in view of the judgment he could be treated as having been domiciled on board his steamer, which was in territorial waters, & that pl'ts. should prefer a tribunal of their own country to suing defts. in their country; but I think that before taking that course it would have been unreasonable for pl'ts. not to ascertain what their legal position was (HAMILTON, J.).—*VINCENTELLI & Co. v. Each of the contracts contained a suspensory clause providing that, if owing to strikes, war, or any other cause, over which the sellers have no control, they should be prevented from shipping or delivering the ore, the obligation to ship & deliver should be suspended during the continuance of the impediment & for a reasonable time afterwards, & the clause contained a corresponding provision in favour of the buyers, suspending the obligation to receive in the like event. At the date of the outbreak of war some of the contracts had been partially executed, the others were wholly executory. The contracts with one of the German companies were in English form; those with the two other companies were made in Germany & were in the German language. The English co., by actions commenced under Legal Proceedings against Enemies Act, 1915, claimed declarations that all the contracts were abrogated on Aug. 4, 1914, by the existence of a state of war between Great Britain & Germany:—Held: as regards the German contracts, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the presumption was that the law of Germany was the same as the law of England.—*ERTEL, BIEBER & Co. v. The property included long leaseholds in the Transvaal, where the Roman-Dutch law prevails:—Held: the Roman-Dutch law, as stated in an uncontested opinion of an Ex-Chief Justice of the Transvaal, was applicable to the Transvaal leaseholds, & the widow was consequently entitled to enjoy them in specie.—*Re MOSES, MOSES v. SUB-SECT. 2.—FOREIGN LAW.

6907. Knowledge acquired as student insufficient.—A witness, whose knowledge of the law of a foreign country is derived solely from his having studied it at an university in another country, is incompetent to prove what the law of that foreign country is.—*BRISTOW v. The decree, though founded partly upon a will, made no mention of it, & the ct. which had custody of the will refused to give a copy of it. k. New South Wales Law—Question of marriage law.—The Crown in a petition for bigamy called a clergyman, who stated that he was a clergyman of the Church of England at Canterbury, New South Wales, & duly licensed to celebrate marriages. He produced a register of marriages containing an entry of a marriage which he claimed to have celebrated between a person of prisoner's name & a certain woman. The register was a book issued by the Registrar-General of New South Wales for the use of ministers. It contained instructions to ministers. These instructions confirmed the statement of the minister that no notice & no certificate authorising the marriage were necessary.—Held: the evidence of the clergyman was admissible not to prove in detail the marriage law of New South Wales, but to show that the book produced was an official register of marriages, & certain suggested preliminaries, notice, & a certificate authorising the marriage were not required in that State.—R. v. FOUN (1913), 32 N. Z. L. R. 1219.—N.Z.

l. Evidence of mandarin & newspaper editor.—In the first instance it was attempted to prove the law of China by the evidence of a mandarin, a Chinese merchant, & the editor of a Chinese newspaper, neither of whom had ever resided permanently in China.—Held: the evidence was insufficient.—Re LEE HING'S WILL (1901), 1 S. R. N. S. W. 199; 18 N. S. W. N. 239.—AUS.

m. Non-professional witness.—The witness called to prove the first marriage swore that it was solemnised by a justice of the peace in the State of New York, who had power to marry, but this witness was not a lawyer nor inhabitant of the United States & did not state how the authority of the justice was derived.—Held: insufficient.—R. v. SMITH (1857), 14 U. C. R. 565.—CAN.

n. Source of knowledge must be stated.—A witness must state some ground, professional or practical, upon which his knowledge rests, to qualify him to speak of the law of a foreign state. It is not enough for such a witness to say that he is familiar with the foreign law, without stating the ground on which his knowledge rests.

Where a witness has resided in this Province as American Consul, for six years, during which time certain currency laws were passed in the United States, of which his only knowledge was derived from having them transmitted to him:—Held: this was not a sufficient qualification in the absence of an assertion that his official duties required him to acquaint himself with the currency laws of his country.—McKENZIE v. GORDON (1867), 7 N. S. R. 153.—CAN.

o. Knowledge from printed circulars.—The witnesses called to prove the imposition of a duty on goods in the United States derived their knowledge from printed circulars.—Held: insufficient.—FRASER v. GRAND TRUNK Ry. Co. (1867), 26 U. C. R. 488.—CAN.

p. Consul—Knowledge must be proved.—A consul's certificate as to the law of the country which he represents is not in itself conclusive evidence of the foreign law, but it must appear that such consul is peritus viriute officii in such foreign law, or has otherwise had exceptional opportunities of gaining expert knowledge of it.—LEVY

6916.—Based on study of abrogated law.]—A foreign written law may be proved by parol evidence of a witness learned in the law of that country. Therefore an advocate of France, having stated that the feudal law affecting the matter in question ceased in Alsace, in 1789, by a decree of the National Assembly, & that he had become acquainted with that decree in the course of his study of the law, may be asked as to the contents of it.—DE BODE'S CASE (1844), 8 Q. 6917.—As to law of Uruguay.—Practice in other Spanish speaking countries in South America.]—Petition for the dissolution of a marriage celebrated in Monte Video in the Republic of Uruguay. No lawyer practising in Uruguay could be found in England. The ct. accepted, to prove the legality of the marriage, the evidence of a Doctor of Law who had been called to the Bars of England, Madrid, & three Spanish-speaking countries in South America. He was by virtue of a treaty entitled on application to a diploma permitting him to practise in Uruguay & had for some years been studying & advising on the laws of Spanish-speaking countries.—*BARFORD v. 6918.—Evidence of Roman Catholic bishop.—As to matrimonial cases affected by the law of Rome.]—(1) A Roman Catholic bishop exercising jurisdiction in England is admissible as a witness to prove the matrimonial law of Rome in 1793 being peritus virtute officii. A Jesuit priest having received a similar training is not admissible.

(2) A professional or official witness, giving evidence as to foreign law, may refer to foreign law books to refresh his memory, or to correct or confirm his opinion, but the law itself must be taken from his evidence.—SUSSEX PEERAGE CASE (1844), 11 Cl. & Fin. 85; 6 State Tr. q. In what cases evidence accepted.—Opinion of professional man of the country.—To render a witness competent to give evidence of foreign law, he must either be a professional man of the country whose law is in question, or must hold some official situation which requires a knowledge of its law. The Ct. will not act upon the evidence of a Foreign Consul, as to the law of his country, unless it is proved that he is required by the power appointing him, to be versed in the law of the country, & that there are no professional lawyers in his country.—*GOLDENSTEDT v. 6919.—Foreign stockbroker.—As to law of negotiable instruments.]—The law of a foreign country on a given subject may be proved by any person who, though not a lawyer or a person, who, by reason of his having filled any public office, may be presumed to be acquainted with the law, is, or has been, in a position to render it probable that he would make himself acquainted with it. Therefore an hotel-keeper in London, a native of Belgium, who stated that he had formerly carried on the business of a merchant & compr. of stocks in Brussels, was permitted to prove the law of Belgium on the subject of the presentment of a promissory note made in that country payable at a particular place.—*VANDER DONCKT v. The other was believed to be in Bolivia, but no response had been obtained to repeated applications made to him. The only property in this country of any value consisted of a debt which it was desired to collect. The ct. accepted the affidavit of a notary, who was not a qualified Chilean lawyer, as evidence of the law of Chili, & upon his evidence that the powers & duties of an exor. in that country would only extend to seeing that the estate was duly administered by the acting heiress, who in this case was testator's

6930. — ——I have some doubt as to whether foreign codes are by themselves admissible as evidence of foreign law. I have always thought that the practice is for the ct. not to give effect to a foreign code unless there is a foreign expert present to construe the foreign code & to assist the ct., not so much in construing the code as in arriving at the conclusions of fact at which the English ct. has to arrive as to what is the foreign law, by informing the ct. what has been recognised by the law of the foreign country. I do not think that it is part of the duty of English judges to take a foreign code &, unassisted by foreign experts, to construe that foreign code, for that is to make the question of the foreign law a question of law & not a question of fact (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J.).—*DE HART V. 6934. ———.]—In 1898 testator, domiciled in England, died possessed of English & Indian assets. The Indian assets comprised shares in the Bank of Bengal, & the share certificates were in the custody of C., testator's agent at Calcutta. The exors. in England remained in ignorance of testator's Indian assets until 1903, when they discovered that in 1902 C. had by fraud obtained from the High Ct. at Calcutta the grant of letters of administration to testator's Indian assets as on an intestacy, & acting as such administrator had sold the bank shares in the open market at Calcutta & had squandered the proceeds. Some of the shares C. so sold & transferred to T., who was a purchaser for value without notice. C. was prosecuted for the fraud & convicted, & the grant of letters of administration to him was revoked, & fresh letters of administration with a copy of testator's will annexed were granted to the Administrator-General of Bengal. In an action by the exors. against T. & the Administrator-General claiming to be entitled to the shares T. had purchased from C. on the ground that the grant of letters of administration to the latter was void ab initio:—Held: on the true construction of the provisions of Indian Succession Act, 1865, the grant of letters of administration to C. was not void ab initio, but only void as from the date of the order of revocation.

I think that expert evidence is admissible as to the meaning of the Act, inasmuch as it is a part of foreign law & not the law administered by this Ct. On the other hand, it appears to me that it is a case in which there is a conflict of testimony between the expert witnesses called, & I think that, where there is such a conflict, the judge must construe the statute & in the light of the evidence given by the expert witnesses come to the best conclusion he can as to what the law upon the matter is (NEVILLE, J.).—*CRASTER v. PART XI. SECT. 9.

o. Printed copy.—Foreign statute law may be proved in the et. of New South Wales by putting in evidence a printed copy of the foreign statute, as provided for by 55 Vict. No. 5, s. 11, but the construction of a statute so put in evidence is for the et. to decide; that sect. does not authorise the putting in evidence of books of reported decisions of the foreign country to show what interpretations judges in that country have put upon their own statute. —HOMEWARD, BOUND GOLD MINING CO. (NO LIABILITY) v. McFERRON (1896), 17 N. S. W. Eq. 251.—AUS.

p. Foreign statute.—The state of Maine is a foreign state, & an Act of the Legislature of that state may, under the Consol. Stat. cap. 46, s. 12, be proved in this province by a copy thereof, certified by the Secretary of the State, & under the seal thereof. —PALMER v. OCEAN MARINE INSURANCE CO. (1890), 29 N. B. R. 501.—CAN.

6967. —.—.]—In a suit instituted in this country, where a question of Scottish law arises, the ct. has power under British Law Ascertainment Act, 1859 (c. 63), to order a case to be settled for the opinion of the Scottish ct., & on a return of the judgment of such ct., to apply the facts to such decision, & make an order accordingly.—WILSON v. Moore (1861), 11 L. T. 102; 12 W. R. 1137.

Scottish form, the ct. declined to decide questions arising out of the terms of the settlement & affecting the husband's property in England, without being informed as to the construction which would be put upon the instrument by a Scottish ct.; & it therefore directed a case to be sent to the Ct. of Session, under British Law Ascertainment Act, 1859 (c. 63), to ascertain the law of Scotland applicable to the settlement.—EGLINTON (EARL) v. LAMB (1867), 15 L. T. 657.
